Tory budget to bring pain at pumps?

By DOUG LONG

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers seem certain to wake up Wednesday to whopping increases in the price of gasoline as Finance Minister John Crosbie puts the finishing touches to a budget designed to curb energy use.

An increase of between 20 and 25 cents a gallon in the excise tax on all transportation fuels, proposed by the government as part of its new energy policy, would raise the price of gasoline sold at the pump to about $1.30 a gallon.

Tuesday's budget — the first by the new Conservative government — is also expected to contain a number of tax measures aimed at encouraging greater use of natural gas and reduced dependence on oil.

Meanwhile, investors in oil and gas stocks are anxious to learn how the government intends to tax new petroleum industry revenues resulting from expected oil price increases of at least $4 a barrel in 1980.

The government seems convinced higher energy prices are an effective means of reducing consumption. Liberal party energy critic Marc Lalonde calls this a baseball bat approach to conservation.

Ottawa hopes to raise around $3 billion through the excise tax and another $2 billion through higher oil prices. Crosbie will use some of the money to cushion the impact of higher prices in low income regions and on consumers already strapped by soaring energy costs.

The energy conscious budget comes on the heels of warnings from the National Energy Board that supplies of home heating oil are very tight across the country this winter. Prime Minister Clark says limited shortages are possible in some areas.

The government is likely to unveil a beefed up home insulation program with more funds available for a broader cross section of home owners to help reduce heating bills.

Tax incentives for conversion to natural gas from oil are anticipated along with a pledge to keep gas prices below oil prices. The government is committed to extending natural gas supplies into Eastern Canada.

The government plans to deposit most of the additional revenues in a new national energy bank, to be used to fund projects aimed at helping reach its target of energy self sufficiency by 1990.

Extension of natural gas supplies, investment in development of alternate energy sources and funding for additional heavy oil and oil sands plants are part of the plans.

The stumbling block to announcement of details of the energy package has been a dispute with Alberta over the method of taxing higher revenues from oil and gas.

The federal government wants a new revenue sharing arrangement to give Ottawa 50 per cent of annual oil price increases above $2 a barrel as it pursues its goal of moving domestic oil prices closer to world levels.

Ottawa now takes 10 per cent of each $1 a barrel increase, while the producing province and the industry each get 45 per cent.

While Alberta concedes the federal treasury needs a bigger slice of oil and gas industry profits to finance national projects there is disagreement over where to impose the tax.

The province says the federal government should only tax profits not being reinvested in exploration and development.

Federal officials maintain this would not provide enough additional revenue and the two sides have been working at a solution. Details may come in Crosbie's budget.

OVERPARKED LOCO jumped the rails in the Canadian Pacific yard in front of Capital Iron this morning and by noon today it had been there for more than five hours without a metered parking ticket on the seat or dash. Gordon's Towing, however, apparently decided the job was just too big for them to handle. Just another case of a big guy getting away with something. No one was hurt in the mishap.

Mum's word on Campbell

By JAKE BANKY

Intergovernmental Relations Minister Garde Gardom today refused to speculate on the future of Dan Campbell, the senior Social Credit bureaucrat he inherited from the premier in last month's cabinet shuffle.

Gardom was asked whether Campbell will still become the government's chief representative in the new B.C. House in Ottawa in the New Year as scheduled.

"As I say, I'm not making any comment," he replied.

An hour later, the minister met Campbell privately.

Campbell was not available to answer questions.

On two occasions last week Campbell blew his top at the press for "hassling and harassing" him on the dirty tricks affair.

He ordered reporters from his office and threatened them with legal action.

Gardom said it would be wrong for him to say anything on any of these matters while a police investigation is under way into the dirty tricks affair.

Does that mean Campbell is under investigation? Gardom was asked.

"I'm not suggesting he is, I'm not suggesting he isn't," Gardom replied.

Pressed on whether Campbell is going to Ottawa, the minister said:

"Garde Gardom is not going to be here forever. You are not going to be here forever and I assume Mr. Campbell is in the same position."

Will Campbell be around for another year?

"I'm not going to start speculating," Gardom said.

Premier Bill Bennett declined comment on the Campbell situation.

The NDP meanwhile, is calling for a police investigation into the possibility that Campbell may have contravened the B.C. Elections Act.

Former attorney-general Alex Macdonald said the RCMP should be investigating Campbell in light of a claim by former Socred researcher Ellen Mackay that Campbell handed out $1000 bills for election expenses without asking for receipts.

The Socred caucus was meeting today in a session expected to centre on dirty tricks and the mass firing last week of the entire caucus research staff.

Prince George South MLA Bruce Strachan said as he entered the meeting he is upset at the way things have been handled and he intends to speak out about it.

Iran on brink of civil war

Times News Services

As more violent clashes threatened to plunge Iran into civil war, the revolutionary regime of Ayatollah Khomeini backed down Sunday from its threats to set a quick trial date for the U.S. embassy hostages.

In Tabriz, provincial capital of the Azerbaijan region of northeastern Iran, surging mobs of pro- and anti-Khomeini forces battled in the streets, capturing and recapturing government buildings in the worst violence of the four-day-old rebellion by ethnic Turks.

Meanwhile, UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim dispatched a special intermediary to Tehran to pursue UN efforts to resolve the hostage crisis.

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who on Friday pledged to make a statement within 48 hours on a trial date for the 50 Americans held at the embassy, said Sunday: "At present we are not going to set any time limits on arriving at any new decisions about the hostages."

Iran has threatened to try some of the hostages as spies unless the United States extradites the deposed shah, something the Carter administration refuses to do so.

In rebellious Azerbaijan, Khomeini supporters in the provincial capital of Tabriz wrested the radio and television station from anti-Khomeini ethnic Turks who took it over last week. But later Sunday, tens of thousands of dissident Turks stormed the station, a bloody gun battle broke out and the rebels regained control of the building.

Rebel sources said three persons — all ethnic Turks — were killed and at least 60 wounded in the fighting. Other sources put the death toll at five and said local army units had joined in the fight on the side of the rebels.

The Turkish-speaking minority, loyal to Iran's second-ranking ayatollah, Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, had taken over the Tabriz governor's mansion, airport and radio-TV station to protest the new Islamic constitution that makes Khomeini supreme Iranian ruler for life and denies them the self-rule they were expecting.

Sunday's fighting was the worst of the four-day uprising in Tabriz. Besides the radio station, the pro-Khomeini forces also retook, then lost control of the governor's mansion. By nightfall the Shariat-Madari followers seemed to have the upper hand.

ICBC confirms increase

The average premium rate for Greater Victoria drivers will increase $10 to $177 next year though most drivers in the province will pay up to 10 per cent more for their Insurance Corporation of B.C. coverage.

North Vancouver Island motorists will also get a $10 drop, from $191 to $181.

The overall 10 per cent increase — predicted Friday by the Times — was confirmed today by ICBC president Robbie Sherrell.

Sherrell told a news conference that about 915,000 drivers will pay more for insurance, 729,000 will pay less and rates for 55,000 drivers will remain unchanged.

He also said 100,000 additional drivers will see an average $11 drop in insurance rates through the Crown corporation because they qualify for safe driver discounts.

Sherrell said Vancouver-area drivers will see the average premium rate reduced to $253 from $270 and the average premium in the Fraser Valley will drop $7 to $185.

The new rates take effect Jan. 1 and will be accompanied by a variety of new coverage options.

Corporation spokesman said earlier this year that the government's program four to stop basing rates on age, sex, marital status and geography would result in an overall increase in premiums.

Wrecked boat yields 3 dead

A search for seven people began at dawn today after three bodies were found in the wreckage of a 32-foot fishing boat that went missing eight days ago.

One of the dead was identified as the owner of the boat, Roy Mostad, 44. The other victims were a juvenile girl and a juvenile boy.

There were seven children and three adults aboard the Salinta when it vanished.

Officials identified them as Mostad and his three children, Tommy, 13, Robert, 8, and Tina 9; Judy Stevens, 30, and her children Lyle, 7, Nadine 6, and Roselle 4 and her sister, Wendy Stevens, 22, and her four-year-old daughter Angie. All are from Prince Rupert.

The damaged boat was sighted Sunday washed ashore on the Alaska coast north of Prince Rupert, he said.

The wreck was spotted 66 kilometres north of Prince Rupert near Tree Point in Alaska by a Canadian Forces helicopter based at CFB Comox, said Capt. Ron Hallstrom of the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre.

The occupants of the craft, who set out from Prince Rupert Dec. 2 to visit relatives in Kincolith about 100 kilometres to the north, were not missed until Friday when a neighbor noticed the children were not at school.

Apparently no one had notified the relatives they were coming, a Canadian Forces spokesman said.

New police chief named

Victoria's new police chief is Insp. William J. Snowdown of Vancouver.

Mayor Bill Tindall today announced the police board had chosen the head of Vancouver's community services division from a list of 33 candidates.

Snowdon, a veteran of more than 20 years on the 800-man Vancouver force, replaces Chief Jack Gregory, a former RCMP officer who headed Victoria's force for 18 years.

The appointment is effective Jan. 1.

Snowdon's experience with team policing methods was believed to be the decisive factor in his appointment.

Earlier this year, he was given command of the community services division of the Vancouver police force.

For several years, Vancouver has deployed teams of police to cover sectors of the city to try to combat the rising crime rate, especially among youths and juveniles.

Instead of being assigned various areas of the city, police concentrate on one neighborhood and get to know the people and the trouble spots.

There have been numerous demands that Victoria's 150-man police department adopt similar tactics.

Robber blasts hole in roof

By AB KENT

A cool-headed attendant tried to talk a masked gunman out of robbing his service station until the robber blasted a hole in the ceiling of Fennell's Pay-n-Save service station with a shotgun Saturday night.

"Then I went to plan B and asked him if he still wanted the money," said Peter Moulton, 28, of 486 Culduthel.

Moulton said the man threatened to kill him and two young motorcyclists, took about $600 cash and drove away from the Central Saanich station in a small car about 9:40 p.m.

"If anything, he was more scared than I was," Moulton said.

The motorcyclists were with Moulton in the office at 6459 Pat. Bay Highway when the six-foot bandit, wearing a red toque, red coveralls and a child's red knitted sweater tied over his face, came in carrying a Remington 12-gauge shotgun.

"Gimme your money and the money from the safe," the gunman demanded.

"I conversed with him for three or four minutes, hoping he'd back down," Moukl-ton said today.

But the gunman was determined that Moulton hand over his wallet and open the safe.

"Then I wanted to see if I could talk him into firing a shot into the ceiling to prove the gun was loaded. I thought I could either jump him, or if it was loaded, the sound would attract neighbors," Moulton said.

The gun roared and Moulton said he abandoned the idea.

"He ordered us into the ladies washroom and said not to come out. He meant business and said he would kill us if we didn't co-operate."

When he heard the sound of a car pulling away, Moulton said he jumped out of the washroom, dived over a counter and telephoned the station owner who called police.

Rhodesia bombs rebel sites

SALISBURY (AP) — Zimbabwe Rhodesian jet fighter planes pounded guerrilla staging areas in neighboring Zambia and Mozambique on Sunday as negotiators in London continued to wrangle over a ceasefire in the breakaway British colony.

The military command reported that the planes bombed and strafed black nationalist guerrilla havens just across the Zambezi River border in Zambia at dawn. A later statement said the planes attacked more guerrilla bases inside Zambia on a second raid and struck a guerrilla target inside Mozambique.

The Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance uses the neighboring black-ruled states as base areas in its seven-year-old war against the Salisbury government.

There was no immediate word from either Zambia or Mozambique on casualties in the raids.

The military command gave few details, saying only that the attacked bases in Zambia housed "large numbers of terrorists" and that the target in Mozambique was "a major terrorist base."

It said all aircraft returned to base safely after the attacks. Unconfirmed reports said Zimbabwe Rhodesian ground troops also took part in the Mozambique raid.

Sunday's air strikes were the sixth, seventh and eighth cross-border raids into Zambia and Mozambique since the London peace conference began 13 weeks ago.

In London, Patriotic Front spokesman Willie Musarurwa denounced Sunday's attacks as "outrageous" and said they proved that the outgoing Salisbury government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa is not serious about peace.

Observers say the raids may cast another shadow over hopes for early conclusion of a Zimbabwe Rhodesian peace agreement.

Both sides in the British-sponsored talks have accepted a constitutional plan and last week the Front guerrilla leaders agreed to principles of a ceasefire. But last-minute technical hitches developed and the Front again declared it would not accept cease-fire terms that amounted to "surrender."

Hydro probe delay bid

B.C. environmental groups will ask the National Energy Board to postpone a hearing on B.C. Hydro's application to export electricity until more information is available on the potential effects of such a move.

The hearing is scheduled to begin Tuesday in Vancouver.

A motion to that effect will be made at the hearing by the Sierra Club and the Canadian Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC).

Hydro is seeking an umbrella licence from the federal regulatory agency to export 10 billion kilowatt hours of electricity annually to the U.S. Three billion would be guaranteed while the remaining seven billion could be interrupted if required to serve Canadian needs.

The proposed annual export of electricity is equal to 39 per cent of Hydro's domestic sales in the 1978-79 fiscal year.

The Sierra-SPEC motion says the hearing should be put off until the following questions can be answered:

—Whether the export price should include the capital, environmental and social costs to generate the power;

—Whether the price for export thermal power will include costs stemming from the impact the operation of thermal generating units has on the environment.

25-storey jump . . . she lives

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 25-year-old woman survived an apparent jump from a 25-storey hotel but does not want to talk about it, hospital officials said Sunday.

In discussing the Friday incident, police said Kathy Beck took off some of her clothes, apparently jumped from the roof of the Golden Gateway Holiday Inn — 250 feet high — and landed on the roof of a parked car.

Hospital officials declined to discuss her condition.

"We cannot make any statements about her condition," said a spokeswoman at San Francisco General Hospital. "She has been very uncooperative and doesn't want us to say anything to anyone."

Witnesses said that when the woman landed on car, she moaned, "Leave me alone, just leave me alone."

Hospital officials said she suffered head and internal injuries but will live.

$1 million fire guts stores

SURREY (CP) — A spectacular fire fanned by high winds Sunday night caused more than $1 million damage when it destroyed two furniture stores in this community.

A fire department spokesman said the fire which gutted Cloverdale Home Furnishings Ltd. and the adjacent Maple Shop, burned out of control in the townsite of Cloverdale for three hours with winds gusting to 40 kilometres an hour. Volunteer firemen from about six halls were called in to battle the fire.

The fire also spread to a nearby cafe and a dry cleaning firm.

Minnie Mountain appeal in Feb.

A Cadboro Bay Residents Association appeal for a hearing before the Supreme Court of Canada on the Minnie Mountain housing development decision will be held in Ottawa in February.

Association laywer Lawrence Fast has appealed a recent B.C. Court of Appeal judgement overturning an earlier B.C. Supreme Court decision quashing a Saanich land use bylaw allowing the 70-acre housing development.

If the application is successful, it will be several months before the case is heard by the Supreme Court.

A year ago the association won a supreme court appeal against the bylaw when Mr. Justice William Trainor ruled a conflict of interest on the part of Ald. David Paterson.

Mayor Mel Couvelier has announced the mixed residential housing development will go ahead as soon as possible.

Killer slide crushes shed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two deaths have been linked to a severe wind and rain storm that lashed southwestern British Columbia during the weekend, disrupting power and damaging buildings.

At least two mudslides were caused by the driving rains which undermined hillsides.

One slide claimed a man's life and left another man in serious condition in hospital. The other slide blocked a major highway.

The massive mudslide at the Carolin Mine in the Coquihalla Valley, 30 kilometres northeast of Hope, swept a mechanics' shed with four men inside it off its foundation.

One man died as the shed was crushed by mud and another suffered serious injuries after he was trapped in a truck which was swept 50 metres over an embankment. Two other men suffered minor injuries and worked for an hour to rescue the victim in the truck.

In the Vancouver suburb of Surrey, RCMP said weather conditions contributed to the death of a woman who was struck by a car. They said the accident occurred in an area where lack of street lighting, high winds and heavy rain resulted in poor visibility.

Offer for FP called 'low'

TORONTO (CP) — The offer by Conrad Black and associates for controlling interest of FP Publications Ltd. is about $102 million or $45 a share, says former Liberal cabinet minister James Richardson.

Although the offer isn't as good as it should be, it will probably be accepted by some stockholders because FP earnings aren't as good as they should be, said Richardson, a trustee of the Bell Foundation, which owns a small portion of the stock.

FP Publications owns eight newspapers, including the Victoria Times, The Daily Colonist and the Vancouver Sun in B.C., and has substantial printing interests.

Richardson and other foundation trustees will be in Toronto on Thursday to discuss the details of the offer made by Black, chairman of Argus Corp. Ltd., and his associates. They include John Bassett, chairman of Baton Broadcasting Inc., and George Gardiner, president of Gardiner Watson Ltd. brokers of Toronto.

The various equity shareholders, including four family holding companies and four members of the family of FP co-founder Max Bell, have been invited to Toronto to study the proposals.

The Bell heirs own about 10.4 per cent of the FP equity shares. The main shareholders are Invictus Ltd., which represents the Sifton estate and owns 32.4 per cent of the equity; Starlaw Investments Ltd., representing the McConnell family of Montreal with 25 per cent; Newsco Investments Ltd., the family holding company of R. Howard Webster of Montreal with 20.6 per cent; and the Max Bell Foundation with 10.3 per cent.

But the decision on any sale will be made by the businessmen who administer the foundations or execute the estates, not by family members.

These administrators include David Ferguson and Derek Price of Starlaw Investments; R. S. Malone, a trustee of both the Sifton and Bell estates; Donald McGavin of Toronto, a Sifton trustee; Gardiner, a trustee of the Bell Foundation; and three other Bell trustees, including Richardson and former governor-general Roland Michener.

Ownership of the equity shares differs substantially from that of the voting shares represented on the board of directors, which controls management of the company.

Starlaw holds 25 per cent of the voting shares, while Sifton, the Bell Foundation and Webster each hold 22.5 per cent. Malone holds 7.5 per cent.

the weather

A vigorous frontal system tracked across southern B.C. overnight. The system was accompanied by rain and snow. Following the front are strong gusty northerly winds which will push cold Arctic air into the Interior today. The cold, drier air will give some sunny breaks across the province today. The next Pacific disturbance is on its way and will track across northern B.C. Tuesday. This system will bring rain and snow to the north coast this afternoon and snow to the northern interior overnight.

RCMP probe crash probers

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three Department of Transport officials heading the investigation of a 1978 Pacific Western Airlines jetliner crash that killed 43 persons at Cranbrook have been reassigned while the RCMP investigates the reported loss of several crash-related documents.

H. A. Fawcett, former chief of aviation safety investigation, said Saturday that he and fellow investigators Bill Howes and Francois Dube have been taken off their jobs, but he denied any documents were missing.

Fawcett said even if the investigation clears him of any responsibility for missing documents, he has not been assured he will be returned to his job.

The federal justice department requested the investigation because crucial documents and tapes could not be found, said R. P. St. John, deputy administrator of the Canadian Air Transportation Administration.

The missing papers include flight crew autopsy reports, statements from crash witnesses and other principal tapes and transcripts, said David Waurnchuk, a Cranbrook lawyer handling six suits resulting from the Boeing 737 crash.

Waurnchuk said the documents are crucial for at least two sets of legal actions including a suit alleging negligence and breach of contract against the airline.

The airline is also suing the federal government and the transport department for its flight regulations as well as Boeing and Rohr Industries Inc. of California for the alleged failure of the plane's thrust reversers.

A coroner's jury found the plane's thrust reverser system played a major role in the crash. The plane cartwheeled to earth and exploded in a ball of orange flame on its final approach.

Police chief suspended

NELSON (CP) — City police chief George Barr said Sunday he has been suspended because of financial matters connected with his 200-acre farm where he raises cattle and horses.

Barr was suspended Saturday for 30 days with pay while RCMP investigate a citizen's complaint arising from personal business dealings.

"It's probably a little sour grapes," Barr said in an interview. "I'm just going to have to weather it out."

Barr, a former police dog handler who was appointed chief in 1971, said no charges have been laid and his lawyer has advised him not to talk while investigators check his financial records.

Mayor Tex Mowatt, chairman of the Nelson police board, said the complaint is not a disciplinary matter and has nothing to do with Barr's police work.

He said the suspension was recommended by Roy McQueen, chairman of the B.C. Police Commission, and is required under the B.C. Police Act.

The investigation is nearing completion, but if it takes more than a month, Barr will remain on suspension but without pay.

Deputy chief Roy Martin will head the 16-member force during the investigation.

Barr is the second police chief to be suspended in B.C. this year and the third suspended in Nelson during the last 10 years. Two former chiefs were suspended for disciplinary matters.

Earlier this year, Delta police chief Mervyn Smith was suspended while the police commission investigated the sale of a used police car. He was cleared of any wrongdoing, but decided to take early retirement.

U.S. interest rates hurt interior mills

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Soaring interest rates and plunging housing starts in the United States are beginning to hurt British Columbia's Interior logging industry but the provincial government appears reluctant to administer first aid.

Forest industry officials echo the same concerns — layoffs are spreading through the industry as log and lumber inventories grow and prices drop.

Industry spokesman say the government should lower stumpage rates, the amount paid by the companies for cutting timber on Crown land.

But Forests Minister Tom Waterland has refused to change the rates for the time being, saying only lower interest rates and increased demand can reverse the slump.

That demand normally comes from U.S. customers who buy up to 82 per cent of Interior lumber.

But successive interest rate hikes are expected to slash U.S. housing starts about 1.2 million in 1980, about 40 per cent below the 1978 level and 30 per cent down from this year. In Canada, where interest rates have shadowed U.S. rates, housing starts in 1980 are likely to remain the same as this year.

Van Scoffield, manager of the northern Interior sector of the B.C. Council of Forest Industries, says lumber inventory is high because mills kept cutting timber at the pre-housing slump rate.

Demand will increase once interest rates drop, but he doesn't expect that to happen before the end of 1980.

Meanwhile, layoffs continue.

Lloyd Larson, general manager of Nechako Lumber Co. Ltd. at Vanderhoof, just west of Prince George, says 200 loggers and 100 logging trucks are idle in his area.

There are about 31,000 workers in the central and southern Interior logging industry.

Al Macdonald, manager of the Interior Logging Manufacturers Association, said in Penticton that some operators have already suspended logging and unless conditions change, more woods operations will be shut down in December.

"It is expected that 17,000 man days of employment will be lost in December due to layoffs in the southern Interior."

Macdonald said there now are about 300 men laid off with more expected from mid-December through the end of January.

Coastal logging remains buoyant, largely because European and Japanese markets have kept up demand, said COFI spokesman Doug Jansen.

Selkirk College strike looming

NELSON (CP) — Selkirk College Faculty Association has voted to prepare for a strike over a contract dispute with the West Kootenay institution.

The association, representing about 110 teachers at Selkirk College in Castlegar, as well as the vocational school in Nelson and part of the faculty at David Thomson University Centre, could take a strike vote as early as Friday.

About 1,200 full-time and 600 part-time students would be affected.

The faculty association has been without a contract since March 31.

Phil Phillips, a provincial labor ministry mediator, entered the negotiations in November and both sides would have to agree to his withdrawal before strike action becomes legal.

Key issues are wages, communication between faculty and administration and faculty layoffs.

An association spokesman said faculty members receive 17 per cent lower wages than primary and secondary school teachers in the area with similar credentials.

Selkirk College was among West Kootenay schools affected last winter by a contract dispute involving non-teaching employees of Canadian Union of Public Employees.

The provincial government legislated an end to that six-week strike-lockout with passage of The Essential Services Disputes Act.

What has changed?

"Not now or in the foreseeable future." That's how the former Liberal Environment Minister 18 months ago summed up the need for an oil port at Kitimat and pipeline to Edmonton. Those comments coincided with the federal government's decision to terminate the West Coast Oil Ports Inquiry, a few days after the Kitimat Oil Pipeline Company shelved its proposal to the National Energy Board.

The proposal has been resurrected under a shining new company called Northern Pipeline Ltd., with J.V. Clyne, a former chairman of MacMillan Bloedel, as one of the principals. Even the provincial government had ruled out Kitimat as an oil port out of concern for the environment and the relatively few economic benefits promised to B.C. But Clyne now hopes to convince the province otherwise. However, his arguments so far have given the province no reason to change its mind.

The proposal will rekindle the conservation battle on the north coast that two years ago saw hundreds of fishermen, environmentalists, residents and local politicans line up to oppose the oil port and the resulting oil tanker traffic on the north coast.

Clyne says that if there is going to be an oil spill anywhere on the B.C. coast, then it would be better to have it at Kitimat where it can be contained. Comparing Northern's proposal to the options presented for northern Washington State, he says a spill at Port Angeles would involve the whole Strait of Juan de Fuca, including Victoria.

A spill at the head of Douglas Channel, where Kitimat is situated, is not the problem. The concern lies with bringing large oil tankers through 70 miles of waters that make up part of B.C.'s inside passage. Much of the route between Hecate Strait and Kitimat is through channels that are extremely narrow compared to Juan de Fuca Strait.

An oil spill may be easier to contain in the head waters of Douglas Channel, but how would a spill be contained along the 70 miles of coastline of a rugged, unpopulated region that is an integal part of the vibrant north coast fishing industry. Because it would take several hours for Coast Guard ships from either Prince Rupert or Kitimat to respond to an oil spill, say in Wright Sound, much oil could spread before containment efforts could even be mounted.

Although nobody on southern Vancouver Island or the Lower Mainland should feel comfortable with an oil port at the mouth of Puget Sound, they should feel equally uncomfortable about the risk of oil spill to the north coast.

One of the principal reasons the Kitimat option was rejected was because of the small long term benefits to Canada. Northern B.C. was taking the environmental risk, while the United States was receiving Alaskan crude to be used in its mid-western refineries. What has changed?

It does work

Many energy experts have been saying that conservation will lead to only a five per cent reduction in the consumption of petroleum products. And while they say individual Canadians may use less gasoline and heating oil, the national energy consumption picture will continue to show increases over the next decade.

For the people taking conservation seriously, such talk doesn't help make the effort seem all that worthwhile. However, recent statistics from the northeastern United States cast some doubt on the experts' predictions.

Drivers in the state of New Jersey used 16.1 per cent less gasoline this past September than they did the same month a year ago. Connecticut drivers used 10.3 per cent less, New York motorists 14.6 per cent less.

At the same time there has been nearly a four per cent increase in the use of public transit and many people are reported forming car pools.

This dramatic decline in gasoline use has been attributed to public awareness of the need to conserve, an adjustment of driving habits and higher prices. It should also be noted that these figures were tablulated prior to the start of the Iranian crisis.

It seems obvious that conservation can work.

LEONARD SILK

Can workers be convinced?

WASHINGTON — The layoffs are starting to pile up. General Motors, Chrysler and Ford have put more than 100,000 workers on indefinite layoffs and 40,000 others on short-term layoffs. United States Steel has announced its intention to close all or part of 16 operations around the country, wiping out the jobs of about 13,000 workers. Other steel producers, tire and rubber companies, suppliers of auto parts and a good many builders are also laying off workers.

The long-delayed recession appears to be here.

The agony, from the standpoint of national policymakers, is how to check the rising level of unemployment without aggravating inflation.

The Iranian crisis, the coming oil-price increase by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and the dangers to the dollar all impose tight constraints on the Government's fiscal and monetary policies.

No stimulation

Alice M. Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, this week told a conference in Washington, sponsored by the Work in America Institute and the International Institute for Labor Studies in Geneva, that there was no real difference between the Carter administration and Congress on the need for a restrictive fiscal policy. "Nobody," she said, describing conferences between administration and Congressional leaders, "thought a stimulative budget would be sensible."

But it will be painful, she added, to hold the budget deficit under $30 billion, especially with defense spending going up. Domestic programs, she said, will have to be cut in real terms.

President Carter will face the "worst of all worlds" — a highly restrictive fiscal policy that will cut down total demand as unemployment rises, but without a quick or dramatic effect in reducing inflation.

Emile van Lennep, the secretary general of the Paris-based Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, told the Washington conference that the steep rise in oil prices had made it more urgent than ever for governments to gain the agreement of labor and industry to incomes policies for moderating wage and price increases.

Van Lennep said that he had found it "widely understood in business and labor circles that we cannot escape the loss of real income to OPEC resulting from the rise in oil prices and that attempts to do so would ultimately be self-defeating." But the crucial question is how to translate this understanding into acceptance on the shop floor and in company boardrooms.

While he conceded that the record of incomes policies had not been good enough to suggest that here was a magic answer to the problem of achieving full employment without inflation, he contended that the inflation problem was so serious, and mistakes so high, that countries would be foolish to ignore any possibility for achieving greater consistency between the overall need for price stability and the need of particular industries for price and wage flexibility.

But income policies would break down unless backed by restrictive fiscal and monetary policies, he insisted.

He urged governments to use every possible opportunity to explain the situation to labor and business — "their social partners" — and work with them to come to terms with the extremely limited scope for increasing real incomes over the next year or more.

The oil crisis hung over this conference. Van Lennep said that studies by the OECD showed that, if there were a further substantial rise in the relative price of oil, it would be "simply impossible to avoid a worldwide inflationary recession on at least the scale and duration of that in 1974-75."

This would not just be a case of history repeating itself. The consequences for the next several years of a second inflationary recession of the 1974-75 class would be "far more serious this time, because now inflationary expectations are deeply entrenched and gross pessimists are in the ascendancy," he added.

Raise production

It will also be a lot harder to finance the massive budget deficits needed to prevent unemployment from rising to unbearable levels and to prevent a squeeze on profits from causing a breakdown in business confidence, Van Lennep argued.

The industrial growth countries, he feared, would be condemned by another huge oil-price increase to a growth-inflation performance in the 1980s "significantly worse than the already unacceptably poor record since 1973."

Given the grave political and economic strains in the Middle East, countries are looking for new solutions to the combined problems of inflation and unemployment. These are likely to involve greater efforts to create jobs for specific groups of workers, especially the most disadvantaged; governments will have to work closely with business and labor not only to restrain wages and prices but to raise productivity.

The stagflationist crisis of the industrial world will also require closer economic cooperation among nations, to reduce their energy consumption and restrain oil-price increases (as they will try to do next week at the meeting of the International Energy Agency in Paris) and to contain the pressure for protectionism that will surely grow as unemployment rises.

Victoria Landmarks

Pioneer Square on Quadra Street next to Christ Church Cathedral was the Quadra Street Cemetery which originated in 1858 after the closure of Victoria's first cemetery near Douglas and Johnson Streets.

It was set aside before 1853 by James Douglas, chief factor of the Hudson's Bay Company, and again reserved by him in 1858, acting as the Governor of the Colony of Vancouver Island. When Ross Bay Cemetery opened in 1873, burials ceased at the Quadra Street Cemetery which was converted into a public park in 1909 and dedicated in 1939 when the title was transferred from the province to the city.

Edgar Fawcett (1847-1923) wrote vividly of those early funerals. As a boy living near the Quadra Street Cemetery, he preferred naval funerals with soldiers, sailors, and volleys over the grave. Such funerals came from Esquimalt, generally by water and rowed in large boats. Most were young men, many having drowned in Esquimalt Harbor.

Victoria's streets often brought the horse-drawn hearse to a standstill while it was dug out of the mud.

Nowadays traffic lights may halt a hearse, and Pioneer Square is a gentle piece of urban greenery.

JAMES RESTON

An overdose of negativism

WASHINGTON — In the 20 years from the beginning of the Sixties to the coming days of the Eighties, one American president (John F. Kennedy) has been murdered, his successor (Lyndon Johnson) retired under fire, the third (Richard Nixon) was run out of Washington, the fourth (Gerald Ford) was rejected in the election of 1976, and the fifth, Jimmy Carter, is now under severe attack by the press and by his opponents in both parties.

Meanwhile, Carter's challengers for the presidency are being rebuked by the press, radio and television. Ronald Reagan is being condemned because he is too old and soft. John Connally of Texas because he is too tough. Edward Kennedy because he cheated at Harvard and went off the bridge in the tragedy at Chappaquiddick.

So we are living in an age of destruction. Nothing is private now. Joan Kennedy is asked in public whether she has conquered her problem with alcohol, and whether her husband has a "roving eye" for other women. The minority leader of the Senate, Howard Baker of Tennessee, is asked whether his wife has conquered her problem with the bottle, and Connally is asked whether he took bribes from the milk lobby, and if he was running for the presidency as a candidate of the oil lobbies.

Court attacked

So it's not surprising that the latest object of attack these days is the Supreme Court. In the last few years, we have had books attacking the executive branch of the government — "The Brightest and the Best" — the Congress, the CIA, the FBI, the communications industry, the universities and the churches.

Bob Woodward and Scott Armstrong of the Washington Post have now produced the book telling us all about the petty squabbles among "The Brethren" of the Supreme Court of the United States. They tell us that these gentlemen are not nine objective geniuses who interpret the law, as if we didn't know, but that they are ordinary characters, like the rest of us, who fuss with one another, and differ on the most fundamental dilemmas of life and the law. Woodward and Armstrong suggest that we should not be deceived by the courtesies and good manners of the Supreme Court procedure, but that we must see these nine men as ordinary and even quarrelsome human beings, influenced by personal and political prejudice.

I talked to a wise judge, not on the Supreme Court, about this. It is doubly true, he said, what Woodward and Armstrong report, but while I'm an old First Amendment judge and friend of the muckrackers, he added, I have to say that sometimes you can carry the truth too far. If you tear away the robes of these nine men, you may disclose the truth about some of their foibles and squabbles, but the robes are important, and if you tear them away, you could destroy the influence of the Supreme Court in the process.

Edward M. Yoder, the editorial page editor of the Washington Star, made the central point about this fine line between reporting the facts on the Supreme Court and casting doubt on its integrity.

"It isn't very hard," Yoder said, "to make a strong and dignified institution look seamy and petty, whether it is a small and private one like marriage, or a large and public one, like the Supreme Court. You need only to emphasize the superficial frictions (one Justice calling another a 'dummy' in a fit of pique) while ignoring the disciplines and codes that enable people of different temperaments and opinions to work together . . . "

That lovely old conservative curmudgeon, James J. Kilpatrick, made the same point in his own sharp way. "The Supreme Court," he observed, "has seen 101 men on its bench. Perhaps 10 or 12 have been genuinely superior judges, giants of the law. The great bulk of them can be characterized simply as mediocrities . . . There never has been a period in the court's history when members were not sniping contemptuously at one justice or another. These are very mortal men indeed; they put on their pants one leg at a time, precisely as other men do."

But one point is clear in all this, and Yoder, the liberal out of North Carolina, and Kilpatrick, the conservative out of Richmond and Rappahannock County, Va., are really saying the same thing. Namely, that maybe criticism in this country is going too far, and that, in the process, we are harming the institutions we need the most.

In confusion

The past itself is now in confusion on this point. It is determined, for good reasons, to expose the weakness and corruption of government at all levels, but in the process tends to dramatize the worst in everything and everybody.

The result is that the successes of the last generation are ignored, and the future of the next generation minimized. After all, there were only 20 years between the two world wars — from the peace conference at Versailles in 1919 to the German attack on Poland in 1939 — but it is now almost 40 years since the end of the last World War.

We are depressed by the tragedy of Iran these days and by the economic and monetary confusion of the world. But in the perspective of the century, with its world wars and depressions, our present troubles, bad as they are, are not all that tragic.

An apology

I wish to correct some incorrect information I related in a recent letter to the editor, under the impression that it was true (letter, Too Trusting, Oct. 29). Jack Kelly has not retained Gary Lauk as counsel and although Kelly admits to working for Tommy Douglas, states he did not work for Dave Barrett, and denies he was ever a member of the NDP.

There was never any intention on my part to connect the name of Gary Lauk with any part of the dirty tricks affair. Any counsel retained by anyone accused of any crime, does not infer the counsel was in any way connected with the crime or any part of it.

I regret any embarrassment or inconvenience this has caused Jack Kelly or Gary Lauk in the writing of this incorrect information, although when I wrote it, I believed it to be correct. — Alf Flett, 6216 Shoreline Drive, Nanaimo.

Editor's note: The Times also apologizes for any embarrassment caused Mr. Lauk or Mr. Kelly by the inadvertant publication of incorrect information in Mr. Flett's letter of Oct. 29.

Chilling

I read with some alarm Barnett Singer's stimulating article on heroism. (UVic Forum, Dec. 1). At a time when the American Empire and other western powers seem to be longing for a "man on horseback", I find Professor Singer's views rather chilling. He mentions Iran: surely the world may indeed be thankful that President Carter is cast in the anti-heroic mold and has not, as yet, attempted a John Wayne solution to this complex problem. As an historian, would Mr. Singer not prefer the style and substance of a Lester Pearson to the mock heroics of a Diefenbaker or a Trudeau? And, in the Canadian context, so many of our journalists and academics seem to be yearning for the authoritarian hero. In some cases, that of Peter Newman for example, this yearning has become almost a pathological condition.

The history of the twentieth century can be interpreted as one long search for heroes. We started off with the Kaiser and Teddy Roosevelt and went downhill from there. Must we end the century with a new Hitler? — James N. Knechtel, 2067 Lorne Terrace.

Drive less

According to a statement Nov. 29 by N.D.P. leader Ed Broadbent, Alberta is on the verge of increasing oil prices $4.00 per barrel per year until 1983. This increase will, Mr. Broadbent claims, put the price of gasoline at approximately $2.00 per gallon in 1983.

Nobody, except the hand-rubbing oil-pushers and terminal lunatics are going to roar with approval over such a quick, steep rise in oil prices as Mr. Broadbent has predicted. Just the same, normal Canadians who despise commodity increases of any sort, will quite likely continue driving more and faster, until that is, the collision between the wallet and the gas pumps becomes so damaging that it finally sinks in that the most effective method to combat the oil-gasoline highway robbery is to practice strict conservation by driving a great deal less.

Balderdash, you say. Well, just remember one thing; the less miles you have on your speedometer, the more dollars you will have in your wallet. — John Wickstrom, 3264 Shelley Street.

Home travel

I wish to congratulate E.I. Lattes on his letter entitled "Need Sacrifice" which was written on Remembrance Day in which it was stated "Our society seems to have lost the meaning of sacrifice."

It is the human right of every Canadian to have sufficient fuel for home or apartment heating, and have less gasoline produced.

If there is any doubt in the minds of our so-called energy experts that we may be on the verge of gasoline rationing in Canada I would first suggest that gasoline consumption would be greatly reduced if Canadians sacrificed foreign travel by air, boat or car. There are many who would do so now, but not while they see others who have no concern about our wonderful Canada.

The Canadian dollar would become more valuable to other countries and the Canadian consumers' purchasing power would increase for such imports as out of season fruits, vegetables, etc.

I certainly don't approve of Lieutenant-Governor Henry Bell-Irving heading a Remembrance mission next May to Amsterdam with approximately 2,500 Canadian veterans in commemoration of VE-Day.

Think of the Canadian dollars going out of Canada. I hope that most of these veterans would prefer to continue to make sacrifices and keep the Canadian money in Canada for the good of the country. — R.W. Ball, 3809 Hobbs Road.

WILLIAM SAFIRE

Machismo

Clare Boothe Luce recently predicted that a new adjective would have to be coined (coined?) on the analogy of "macho," to stand for "exaggerated female pride." She suggested "facho." But that seemed too derivative, like Adam's rib, and might lead to the noun "fachism." I wrote: "Readers of this space are urged to send in suggestions."

The first letter on this subject began, "Although I am reasonably literate, I have never learned how to read a space." Thanks; I needed that. That is the kind of spaced-out reader who reads what is written in this space. Now to the process of coinage:

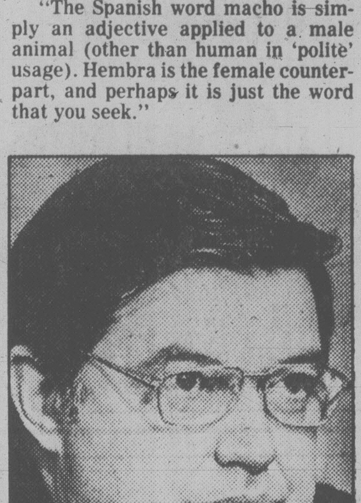
"Macha" was frequently suggested, as a Spanish feminine form of "macho." This was topped by "femacha," "femacho" and "feminisma"; and, to get away from Spanish, "femo." The "o" ending called forth "womo," "nowcho," "busto," "she'smo," "vergo," "msmo," "fexo," "wacho" and "bellacho." An offbeat suggestion was "eggsy."

KENNEDY . . . soaring

Though most of the ideas came from feminist women (that's not redundant — men can be feminists, too), many male readers participated. A few were anti-feminist — one male baseball fan grumbled that, to him, ERA would always stand for Earned Run Average — but the winner, in my book, was Paul Beckerman of Boston, who wrote:

"Your call for a feminine analogue to the word 'macho' made me recall a line from a Mexican film called La Generala. In this film, the actress Maria Felix — tall, slender, fascinatingly beautiful — plays a woman who takes up arms to avenge the death of her brother at the hands of a tyrannical army officer . . . She arranges matters so that the officer in question thinks that he is seducing her. At one point in this scene the officer, rather inebriated, tells her (as best as I can recall it), 'Yo soy muy macho, pero tu eres muy hembra.' ('I am very macho , but you are very hembra.')

"The Spanish word macho is simply an adjective applied to a male animal (other than human in 'polite' usage). Hembra is the female counterpart, and perhaps it is just the word that you seek."



CHURCH . . . leaned on

So it is. Hembra, or hembrista, for the adjective, and hembrismo for the noun. Aspirate the 'h' to make it American. (That's what my linguistic head tells me, but my heart is with "eggsy.") Someone will point out that "hembra" is sometimes used to refer to female dogs, but that sense would be applied only by someone who uses "macho" to refer to male dogs, and the progress of language cannot be stopped by catering to extremists.

Now to use the new adjective and noun in contrasting sentences. When Edward Kennedy announced his candidacy for president, he used a quotation that he said was taken from Thomas Wolfe to soar into his peroration: "So, then, to all persons their chance to work, to be themselves . . . This, seeker, is the promise of America." An alert editorialist for The St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times found the original line in You Can't Go Home Again: "So, then, to every man his chance . . . to work, to be himself . . ."

That substitution of "person" for "man," seeker, is an example of hembra speech-writing.

Contrariwise, Senator Kennedy's oratory (used for examples here because it is more vivid than the prosaic prose of most other politicians) frequently makes use of the fig-leaf metaphor. The fig leaf was used in classic statuary to preserve male modesty. Since it was such an obvious and artificial device to avoid offence, the use of a fig leaf is easily seen through — a cover-up that is transparent. The device, not the fig leaf itself, is transparent; however, in an unfortunate display of metaphoria, the senator recently denounced the reduced windfall tax on oil-company revenues as "no more than a transparent fig leaf over the industry's enormous profits."

That, seeker, is an example of speech-writing that cries out for editing. Where was his hembrismo when he needed it?

Fungible

"The rationale," writes economics columnist Hobart Rowen, "is that oil is 'fungible' — that is, if Iran sells more oil to, say, Japan and West Germany, other oil will be available for sale here."

"Fungible" is the vogue word to know if you intend to impress anybody with your grasp of the tricks of international trade. It has nothing to do with good times (no place is called "Fungible City") and the word does not denote a special susceptibility to athlete's foot (although the Latin "fungus," meaning "mushroom," has a plural of "fungi," that unexpected growth has nothing to do with the mushrooming use of "fungibility.")

Fungible, soft "g," is a term in contract law for "capable of mutual substitution." It comes from the Latin fungi vice, "to fulfil the office of," or "take the place of."

When Libya wanted to steer some money into the hands of Idaho farmers — thereby to lean on Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Frank Church of Idaho — that nation bought grain from the boys in Boise; however, since the Libyan consumer prefers a different kind of grain, delivery was made in the type of grain grown far from Idaho. That substitution could be accomplished because grain is fungible.

Similarly, when the United States stopped buying oil from Iran, we expected Iranian oil to be bought by other nations, which were then expected to buy less from Saudi Arabia, as we switched our Iran purchasing to the Saudis. That's because oil — like grain and like money — is fungible.

The hot new word (traceable to 1765) has also gained a metaphoric use in Washington: "The new-boy network is fungible," a National Security Council staffer told me. He meant that members of a clique of foreign- and defence-policy planners, who have the same ideological bent and mental set, can be slipped in and out of government without upsetting policy. Fortunately, there are two different new-boy networks — accommodationist and hard-line — which limits fungibility within each mind-set.

Fungible is interchangeable with "interchangeable," but that outmoded word is too widely understood for insiders, who find fungible more fun.

Be Advised

"Be advised," as the bureaucrats say (a written form of "Now hear this!" on a Navy squawk box) that we are losing some and winning some on the fuzzword front.

The verb "to check" — which originated in the checkmark made after determining whether a written datum or statement was correct — after losing ground to "cross-check," has now been overwhelmed by "cross-validate." (As the fellows who hand out fliers for massage parlors in Times Square will soon say, "Cross-validate it out." The same massaged metaphor can be found in another bureaucratic favorite — "hands-on experience" — which means knowledge gained in life rather than gleaned from textbooks.)

The word "travelling" is also moving on. No longer does the compleat bureaucrat say, "I will be travelling next week." Instead, the freshly minted pomposity is: "I will be in travel status."

However, that sinking feeling stops when it comes to the bureaucratese for "life preserver." Cmdr. Neal Mahan, executive director of the National Boating Safety Advisory Council, a civilian front group of the Coast Guard, has announced his group has just tossed in the sponge on "Personal Flotation Device," or PFD. That leaden coinage was "frequently misunderstood by the average boater," says the commander, his voice like thin ice breaking. Someday, when the antibureaucratic word gets through to the airlines, the litle signs that say, "Your seat cushion may be used as a personal flotation device" may be conformed to ordinary English usage, as, "Use your seat cushion as a life preserver." More likely: "Be advised: your seat floats."

Save anthem for real occasions

By JIM KEARNEY
The Sun

There's an easy solution to that national anthem fuss at the Canucks' Coliseum games. Stow it. Stop singing it. It's about as appropriate as using the Lord's Prayer to open Eaton's Trans-Canada sale.

So some rednecked idiots booed when Richard Loney changed gears and moved into French for a few bars of O Canada prior to a Montreal game in Vancouver. Who cares? There's no law against insensitivity in this democracy. All it means is that we have as many jerks running loose here as anywhere else in the country.

If parliamentarians react, as they seem to have, then they can't have anything else too important on their plates. One thing for sure, though. There's nothing safer than deploring such conduct. This element can't vote against them the next time out. It wouldn't know where to put the X. Even if it was capable of drawing one.

However, there was about as much need for this incident as there is for the anthem as a pre-game rite — at hockey, football, soccer or any other professional sports entertainment. There is no need at all. It's totally out of place.

In my simplistic view, which, of course, is the correct one, the anthem is something special. To trot it out as an automatic preface to every piece of commercial sports entertainment in town is to devalue it.

It's a little like putting your best dinner service and silverware on the kitchen table for breakfast, lunch and supper every day of the year. Or she dressing in her evening gown and he in his tux every time they go out to buy the groceries.

The anthem is special. It should be saved for special and appropriate occasions. It shouldn't be used to give some sort of quasi-patriotic status to an event where it matters not so much who won or lost, but how many paid to get in and how many hot dogs, programs and cups of coffee were sold.

Just how meaningless it has become can be detected merely by watching the spectators as they heave themselves out of their seats and to their feet for a ritual they all but ignore. How many sing? How many bars from the end do they start shuffling their feet? How many start the big cheer for the home team while the singer is still one bar from the end?

Make a note of it the next time you're at the Coliseum for a hockey game. Or at Empire Stadium for football or soccer. Then make another note on Boxing Day, when the Canucks play Moscow Dynamo here. They'll all stand to attention and sing until their eyeballs pop.

That's because it's an international game. It has some meaning beyond another point or two in the standings and $150,000 in the till. Whether or not you approve of such an [illegible] of nationalistic fervor is beside the point. At least there is a reason.

Why does the professional sports entertainment business hang on to this anachronism? When was the last time you heard the anthem sung in a movie house? The last time at live theatre? At a Cleo Laine concert? At the ballet? There was a recognition donkey's years ago that they are in the professional entertainment business; that theatre occasions and state occasions are in no way related.

Pro sport carries on, I'm inclined to believe, from unthinking habit. And from an unconscious aping of the American sport scene, where color guards, oaths of allegiance to the flag and show-biz singers fighting each other to get to the mike to exhibit their patriotism (not to mention welcome exposure) are a standard part of the scene.

In the United States, more than any other country I've visited, sports events and patriotic occasions are synonomous. For the most noteworthy instance, Americans elevate pro football far beyond the game it is.

At Super Bowl time it becomes the ultimate patriotic symbol. The only thing missing from the half-time show is George Washington crossing the Delaware. And that's only because they can't keep the ice cubes from melting at those sunshine Super Bowl sites.

Once upon a pint of bitter I lived in London for a couple of years and spent my Saturday afternoons at such cultural spas as Highbury, Craven Cottage, White Hart Lane and Stamford Bridge. Never heard the anthem once. At 3 p.m. the referee would look at his wrist watch, blow his whistle and place the ball on the centre spot.

The format hasn't changed. The Brits have a wonderful sense of occasion. You don't wear out the anthem for a couple of teams scuffling in the mud, trying to avoid relegation and/or foreclosure by the Midland Bank. You save it for memorable events, where it has meaning and impact; where it's appropriate; where it's in the proper context.

The only time you hear it at a soccer game is at the Cup Final in Wembley. And only because this is the one game a year attended by the Queen. The anthem is in deference to her presence there, not because it's an automatic part of the show.

The Grey Cup game is about the only time in the year that O Canada belongs at a professional sports entertainment. That's because the head of state, the governor-general, is there.

Anytime a government dignitary from Victoria drops in, perhaps a few bars from Fats Waller would be appropriate: I'm goin' to sit right down and write myself a letter, And make believe it came from you . . .

All in English, of course.

Toronto

The Toronto stock market fell moderately in mid-session trading today. Activity was also moderate.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said shares of Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum Ltd. were removed from the trading list at the opening. The merger of Amalgamated Bonanza and Gulf Canada Western Ltd., a subsidiary of Gulf Canada Ltd., became effective Friday.

Trading in shares of Western Mines Ltd. resumed at 1 p.m. after a halt at the opening. By 2 p.m., the stock was unchanged at $9½.

Western Mines said it bought a number of Canadian oil and gas properties from the Abacus group of companies for $20.1 million.

Trading in shares of McIntyre Mines Ltd. resumed at the opening following a halt Friday. The company reaffirmed that the effective date of its rights offering will be Tuesday unless the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission sets a later date. The stock lost 1½ to $64½ by 1 p.m.

Among other industrials, Texaco Canada fell 2 to $82, Falconbridge Nickel A 1¼ to $80¾, OPI Ltd. A ⅞ to $31½, Dome Petroleum ¾ to $49 and Norcen Energy ⅜ to $31⅝.

Gulf Canada rose 3½ to $98¾, Trizec 1½ to $22, Atco A 1¼ to $18⅞, Newfoundland Light and Power A 1 to $20 and Canadian Marconi 1 to $18⅞.

Sherritt Gordon was down ¾ to $12⅜, Copperfields Mining ⅜ to $9¾ and Vestgron Mines ½ to $13¾. Dome Mines was up ⅞ to $51 and Lacana Mining ½ to $7⅛.

Numac Oil and Gas declined 1 to $43, Francana Oil and Gas ¾ to $12¾ and Paloma Petroleum ½ to $6⅞. Ranger Oil Canada advanced ¾ to $24¼ and Canadian Merrill ⅝ to $24.

Vancouver

Prices were mixed in active trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 10:55 a.m. PST was 1,575,187 shares.

Of the stocks traded, 106 advanced, 123 declined and 134 remained unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, gaining .02 at $7.15 on 59,990 shares and Daon Development Corp. remained steady at $14¾ on 3,000. Canadian Javelin Ltd. dropped .03 at .82 on 1,203 and Hal Roach Studios was unchanged at $2.45 on 1,000. Balco Industries was up ⅛ at $5⅜ and Renn Industries was down .05 at $1.45.

On the resource and development board, Seaforth Mines gained .08 at $1.30 on 47,600 shares and Con-Am Resources was up .10 at $3.70 on 46,100. Quintaine Resources Inc. gained .20 at $3.10 on 36,900 and Slocan Development remained steady at .23 on 30,000. Plains Petroleum was up .08 at $1.38 and Rhodes Resources Warrants A was unchanged at .09.

West Trend Resources Warrants led trading on the curb exchange, up .16 to .81 on 33,400 shares and West Trend Resources was up .13 at $1.85 on 17,500. Rebel Developments was up .03 at .25 on 15,000 and San Antonio Exploration dropped .02 at .75 on 14,500.

New York

Stock prices recovered from early declines in moderate trading today, following a similar path for the U.S. dollar in currency trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell about three points in morning trading after the dollar plunged sharply against the Japanese currency in Tokyo.

But as the U.S. dollar stabilized in later European markets, so did trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Some analysts suggested that pressure on the U.S. dollar could reverse the recent easing of interest rates if the Federal Reserve Board found it necessary to maintain tight credit to defend the currency.

American Cyanimid jumped 1⅜ to $30⅞ as the most actively traded NYSE issue by midafternoon. Gold stocks also were strong in less active trading.

Among precious metals, ASA rose 1 to $33¼; Dome Mines gained ⅞ to $44¼; Hecla Mining rose ⅜ to $22 and Homestake was up ½ to $39¾.

London

The London stock market rose moderately near the close of light trading today.

The Financial Times index was up 1.0 to 416.6.

Industrials advanced while oils declined.

Canadian shares eased.

Singer to change retailing method

EDMONTON (CP) — The Singer Co. of Canada has closed the doors on some of its retail outlets to try a new method of distribution, Richard Conlin, vice-president of marketing, announced.

Conlin said the new emphasis will be on franchise dealerships.

Negotiations are under way to locate some Singer retail operations in Eaton's stores.

"It was basically the high cost of distribution with our retail outlets. Expenses were increasing rapidly — particularly rent and operating costs."

Singer has 200 independent dealerships across Canada, 21 in Alberta.

Increase in prices 14.5 %

OTTAWA (CP) — Manufacturing prices rose 14.5 per cent in October from a year earlier with a monthly rise of 1.5 per cent from September, Statistics Canada figures show.

The agency's industry selling-price index for manufacturing has a base year of 1971 set at 100. The index for October stood at 226.3, an increase for the 14th consecutive month.

Smelting and refining prices led with a whopping rise of 46 per cent since October, 1978. Primary metal prices increased 28.2 per cent, leather industries, 20.4 per cent and textiles and chemicals tied with a 15.6-per-cent increase for the year ended Oct. 30.

Tobacco product industries had the lowest price increase of the major groups measured at 8.3 per cent from October, 1978.

The only decline in prices was in the month-to-month period from September to October for wood industries where prices fell by 2.1 per cent.

Que. firm railcar deal set

MONTREAL (CP) — Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que. expects to build and deliver 3,762 railcars worth $170 million to United States companies before the end of next year, company vice-president Donald Guevremont has announced.

Guevremont said he has been in continuous negotiation with a variety of U.S. companies since last August and that more contracts could be in the offing.

"Marine Industries has never had such a series of contracts for one year," he said. "It will be a record year."

The contracts will provide employment for about 1,200 workers at the company's plant in Sorel, about 70 kilometres northeast of here, an area that was plagued with strikes and layoffs throughout 1979.

Amoco money move 'repayment'

CALGARY (CP) — The president of Amoco Canada Petroleum Co. Ltd. says his company's payment of $131 million to its U.S. parent early this year was made "with the full concurrence of the minister of finance" of the former Liberal government.

Amoco president Fraser Allen said he talked to former finance minister Jean Chretien about the payment and was told "you're free to move the money" since anti-inflation controls on dividend payments had expired.

Amoco co-operated with a government request to ensure the payment did not unsettle foreign exchange markets, he said.

The payment, and one to Texaco from its Canadian subsidiary, became matters of controversy last week after news reports and questions to cabinet ministers.

Suggestions were made that the money was being diverted from Canadian energy development at a time when oil companies were arguing they needed more revenue for that task.

Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn said he would seek explanations from the companies involved.

But as far as Amoco is concerned, the matter is already "pretty well taken care of" in conversations with the minister's staff, Allen said.

He said Amoco's parent, Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), had advanced the Canadian subsidiary close to $500 million since subsidiary operations started in Canada in 1948.

He said that after nearly 30 years, Amoco was finally in a position to start paying back some of that money — then was restrained through anti-inflation controls on dividends.

Allen, who is also president of the Canadian Petroleum Association, stressed that Amoco's Canadian petroleum exploration was not shortchanged by the payment, which followed smaller ones under anti-inflation rules.

This year, Amoco is re-investing more than 109 per cent of its cash flow into energy development, borrowing money beyond the available cash flow.

Financial companies want to see a dividend record and Amoco intends to keep paying dividends, he said.

"We don't have anything to hide.

"It's all on the public record in the first place . . . and we're proud of what we've done.

"We've been here in business since about 1948 and in that period we've grown to be the second largest gas producer and the sixth largest oil producer."

A recently-issued study by the federal energy department said oil companies last year paid 22.3 per cent of their net income in dividends, compared with 43.3 per cent for 17 other industrial groups. Highest was communications, in which 71.2 per cent of net income was paid out in dividends.

company reports

Ogilvie Mills

Ogilvie Mills Ltd. has reported its profit for the six months ended Oct. 31, 1979, rose to $9.9 million, or $3.19 a share, from $6.3 million, or $2.03 a share, for the same period last year. Ogilvie said the increased earnings reflect an improvement in all its operations, including Ault, IGP, Catelli and its flour division.

Chieftain

Chieftain Development Co. Ltd. Thursday declared the 13th dividend on its nine-per-cent cumulative redeemable convertible second preferred shares 1976 series.

The dividend, approved by company directors at a recent meeting, is $1.125 a share payable Jan. 15 to holders of preferred shares of record Dec. 31. It covers the period from Oct. 16, 1979, to Jan. 15, 1980. Adjustments will be made to avoid payment of any fraction of a cent.

Canadian Pacific

Canadian Pacific Investments Ltd. Thursday declared a final 80-cent dividend on all outstanding common shares to be paid Jan. 28, 1980 to shareholders of record by Dec. 28.

Total year-end dividends during 1979 were $1.45 per share, compared to 79 cents in 1978.

A company statement said dividends in 1980 would be paid quarterly.

Corporate future may be written in the stars

NEW YORK (UPI) — First there was the corporate "shrink." Now comes the age of the corporate astrologer whom bosses can call on not only to solve sticky personnel problems, but also to aid them in making major business decisions.

One of this new breed, Jeff Jawer, 33, advises, among other businesses, a firm that publishes a stockmarket newsletter, an Atlanta-based commodities firm, a sporting goods store and the makers of a cigarette paper.

Besides doing astrological charts of individual employees to determine who should be doing what, and when, Jawer also does them for the company as a whole to determine whether it's time to diversify, sell, hire or fire.

"Yes, you can do a horoscope for a business," the Atlanta-based astrologer said. "You can do charts for rocks, animals, chairs, anything."

Jawer passed an 8-hour exam for a license to practice astrology in Atlanta — the only city in the United States where such a certificate is required.

Lately he has been busy traveling around the country selling an astrological computer that he helped develop. "It's not meant to replace professional astrologers," Jawer said, "but to bridge the gap between them and the newspaper horoscopes, which are most general."

An astrologer can provide several services for a business, Jawer said.

"Part of it involves personnel," he said. "You serve as a sort of corporate psychologist. You can do a character analysis: An employee might be perfectly qualified for a position, but is it the right time in his life to make such a move? Are two employees compatible?

"And then you can provide service for the employees acting as a sort of in-house 'shrink.'"

Then there are the corporate horoscopes that can be based on incorporation dates, certain significant agreements, or even the date of a first sale. "You can do several charts and decide which one looks like a company."

Using that date as a base point and tracing the movement of the planets, one might determine that now is "a good time to launch a new product or to build a new plant," Jawer said.

Jawer earned a degree in the "History and Science of Astrology" at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst under a program that allows students to design their own majors. His adviser was a classics professor.

The trim, bearded astrologer said he first became interested in his field at college when his marriage to a Libra was breaking up and someone did a chart for him. "It was fascinating and it explained a lot to me (a Taurus) about the relationship I had with my ex-wife."

Jawer firmly believes astrology can be used to provide guidance for individuals, relationships, companies, cities and even international politics.

Economic climate not any worse

LONDON (CP) — Canada's economic climate is no worse than it has been in various periods in the past says Malcolm Urquhart, economics professor at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont.

Urquhart, visiting professor of Canadian studies at Edinburgh University, said in a speech at Canada House on Thursday that Canada, like the governments of many other countries, "is a victim of our general lack of understanding of how to cope with simultaneous inflation and unemployment."

"The ineffectiveness of public policy for coping with the problems of inflation and unemployment is no different from the ineffectiveness of public policy to deal with unemployment in the 1930s or of the policies of the 1880s and 1890s to deal with the problems at that time."

"I do not see much difference between grounds for uneasiness at the present time and those that have occurred at other times in Canada's history, apart from the special problem arising from the aspirations of the Parti Quebecois in the province of Quebec."

Serious economic frictions in federal-provincial relations have been a feature of the 1970s.

"We need time to digest the especially rapid expansion of the government role of the past 10 years and perhaps even to reassess its scope," Urquhart said.

Describing the current federal government dispute with Alberta over who should receive the province's public oil revenues as "still a hot issue," Urquhart said "it's time to examine the federal government belief that increased provincial autonomy threatens Ottawa's stability to manage the economy."

business briefs

Gulf announces merger

CALGARY (CP) — Gulf Canada Ltd. has announced the completion of a merger between Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum Ltd. and Gulf Canada Western Ltd.

Under the amalgamation agreement shareholders of Amalgamated Bonanza hold exchangeable redeemable special shares in the new company, Gulf Canada Royalite Ltd. They have until Jan. 11 to either exchange the shares for Gulf Canada Ltd. common shares on the basis one Gulf Canada common share for each 2.82 former common shares of Amalgamated Bonanza or receive $30 for each of the special shares.

Dome buys Beaufort interest

CALGARY (CP) — Dome Petroleum Ltd. has announced it has exercised its right to purchase a 3.5-percent working interest in 2.9 million acres in the Beaufort Sea from Columbia Gas Development of Canada for $50 million.

The interest had been sold to Overseas Petroleum Corp., a Japanese company, for $50 million but under the terms of an agreement between Columbia and Dome, Columbia was required to offer the interest to Dome at the same price.

A Dome spokesman said the company decided to purchase the interest because it feels it is worth substantially more than the price paid.

Royal halts small loans

MONTREAL (CP) — Royal Trust, Canada's largest trust company, says it has closed down its small loans operation following reports on illegal high interest rates.

Federal insurance branch spokesman Keith Bell said in a local CBC radio interview earlier this week that Royal Trust is not licensed under the Small Loans Act to charge interest of more than 12 per cent a year on a loan of $1,500 or less.

Neither are some other Canadian trust companies, credit unions, financial companies and caisse populaires.

"We have to withdraw from that segment of the business, $1,500 and below, until such time as we can clarify our position relative to a license," John Pritchard, Royal Trust's assistant vice-president responsible for consumer credit, said in a following interview.

"Certainly, we don't like the uncomfortable feeling of being possibly on the wrong side of the legislation," Pritchard said.

Legislation making it illegal to charge more than 12 per cent without a special license has been in effect since 1940.

Some major trust companies and most credit unions have not bothered to apply for the special license, or have not yet received one.

Mideast debts written off

VANCOUVER (CP) — A local company has written off $5.4 million in debts owed to it by a former construction partner in the Middle East.

Directors of Great West Steel Ltd. decided Nov. 28 that the debt owed by Rashid Construction and General Transportation Co. of Abu Dhabi is uncollectable.

The two companies had formed a joint venture in 1975 to build an $11 million hotel and marina in Abu Dhabi. The development was to be owned by the oil-rich Abu Dhabi government and operated by Meridien, the hotel subsidiary of Air France.

SKY JEWELS

This Christmas do something traditional.

Teppanyaki instead of turkey? Why not? It's still traditional. In a centuries-old ritual, your personal chef will grace the festive board with tender, flavorful Japanese-style steak. Or exquisitely seasoned shrimp, lobster and chicken.

For your holiday entertaining or an office get-together, we can arrange special appetizers or you can order complete Japanese Village Teppanyaki meals at prices ranging from $8.95 each. For everything. Special dinner selections and prices on request.

Japanese Village Teppanyaki.

Let us add a little ah-so to the old ho-ho-ho.

BCR, unions agree — on strike notice

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — B.C. Railway and the Joint Counil of Rail Unions announced Saturday that the union has agreed to give the railway at least 48 hours notice before taking any strike action.

Joint council chairman Norm Farley said this move will allow the railway to lift its embargo on movement of perishable goods, livestock and explosives and to rescind layoff notices given to 60 Teamsters Union members employed by B.C. Rail.

Earlier this week, the railway lifted its embargo on chemicals and liquid petroleum products.

Talks are continuing in Vancouver in an effort to end the current contract dispute. The seven unions of the joint council are in a legal position to strike at any time, but BCR officials say the railway is operating normally.

One of the major issues in the negotiations is retroactive pay. The railway has offered an 11.5-per-cent wage increase over 29 months, effective Jan. 1. The previous contract expired July 31 and the unions want retroactive pay to that date.

Farley said the company's offer is "sick in view of the rate of inflation."

He did not give any details of union wage demands, but said workers need increases relative to the cost of living. Shopcraft employees at the railway now earn $10.18 an hour.

Meanwhile, the railway continued to experience problems with mud on a troublesome strip of track between Prince George and the Northwood pulp mill just outside the city.

A B.C. Rail spokesman said a small section of the track was covered by a mudslide Saturday morning, but was cleared later in the day.

The railway announced two weeks ago that it planned to build a steel bridge on a concrete foundation to eliminate closures and derailments caused by mudslides. The line has been shut down a number of times by slides. Seven butane tanker cars were pushed off the track by mud last month.

Lord's Day Act decision reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Decision has been reserved in B.C. Supreme Court on whether the city of Vancouver can enforce the Lord's Day Act by suspending the licence of Harry Hammer's Warehouse business.

The one-week suspension has been stayed pending a ruling by Justice J. G. Gould.

Lawyer Scott Stewart, representing Shelmar Furniture Ltd. which operates The Warehouse, said the city acted illegally in adopting a resolution recommending the suspension.

The resolution was adopted in August after the attorney-general declined to grant the city a fiat, or the authority, to prosecute under the Lord's Day Act.

Stewart said the resolution is illegal because it trys to enforce a federal statute the city cannot enforce without the fiat.

He said the city has no power to regulate Sunday shopping hours, and is using its licensing function to regulate its view of public morality.

City counsel Terry Bland agreed that council has no power to regulate Sunday openings or enforce the Lord's Day Act, but said council has the power under its charter to suspend the licence of a business which admits violating the act.

He said council did not suspend the licence to regulate Sundays or enforce the act, but because the violation of the act was viewed as a gross misconduct.

Bland said the average businessman would assume that the Lord's Day Act was in effect, and would obey the law, so that by violating the act, Hammer "was gaining an unfair advantage over his competitors."

He said council was trying to prevent such unfair competition.

Small-dam hydro advocated

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada should consider developing small-scale hydro-electric plants, federal Environment Minister John Fraser said in a prepared speech.

Fraser said the "low-head" dams and generating plants, which have a comparatively small body of water behind them, could produce cheap energy and would cause little damage to the environment.

"Studies made in the U.S. have turned up no less than 50,000 suitable low-head sites and in Canada we can figure on at least 5,000," he said in a speech to the Association of Professional Engineers Friday.

He said the government has looked at low-head sites on Vancouver Island, but potential damage to fish stocks or the cost of distributing the small power output has stood in the way of development.

ARSON IS SUSPECTED after two-ton van owned by Simpsons-Sears caught fire at rear of Hillside store Sunday noon. A small grey car was seen speeding from the scene before firemen arrived to find the blazing truck backed into a loading dock. A rear wall was blackened and smoke got into the store but fire was confined to the truck. Damage was estimated at $5,000. (John McKay photo).

DC-9 tail drops off on takeoff

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — A Republic Airlines DC-9 with 26 persons aboard was forced to make an emergency landing at Memphis International Airport on Sunday after the jetliner lost its tailcone.

The damaged aircraft landed safely, and there were no injuries.

"The DC-9 was departing on runway 17-left, taking off to the south," said Jack Barker, a U.S. Federal Aviation Administration official in Atlanta. "Just as it started to take off, it lost the tail cone . . . and the aircraft returned and landed without incident."

Flight 148 originated in Memphis and was bound for Atlanta with 22 passengers and a crew of four aboard, Barker said.

The FAA spokesman said tailcones have been known to blow off before.

"It's very rare but it happens," he said. "The tailcone itself is not anything that contributes to flying safety. You might liken it to a fender on a car."

Terrorist bombs maim 9 in Rome

ROME (Reuter) — Nine persons, including two Canadian tourists, were injured late Sunday when two bombs went off in crowded streets in central Rome, police said.

The two Canadians were identified by police as Auguste Kenneth, 22, and James Theodore Neal, 37. Their hometowns were not available.

Police said they were not severely injured, but the exact nature of their injuries were not disclosed. Hospital sources said both would be in hospital about eight days.

The seven other victims included four Italians, a West German priest and two Maltese citizens.

Two of the Italians, a middle age couple, were the most severely injured. Hospital sources said they suffered multiple fractures and severe cuts.

Police said the blasts appeared to be timed to cause the maximum number of casualties. They exploded in the middle of the evening when the area is customarily crowded with strollers.

The first bomb exploded outside and Italian bank, but caused no casualties, police said. The second, more powerful bomb, went off a few minutes later outside the Philippine Airlines office about a block away.

The second blast shattered windows and doors in the Philippine Airlines office as well as that of British Airways. Several nearby shops and offices were also damaged.

Offices of Pan American Airways and Israel's El Al Airlines are also located on the same block, but did not sustain any damage.

Soon after the blasts, a group calling itself the New Armenian Resistance Movement claimed responsibility in a telephone call to Reuters news agency.

The caller, speaking English, said the offices of British Airways and El Al had been attacked "in our fight against Turkish fascism and world imperialism."

"We are sorry for the innocent victims," the caller said.

In early November, another Armenian nationalist group claimed responsibility for bomb attacks on the offices of Turkish Airways in Rome and Milan.

Iran's other ethnic-minority regions — is regarded by most observers as the strongest threat to Khomeini since he took power last February after the revolution that ousted Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Khomeini, in a broadcast statement on the Turkish minority troubles, said: "These acts are committed by plotters who receive their orders from America and elsewhere."

In New York, a UN spokesman said Waldheim had been told by Ghotbzadeh that "neutral observers" would be allowed to visit the hostages. No further details were given.

But in remarks quoted by Tehran Radio, the foreign minister showed no sign of fulfilling his promise of Friday to allow neutral observers to see the hostages.

There has also been silence on his suggestion that hostages "not knowingly involved in espionage" might be released.

In Washington, presidential adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said the Carter administration expects the international community gradually to increase economic pressure on Iran. U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance will be in Western Europe this week trying to marshal support for future U.S. or multinational efforts to pressure Iran to release the hostages.

Speaking in Paris today, Vance lashed out at Japanese oil companies and banks for sending "ambiguous signals" to Iran by buying high-priced boycotted oil and easing the effects of a freeze on Iranian assets.

The sudden criticizm is a turnabout, since the Carter administration has insisted publicly that the U.S. is receiving strong support from its allies.

But Foreign Minister Ghotbzadeh said Sunday his country can withstand economic pressures.

"We can get practically anything anywhere on the face of the earth except the United States," Ghotbzadeh said in a television interview relayed from Tehran. "We don't worry about it at all. We can buy essentials around the world."

In The Hague, the International Court of Justice, began a public hearing today on a U.S. suit against Iran for breaking treaty provisions.

U.S. Attorney-General Benjamin Civiletti made an impassioned plea to the court of to help save the American hostages from their "illegal and inhuman" imprisonment.

"I address this court with awe and restrained anger because 50 of my countrymen are in peril of their lives and are suffering as I speak," he declared.

Civiletti spoke before a packed courtroom, the only empty seats being a row set aside for the Iranian delegation. Iran has boycotted the proceedings.

Auto plows into backhoe

An 18-year-old motorist is in serious condition after a collision today between his truck and a backhoe tractor on the Pat Bay Highway at Elk Lake.

Saanich police appealed for witnesses to the crash at 8:45 a.m. in the southbound lane.

Douglas Brent Johnson, of 5506 Alderly, received head injuries and was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The backhoe was driven by Kenneth Downie, 23, of 240 Simcoe, who was not injured.

In case you're wondering

The logistics of running a big hotel like the Empress must be staggering. Somebody once said that operating a major hotel is just like running a small town. How true is this?

It's pretty close. There's enough going on at the Empress to keep 75 people busy cleaning and moving the equipment around.

The hotel employs 400 people during the peak tourist season.

The Empress is a big operation but few of the guests who sleep, dine and drink there have any idea what goes on hehind the scenes.

Take the cutlery alone. On peak days, a total of 25,215 pieces may go through the dishwasher.

This means in a week, 176,505 pieces are washed and moved about.

Other items, such as sugar bowls and trays, total about 1,732.

The dishwasher is also kept busy each day cleaning 16,407 pieces of glassware and 21,872 pieces of chinaware.

The linen closets scattered about the hotel are filled and emptied daily.

In one day, the hotel may go through 4,163 tablecloths and napkins, 2,008 blankets, 9,600 sheets, 4,500 pillow slips and 19,800 towels and wash cloths.

Dirty linen is sent to a laundry.

Losses of cutlery and linen are usually the result of wear and tear and theft isn't a major factor.

But dishwashers are hard on glasses and chinaware and it doesn't take much to pop a glass subjected to intense heat, Forks, knives and spoons in time become battered and wear out.

In the old days, all of the hotel's washing was done by hand and the cutlery lasted longer.

But the modern mechanical dishwashers have a big advantage over the old handwashing method — they're much more sanitary.

New biography's author:

Carr collection is 'badly overpriced'

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The author of a new biography of Emily Carr says a collection of 27 paintings by the Victoria artist now for sale in Vancouver should be acquired by the government.

But at $1,250,000, says Maria Tippett, it's badly overpriced.

Tippett said the entire group is not worth the average price of $46,000.

She said several of the canvases are superb paintings and worth that much, but the oils on paper, which Carr did as quick sketches on the spot to assist in painting larger canvases in her studio, are worth probably around $25,000.

Emily Carr: a Biography is selling well, even with the competition from Doris Shadbolt's $40 coffee table book on Carr's paintings. The first edition of the Tippett book, 7,500 copies by Oxford press, has been sold out and the book is going into a second printing, the author said.

Carr herself would probaby be appalled at the prices her paintings now bring at auctions, she added.

"She would hate the fact that her paintings are selling for millions. That wasn't the point. She wanted her paintings to be accessible to people."

(Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe says an offer was made Thursday but refused to give details.

(He said the offer is contingent on the participation of an anonymous Victoria woman who is offering $700,000 to the province for the purchase, provided she gets to keep one of the paintings.)

Few paintings

Tippett said the Fannin Hall collection, which Vancouver businessman George Clark has put on the market, is valuable for the several paintings from Emily Carr's two years in France before the First World War.

There are few of her paintings from this period in the two major public collections, at the National Gallery in Ottawa and the Provincial Archives of B.C.

The archives has a good representation of Carr's early work on Indian themes while the National Gallery has more from her later years after she had abandoned native motifs and painted trees and forest settings.

"It would fill the gap," said Tippett.

Her book is the first full-scale biography of Carr, and it contains much new material.

Tippett spent years researching the book, travelling to San Francisco, England and France, the Queen Charlotte Islands and places in northern B.C. where Emily Carr had been with her paints and sketchpad.

"There's so much that's new," she says.

Biography in scribblers

An unknown autobiography, written by Emily in three scribblers, was found in the national archives in Ottawa and Tippett found the original casebooks of the sanatorium in England where she was treated.

She says it is a controversial book, particularly for the emphasis she gives to an incident early in Emily's adolescence which turned her against her father, Richard Carr.

Until then, at age 12 or 13, she had been his favorite child of the four Carr sisters and young Dick, a brother.

He was apparently trying to instruct Emily in the facts of life, but according to Tippett, in the telling something happened which forever after made the artist remember him as "a cross, gouty, sexy old man who hurt and disgusted" her.

He spoiled "all the loveliness of life with that bestial brutalness of explanation, filling me with horror instead of gently explaining the glorious beauty of reproduction, the holiness and joy," Emily wrote.

It was an incident she related to no one until a few years before her death in 1945, but Tippett says it is important in understanding her character and development as an artist.

Portrait of Emily Carr by Nan Lawson

She says the memory of it figured strongly in Emily Carr's devastating nervous breakdowns — previously described as physical illnesses — in England and France before the First World War.

New facets of her character also come out in the book.

"Emily was really very much a Victorian upper middle class lady," says Tippett, but very independent-minded.

Tippett portrays her, too, as something of a snob who had definite opinions of people she considered of a lower social class. Although unconventional in many respects, the author found that, sadly, Emily held the conventional racist views of the day on oriental immigrants.

Myths brushed away

Tippett's book also brushes away other myths that surround the Carr legend.

She was not quite as poor as she portrayed herself. Tippett discovered in 1908 she had bought eight lots in the Hastings townsite in east Vancouver, and later sold them just before the First World War for a healthy profit.

The idea of Emily Carr and the Indians also undergoes re-analysis. She has been portrayed as an indomitable traveller who was fearless in seeking out new Indian subjects for canvases, although Tippett points out that except once, she always went with a white companion.

But she emerges as a stronger figure than ever in Tippett's re-examination. She calls her an "icon for British Columbians" — with Tom Thomson, one of the greatest Canadian artists of this century.

"She knew she was great. She never had a doubt. She had this inner strength," says Tippett. But she also knew if she admitted it, she would stop growing as an artist. Carr progressed and kept getting better as she grew older.

She was 56 when she was introduced to the Group of Seven, notes Tippett. It was a pivotal moment and exhibitions in eastern Canada brought her national fame.

She found new energy to paint, and she worked on Indian totems for several more years, until Lawren Harris of the Group of Seven told her she was repeating herself.

Then Carr turned to the trees and forest, the paintings for which she is best known. "She did her best painting in her 60s," says Tippett.

She taught British Columbians how to really see the forest that surrounds them.

"Carr thrust us into the middle of this jungular growth. She sorted it all out. She showed us the rhythm of the undergrowth. She showed us the rhythm of the great elephant-legged cedars.

"They certainly stand out as icons."

Marina manager fields fire curves

The manager of Canoe Cove Marina at Curteis Point in North Saanich — thrown a few curves by the municipal fire inspector last week — did some fielding today.

John Simson, who has managed the 400-berth marina for the past four years, agreed with a few points raised in fire inspector Ed Banas' report to council, but challenged others.

In his blistering three-page report dated Dec. 4, Banas says his recommendations should be given "immediate attention."

According to Banas, the recommendations in his report were suggested in a fire marshal's report in August, 1973, in a fire chief's report in May, 1974 and in the fire-prevention officer's reports of June, 1977 and August, 1978.

Canoe Cove Marina Ltd. is currently campaigning to drum up popular support for its marina and residential expansion plans.

The marina wants to add 160 berths and build six homes an acre on 36 of its 43.2 acres.

The report, which Banas says resulted from a routine inspection, says overhead wiring along floats is dangerous and poses a threat to life safety.

Replies manager Simson: "A lot of the wiring looks bad, but it isn't. It meets the code."

The report also says main floats do not meet the minimum requirements of North Saanich Bylaw 194 for fire extinguishers and says some extinguishers have gone 16 months since servicing, are not the correct type and are less than adequate for a boat fire.

Simson says: "I know that all the extinguishers were put out within the last year, so they would be up to date."

Some of the report's observations centre on the fact that access to the marina floats is hampered whenever a truck parks to discharge fuel.

While Simson agrees traffic has to go around the truck when it's there, access isn't totally restricted for the 15 or 20 minutes it takes to complete its delivery.

The report also calls for no smoking signs at the tank truck discharge station.

No argument, says Simson adding he doesn't disagree that the trees and bushes around and over the tank should be cut back about three metres from the concrete dyke that surrounds the fuel tanks.

As for the entire boat storage and repair areas being a high fire hazard area, Simson is baffled.

The very nature of boats and boat repairs dictates that there will be oil drums and large timbers lying around, he said.

Simson said that a suggestion for more fire buckets loaded with sand is fine, but people keep stealing the buckets.

"We would like to develop a plan that is compatible to the marina and with the municipality," Simson said.

North Saanich Mayor Eric Sherwood said Saturday the marina has offered to clean up its act if council allowed it to proceed with its development.

"I say clean it up anyway," Sherwood said.

Burn victim in stable condition

A 30-year-old man believed soaked in gasoline Saturday was in serious but stable condition at Victoria General Hospital today with burns to 50 per cent of his body.

Colwood RCMP said his clothes caught fire when he ran from a house at 251 Helmcken at 7:30 p.m.

Police withheld the man's name.

$8,000 damage in fire

A fire in a dry cleaning shop that destroyed $8,000 worth of clothing Saturday may have been caused by spontaneous combustion of cleaning mops.

The blaze in Individual Dry Cleaners, 1602 Fort, was spotted by a passing motorist who sounded the alarm.

An investigation showed the fire broke out in a container used for mops and rags and spread to a door, wall and ceiling.

In another weekend incident, Victoria fire captain Stan Gow, attending a car fire at the Inner Harbor, was taken to hospital with torn ligaments after stepping from a truck onto a curb.

No chimney problems in Victoria: fire chief

Victoria hasn't experienced any problems with the steel chimneys banned by the provincial fire commissoner on Friday, Fire Chief Eric Simmons said today.

Simmons said the fire commissioner's order leaves local fire departments hanging, not knowing what to do about chimneys already in place.

Victoria-area fire chiefs met this morning to discuss the problem.

Oak Bay Ald. Peter Bunn, a contractor for many years and chairman of Oak Bay's fire prevention committee, said he and Fire Chief Fred Leak have been telling residents for some time not to install the factory-built chimneys.

The chimneys are all right "if used exactly according to Hoyle. They're fine if they're properly used, installed and conscientiously maintained. But this doesn't happen," said Bunn.

He and the chief have managed to convince people not to use them by "gentle persuasion.

"The manufacture of these articles leaves a lot to be desired," he added.

Bunn said there are 55 or 60 dwellings in Oak Bay with factory-made chimneys. He said he's concerned about their use elsewhere.

He said consumers who don't understand the technology have them installed and then use long-burning pressed sawdust logs or coal, which generate heat higher than what the chimneys are designed for.

Wes Klassen, manager of the Victoria Fireplace Shop, said the fire commissioner was overreacting to the situation. The chimneys are safe if properly installed and maintained, he claimed.

"They're tested. It's not just something that somebody has dreamed up. It's basically a matter of making sure they're cleaned regularly."

Homeowners should open up the dampers on the stove once a day and let it burn hot.

"It would help to prevent a buildup or creosote." There are also types of chimney brushes which can prevent creosote buildup by scratching away most of the gummy black deposits.

Another dealer, who did not want to be identified, said part of the problem is in faulty installation by homeowners trying to save a few bucks by cutting corners.

"Half of these guys don't get permits."

The building code requires stainless steel chimneys outside a house and galvanized inside, but some people are using galvanized throughout.

"People go cheap," he said.

"I think the main problem with this is that people don't know how to use it. It's ignorance on the public's part."

The pipe itself is safe, but some do-it-yourselfers ignore warnings to handle it carefully.

"We tell people don't drop the pipe or dent it. It's like a watch — you've got to take care of it."

Do's and don'ts

The fire commissioner's office in Vanouver has issued a list of precautions for people who have freestanding steel chimneys, steel chimneys inside masonry and fireplace inserts already in place:

—Inspect and clean them frequently. "This may be weekly in some cases." Check for corrosion along the length of the pipe.

—Examine pipe for damage — do not use warped sections.

—Woodstoves used with fireplace inserts tend to overheat the mantel and surrounding woodwork. Check carefully for heat buildup.

—Avoid daily use. Keep fires small.

No coat of arms prize

The winner of a coat of arms design competition sponsored by Saanich won't get a prize but will have the satisfaction of a place in municipal history.

Only a tiny municipal seal adorns its stationary, so Saanich council thought a coat of arms would add prestige.

Council decided on the competition after rejecting one of two designs submitted earlier this year by a municipal staff member, one containing the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, the other a daffodil.

Rules are fairly simple: the design must have a shield containing the original Saanich shield, there must be a helmet on top of the shield, a frilly decorative piece on top of the helmet and a motto in English or Latin.

The coat of arms must also be representative of the municipality in some way.

The simpler the design the better, because elaborate drawings cost more to reproduce.

The new coat of arms will replace the seal on stationary, be seen on municipal police cars and hang above the mayor's chair.

The competition ends Jan. 18.

Victoria and Esquimalt both have coats of arms.

Highways walkout to LRB

A wildcat walkout by 70 Langford and Colwood highways ministry employees continued today as the dispute went before the Labor Relations Board.

The board began a hearing in Vancouver this morning into an application from the government for a back-to-work order.

The sign shop and yard employees walked off the job at noon Thursday in protest against the cancellation of an employee's appointment with his doctor.

Meetings were held Friday between representatives of the Government Employee Relations Bureau, the B.C. Government Employees Union, the highways ministry and the LRB but no solution was reached.

At one stage the employees said they wouldn't go back until supervisor Arnie Davies was removed from his job.

However, a union spokesman said they later agreed to go back to work providing management wouldn't discipline anyone for the illegal walkout but that management wouldn't provide that commitment.

The employees walked off the job Thursday because they said Davies had, the day before, cancelled a 1:30 p.m. doctor's appointment for employee John Whittaker.

Whittaker was to have been examined as part of a Workers' Compensation Board claim.

A ministry spokesman said Davies hadn't cancelled the appointment but had only phoned the doctor to see if the time could be switched until after Whittaker's shift was finished at 3 p.m.

The doctor's receptionist somehow must have intepreted that request as a cancellation.

Bastion presents gift ideas

The Bastion Theatre is getting into the Christmas trade with items for those who have run out of ideas for gifts.

Promotions manager Stephen Gentles suggests a couple of stocking-stuffer ideas.One is the Bastion Theatre T-shirts that sell for $5 and come in all sizes ranging from children to extra large adults.

Another suggestion is the pedestal-style red and green coffee mugs, enscribed with the Bastion Theatre logo, that are priced at $3:50.

The theatre is presenting Life With Father at the McPherson Playhouse from Dec. 21 to Jan 5 and Gentles suggests picking up extra tickets for friends may solve the present-giving problem.

The show's designer is Arthur Penson, who began his career as a designer of the same show in Victoria 14 years ago. Since then he has done designing for shows all over the world, including the Abbey Theatre in Dublin.

Penson's original designs will also be sold at the theatre's office at 1002 Wharf Street from Dec. 14 to the end of the show.

Color sketches, measuring 12 by 14 inches, will be priced at $40 while pencil sketches, 10 by 12 inches in size, will be sold at $10.

Another gift idea, Gentles says, is a Bastion Theatre gift certificate, which can be picked up at the office or McPherson Playhouse. The recipients can then make reservations for the date and show of their choice.

There are also open-dated subscriptions which cover six admissions to any of the four plays left in the season. These cost $35 for adults and $20 for students and senior citizens.

Safe development in Arctic queried

By AB KENT

Arctic development is outstripping scientific support for the safe use of northern resources, says a proposal by Pat Bay researchers to the federal treasury board.

The warning is contained in a paper prepared at the Institute of Ocean Sciences on the kind of ships needed for research in the area.

Dr. Alan Cornford, staff officer to the director-general, said the paper outlines the need for hydrographic, ocean science and sea ice information in view of the risk to property and environment through mining, oil and gas drilling and petroleum transportation.

The Pat Bay proposal calls for five years of field work covering the southern part of the Northwest Passage, Lancaster Sound, Davis Strait, Sverdrup Basin and the Beaufort Sea.

It would include possible pipeline crossings of Barrow Strait and Coronation Gulf, and generally provide information to allow the Arctic to develop and prosper, the paper suggests.

"The pace of economic developments now in motion has overtaken the ability of ocean and aquatic sciences to provide supporting services in sufficient time to ensure a safe and orderly use of these northern seas," the paper said.

A second submission to treasury board involves other research conducted by the institute and urges that work be carried out in conjunction with the Canadian climate program of the Atomospheric Environment Service.

"It is more and more apparent that climate is changing, and with desertification and drought conditions in places like the Sehal and California, the differences and extremes in weather like the heavy snow in November in Buffalo, N.Y., the crop failures and poor yields in Russia, the drought in Europe, spring floods and early winter in Canada, the consequences of weather are very dramatic," Cornford said.

The study notes a strong link between ocean and atmosphere with the result that the Pacific has a direct influence on North American weather.

The paper urges more research of physical oceanography such as the heat exchange between ocean and atmosphere, chemical oceanography through carbon dioxide transfer, and biological relationships involving physical processes and the food chain.

Little is known of offshore ocean circulation, and a study initiated by IOS last year off Vancouver Island should be expanded, the report urges.

The Americans are making a study similar to the IOS offshore surveys now in progress, but on a grander scale involving the coastline from California north to Washington.

Canadian research should be done in co-operation with U.S. work, Cornford said.

Lupul shows scoring touch, but Canucks drop two decisions

Rockies believe after stunning win

Times News Services

First-year Colorado coach Don Cherry had plenty of reason to be pleased after a four-goal outburst in 4:53 midway through the third period Sunday night lifted the Rockies to a stunning 7-5 National Hockey League victory over Montreal Canadiens. And in Montreal!

"We've won three in a row on the road — that's not bad is it?" Cherry asked. "It's the style we're playing. The style and goaltending — we've been getting great goaltending."

Rockies' netminder Hardy Astrom faced 41 shots while the Rockies had 32 at Michel Larocque, the Canadiens goalie who was on his own most of the third period.

Randy Pierce's second goal of the game at 8:45 of the final period tied it 4-4, and Wilf Paiement's second of the night at 9:37 put the Rockies ahead to stay. Ron Delorme scored at 10:30, and Don Saleski fired Colorado's last goal at 13:38.

By that time, a Montreal Forum crowd of 15,789 was thoroughly disgusted with the Canadiens' effort and was cheering the Rockies, now with an 8-15-3 record.

The Rockies' showing was enough to send Cherry's thoughts back to his days as coach of Boston Bruins.

"There's a little bit of Bruins in these guys.

"These guys come into this building and they think they're beaten. I talked to them between the second and third period and told them they had to believe they could win. I convinced them, but I didn't quite convince myself."

By game's end, when the Rockies got a hand leaving the ice, even Cherry was a believer.

While the Rockies were enjoying their glory in Montreal, sudden gloom hit Vancouver Canucks after they appeared to be on their way to a victory over the Bruins in Boston.

Peter McNab's second and third goals of the game, 16 seconds apart in the third period, and an empty-net goal by Rick Middleton lifted Boston to a 5-3 victory over Vancouver.

The Bruins trailed 3-1 midway through the final period when McNab set up Al Secord for a goal at 10:51. Then McNab fired a 40-footer for his 13th goal of the season to tie the game at 11:07, and he added the game winner at 11:23. Middleton's 10th of the season came at 19:14.

The Boston explosion came after rookie Gary Lupul had given Vancouver a two-goal lead, setting up Don Lever's score and getting a goal of his own in the second period.

Lupul, the former Victoria Cougar who had started the season with Dallas in the Central League, also counted a goal in his first NHL start — Saturday's 5-1 loss to the Red Wings in Detroit.

Elsewhere Sunday, Philadelphia Flyers extended their unbeaten streak to 24 games with a 4-4 draw with Chicago Black Hawks, Quebec Nordiques edged Los Angeles Kings 3-2, Atlanta Flames squeaked past Winnipeg Jets 5-4, New York Rangers shaded New York Islanders 5-4 and Edmonton Oilers blanked Hartford Whalers 3-0.

Off the ice, the weekend's big news was Barclay Plager's resignation as coach of the St. Louis Blues.

Plager, declaring "I am not getting the best out of the team," announced his resignation a few hours before the Blues stepped on the ice and scored a 5-1 victory over Washington Capitals.

Earlier, club publicist Susie Mathieu said the resignation apparently was related to recent health problems that had sent Plager, 38, to hospital for 10 days last month. Doctors believed the problem stemmed from a head injury Plager sustained during his playing days.

Plager, however, ruled out health as the reason.

The Blues had lost four consecutive games going into Saturday's game.

Plager, who was offered an undisclosed position in the club organization, said he will take several weeks off before deciding whether to accept.

Red Berenson, the club's assistant coach under Plager, will take over the head coaching duties on an interim basis with a permanent replacement to be named this week.

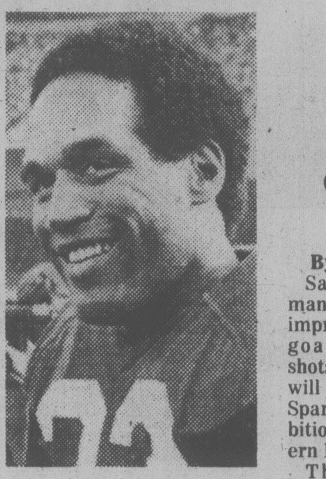
For brief moment like old O.J. days



O. J. SIMPSON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For one brief, shining moment it was like the good old days. The fans were cheering and O.J. Simpson was running for daylight.

And then the deja vu ended and Simpson trotted off the field at Candlestick Park for the last time. The greatest National Football League runner of his time was no more in the city where he first gained fame as a high school star.

Simpson's return to the place of his birth two years ago from the Buffalo Bills had been anything but bright. His team, the San Francisco 49ers, won only four games in two seasons. His body, aging at 32, betrayed him with a slow comeback from knee surgery and a separated shoulder. His personal life, formerly storybook, became tragic, with the death of a young daughter following the breakup of his marriage.

But on Sunday, while formally announcing his retirement from pro football after next week's final game at Atlanta, he was on top again, if only briefly.

"Over the years I've heard your applause and appreciated your cheers," he told spectators fans before the game against Tampa Bay. "I already know that's what I'm going to miss the most."

As he has since early November, Simpson began his last home game on the bench, watching Paul Hofer run in his place. Then, early in the second half, Hofer got hurt and Simpson got his chance.

But even then, he gained just 26 yards as the Niners, as they have all year, moved the ball in the air, this time on the way to a rare, 23-7 victory.

With 1:31 left in the game, San Francisco got the ball back on its own 31. In came O.J.

Snap went the ball to quarterback Steve DeBerg. A pitchout went to Simpson and off went the O.J. of old.

He started off tackle and then cut to the outside, gaining 17 yards and even giving a hint of going all the way, before being pushed out of bounds by Curtis Jordan.

Simpson cracked a huge grin and loped off the field, waving his arms to the cheering crowd and embracing his clubmates when they engulfed him.

"I think we all felt great," said Al Cowlings, a childhood friend and team-mate of O.J.'s since grade school. "He's such a class guy. What more can you say?"

It's all in the wrists, and skating, passing

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Saturday's lessons were many but the one that most impressed Victoria Cougar goaltenders were wrist shots. And one crying shame will probably follow Moscow Spartak's artistic 14-3 exhibition romp over the Western Hockey League power:

The hockey-playing youngsters among the Memorial Arena audience of 5,123 will probably continue to polish the slap-shot and ignore the wrist shot.

Spartak, the third-place team in the Soviet Union's first division, did many things well. They accentuated possession, were awesome in clinging to discipline and positions, skated and passed as well as any club team can skate and pass.

They also embarassed Victoria netminders Kevin Eastman and Grant Fuhr. The blushes were not caused by overpowering shots from canons but by slick, quick-as-a-wink wrist shots. Good, sometimes sneaky, but always infinitely accurate.

"They're not used to seeing wrist shots," said Cougar coach Jack Shupe. On Saturday, "they" were Eastman and Fuhr but the assessment could be passed along to virtually any young Canadian netminder.

"They don't know when it's coming," continued Shupe. "They don't know what it is because they never see one. They're all ready for the big warning swing of a slap shot."

All but two of Spartak's goals were from direct wrist shots. One of the two can be suspect because it was a nifty deflection of a slapper from a point.

Both Eastman and Fuhr, the WHL's leaders, were handled equally by the powerful Russians — conceding seven goals apiece.

Spartak was a treat to watch, and it is not very often one can say that he enjoyed a game which wound up with an 11-goal difference. But that was the case Saturday. Obviously, many fans were impressed because about half of the sellout crowd that remained until the final whistle rose to render the Russians a well-deserved ovation.

While Spartak's shooting and passing was deadly, Cougars experienced technical difficulty with the Soviets' "circle-the-wagons" style in the offensive zone.

"That's their style," said New Westminster coach Ernie McLean, who took his team to the world junior tournament a few years ago and must send the Bruins against Spartak in Vancouver tonight.

"When they start moving that puck," said Ernie, "you never chase the guy with the puck. You have to watch the man without the puck."

Ain't it the truth, agreed Shupe.

"I told my players to cut off the trailer," said Shupe. "They didn't do it. I don't know how many times we had all five of our men back in our zone, but the Russians still would up with three-on-two breaks.

"But how are you going to beat them by watching? And that is exactly what my players did. They enjoyed watching because they certainly didn't do any checking."

Torrie Robertson scored two of the three goals and, along with Mark Morrison and Bob Smith, provided Victoria with its most dangerous line.

Alexander Yakushev, the former national star, played only the first period and a portion of the second. The 32-year-old, still an impressive figure, picked up a pair of assists before retiring early in the second period. He was taken ill before the game.

Spartak's assistant coach, Igor Dmitriv thought "Victoria showed character by fighting to the very end." He also thought Victoria "played very well in the attacking zone" but diplomatically ignored comment on Cougars' defensive efforts.

"EXCUSE ME" might be logical offering but Victoria winger Greg Adams (18) is more concerned with puck's position than politeness after checking Moscow Spartak netminder Yuri Novikov (30) during Saturday's hockey exhibition at Memorial Arena. (Alex Barta photo).

Rams seventh title record as NFL playoff list grows

By The Associated Press

A month ago, Los Angeles Rams were struggling. Their record had slipped to 5-6, they had fallen out of first place and their chances of winning the National Football Conference West Division title appeared dim.

What a difference a month can make.

Now, after four consecutive victories, including Sunday's 34-13 romp over Atlanta Falcons, the Rams again are kings of the NFC West for a record seventh time.

Although the Rams have dominated the division in recent years, they never have won the NFL's biggest prize — the Super Bowl.

While the Rams were dreaming about Super Bowl miracles, five other teams joined them and Philadelphia — which clinched last week — in the playoffs.

Miami Dolphins, the Cinderella team of 1972 when they finished 17-0, clinched the American Football Conference East title with a 28-10 victory over Detroit Lions, while second-place New England were losing to New York Jets 27-26.

San Diego Chargers, the AFC West leaders, clinched at least a wild-card playoff position by walloping New Orleans Saints 35-0.

Pittsburgh Steelers, 11-3, and Houston Oilers, 10-4, who play tonight in Houston, moved into the playoffs when Cleveland Browns were beaten by Oakland 19-14 as the Raiders kept alive their hopes.

Denver has a 10-5 record and Cleveland and Oakland each are 9-6 in the battle for the final playoff spot. Broncos finish at San Diego on Dec. 17 in a showdown for the AFC West title. Cleveland winds up Sunday at Cincinnati and Oakland entertains Seattle.

In the NFC, Washington Redskins joined Dallas and Philadelphia atop the East at 10-5 apiece, defeating Cincinnati 28-14. Dallas clinched at least a wild-card berth Saturday with a 24-17 triumph over Philadelphia.

Chicago tied Tampa Bay for first place in the Central Division at 9-6 by edging Green Bay Packers 15-14 while the Buccaneers were upset by San Francisco '49ers 23-7.

Chicago, Tampa Bay and Washington have shots at the two remaining playoff spots in the NFC. Chicago entertains St. Louis, Tampa Bay is home to Kansas City, and Washington plays at Dallas in their final games.

In the weekend's other games, Seattle overcame Denver 28-23, St. Louis Cardinals topped New York Giants 29-20, Minnesota Vikings defeated Buffalo Bills 10-3 and Kansas City Chiefs downed Baltimore Colts 10-7.

Los Angeles put the game away with 28 points in the second quarter, including three touchdowns in less than five minutes.

New York, humiliated by New England 56-3 earlier in the season, got revenge by by knocking the Patriots out of playoffs on Dave Jacobs's 25-yard field goal.

Dan Fouts passed for 253 yards — giving him 3,852 for the season, 155 yards short of Joe Namath's NFL record of 4,007 — and one touchdown in San Diego's rout of New Orleans.

Jim Zorn's 43-yard touchdown strike to Steve Largent with 1:40 to play Saturday lifted Seattle over Denver. Earlier, Zorn hit Largent with a 35-yard TD pass and Sherman Smith ran for two Seattle scores.

Power play, Fuhr help Cougars to seventh

Victoria Cougars are off to a good start on their 10-game road trip through Western Hockey League centres.

Rebounding smartly from Saturday's 14-3 exhibition beating at the hands of Moscow Spartak in Memorial Arena, the Cougars cashed in again on their impressive power play and the defensive steadiness of rookie netminder Grant Fuhr to edge the Breakers 3-2 in Seattle Sunday.

It was the seventh straight league victory for the West Division-leading Cougars, who now head for Calgary and a Tuesday evening date with the Eastern Division-leading Wranglers.

Wingers Greg Adams and Bob Jansch, both extending their individual scoring streaks to 10 games, got the Cougars started with a pair of first-period power-play goals. Rookie Randy Zinn scored what proved to be the winner in the second. It was only the third goal of the season for Zinn, but his second game-winner.

Victoria, achieving success in over 33 per cent of their manpower situations, now have scored 53 power-play goals in their 26 games.

The Cougars opened impressively, out-shooting Seattle 27-10 in the opening period for a 2-1 lead. Only the brilliant netminder of Breakers' Ken Hodge prevented Cougars from wrapping it up in the first 20 minutes.

Breakers, who have dealt Victoria three of its five defeats, bounced back strongly in the final two periods but their hopes of a comeback were stymied by Fuhr's steadiness.

Cougars headed for Calgary today without five players. Jansch, Barry Pederson, Greg Palmer, Mark Robinson and Tony Feltrin have been recruited by New Westminster for the Bruins game tonight in Vancouver against Spartak. All five will fly to Calgary Tuesday in time to rejoin their mates for the game with the Wranglers.

The Bruins came up smiling Sunday, finally. Powered by Anthony McMurchy's three goals, the Bruins defeated Billings Bighorns 4-1 to record their first home-ice victory this season.

The Bruins tied a league record of 13 consecutive losses at home Friday with a 5-4 loss to Portland Winter Hawks.

Breath-taker rescues Gowsell

EDMONTON (CP) — Paul Gowsell, the talented maverick skip from Calgary, may never completely win the hearts of Canadian curlingdom but he picked up a few converts Sunday night when he stayed alive in the World Open Tournament of Champions cash bonspiel with a breath-taking shot.

Gowsell eliminated former world champion Hec Gervais of St. Albert, Alta., from the $65,000 bonspiel 9-8 in an extra end, produced when Gowsell tied up the score with two points on his last rock of the 10th.

After coming back from a four-point deficit in the early going, Gervais, who lost to defending champion Gowsell in the semifinal last year, seemed to have the game sewn up, with a rock in the four-foot circle and another at the front of the house, both counters. Gowsell, with only his last rock to come, had a rock biting the 12-foot beside the Gervais stone.

But with his skip rock he took out Gervais' second shot-rock and raised his own onto Gervais' counter in the four-foot, knocking both out of the house while keeping in his two stones.

The extra end seemed anti-climactic as Gowsell stole the win when Gervais' last rock rolled out after a take-out.

Robb King of Edmonton, a two-time Canadian junior champion, stretched his bonspiel unbeaten streak to six games with a 7-5 victory over Tom Reed of Edmonton.

Ron Northcott of Calgary won the right to meet King today for a berth in the semi-final by defeating Edmonton's Paul Devlin 6-5 in the extra end.

Earlier Sunday, Devlin eliminated John Dracke of Stockholm, Sweden, in the final game of the triple-knockout qualifying round. The Dracke rink finished with a 3-3 mark.

Along with Gervais, the Edmonton rink of Vic Wintoniak was knocked out by Gerry Wilson of Edmonton in an 8-6 decision.

Orest Meleschuk of Winnipeg lost 5-4 to Ray Tull's Calgary rink while Al Edwards' Edmonton squad lost 11-6 to fellow Edmontonian Bryan Bygrave to be eliminated from further competition.

Stan Lyell of Saskatoon edged Ken Ursuliak of Edmonton 10-9 and Bernie Sparkes of Vancouver defeated unbeaten Ed Lukowich's Calgary rink 7-3 to remain in the A section. Ursuliak, Lukowich, Tull and Bygrave continue in the B championship round.

The Steve Skillings rink of Victoria was eliminated Saturday.

Soviets top world gym meet as U.S. men prove surprise

FORT WORTH, Tex. (Reuter) — The Soviet Union won more than twice as many medals as the next-ranked country, the United States, in the world gymnastics championships, marred by several illnesses, including that of Nadia Comaneci, and numerous protests.

The Soviets took 16 medals, including the world championships of Alexandre Ditiatin and Nelli Kim plus the gold team medal. This was their revenge against the Japanese, reigning team champions in all major international gymnastics events for the last 20 years.

Although they did not win any medals, the Canadian women's team was 10th and the men's team 11th, qualifying both for next summer's Olympic Games in Moscow.

Top Canadians were Philip Delasalle of Victoria, 12th in the all-round men's individual competition and Elfi Schlagel of Toronto, 28th in women's all-round individuals.

"The top eight gymnasts in each division vied for gold medals in individual events Sunday.

Ditiatin saved the championship for the Soviets after the defender, Nikolai Andrianov, failed to qualify.

Kurt Thomas of the U.S. took the silver over-all men's medal, only three-tenths of a point behind Ditiatin. Russia's Alexandre Tkachev took the bronze and Bart Conner of the United States placed fifth.

Thomas earned gold medals in the floor exercise and the horizontal bar and silvers in the pommel horse and parallel bars Sunday.

Ditiatin collected first places in the rings and vault.

Conner won a gold medal in the parallel bars.

The other gold medal was won by Hungary's Zoltan Magyar in the pommel horse, an event he has won every year since 1973.

Thomas scored 9.9s on the horizontal bar and the floor exercises. He had to share the floor exercise gold medal with East Germany's Rudolph Bruckner. Bruckner's performance, not as spectacular as Thomas's, drew boos when it was announced he also was marked 9.9.

The performance by the two Americans brightened the U.S. hopes for the 1980 Olympics in Moscow.

In women's competition Sunday, Romania's Dumitrita Turner took the gold medal in the vault with the silver going to Stella Zakharova of the Soviet Union. Tied for the bronze were Kim, the world's champion, and Steffi Kraker of East Germany.

China's Yanhong Ma and East Germany's Maxi Gnauck tied for the gold medal in the uneven bars. Emilia Eberle of Romania took the bronze.

On the balance beam, Vera Cerna of Czechoslovakia took the gold. Kim won the silver and Regina Grabolle of Czechoslovakia earned the bronze.

Eberle of Romania took the gold in the floor exercises. Kim won her third medal of the night, a silver. Melita Ruhn received the bronze, helping Romania tie the Soviet Union for the most amount of women's event medals.

Kim expressed complaints which many officials and spectators shared. "The emphasis now is so much on acrobatics that beauty and grace are lost," she said.

The Soviets were edged out of their women's team championship by Romania, even without Comaneci. The Romanian is recovering from surgery on her abcessed left hand and is to be released from her hospital — against the advice of her two local doctors — to fly home with her team.

Comaneci will have a rubber drain pipe coming out of her open incision made in the operation Saturday, and her hand will be in a light splint. She also is suffering cellulitis, a painful inflammation of connective tissues.

Italy withdrew its entire team early in the tournament, in protest.

There were many protests against scores, not only by team officials but also by the crowd which frequently jeered scores as too low.

The Romanian coach, Bela Karoly, put in six complaints about his women's team scores in one night alone. He added, "It's a real pity that the Chinese women were scored so far below their level."

Even so, the Chinese women finished a strong fourth behind the Romanian gold team, the Soviets with silver and the East Germans' bronze.

The Peking men placed fifth all around, earning entry for both teams in the 1980 Moscow Olympics for the first time.

The Chinese wowed the crowd with their aerial stunts although much smoothness and elegance was sacrificed, especially by the men.

The U.S. men took six medals, the second greatest number after the Soviets. Defending champion Japan managed only one medal as did the East German men, the other top team finishers.

Frost's four help put chill on Gulls

LAKE COWICHAN — Lake Cowichan Baird's Trucking picked up its third win in 20 starts by blasting Juan de Fuca Gulls 9-3 in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B". Hockey League game Saturday at Lake Cowichan Arena.

Robbie Frost fired four goals to spark Truckers, who held period leads of 3-2 and 6-3. Tim White, Daryle Carpentier, Grant Toporowski, Al Lawrence and Gary Matson added singles for the Lake Cowichan club while Dave Kjolberg, Guy Moran and Dan Houston replied for Gulls.

Mike Spiteri of Juan de Fuca was the busiest goaltender with 42 saves and Scott Hornbrook blocked 29 shots on the Lake Cowichan net.

Test cricket match ends in draw

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — The second cricket test between India and Pakistan ended in a draw Sunday but it was a close finish with the Indians coming within 27 runs of victory.

Chasing 390 to win, India was 364 for six at the close, a score based on an unbeaten 146 by Dilip Vengsarkar, who was chosen as man-of-the-match. His fourth wicket stand of 118 with Yashpal Sharma, who made 60, occupied three hours, but during it Pakistan slowed down its overs rate.

India needed 114 for a win when the mandatory 20 overs started, with the target looking within India's reach.

However, the fall of two more wickets checked its advance and skipper Sunil Gavaskar settled for a draw. "It was a fair result," he said later.

Mills takes hoop post

VANCOUVER — John Mills, who coached Vancouver College Fighting Irish for the past five years, is the B.C. Basketball Association's new provincial development co-ordinator.

He succeeds John Olsen, the Victoria-based executive who resigned in July after 7½ years in order to venture into commercial fishing.

A former national team player, Mills will continue efforts to promote and develop the sport in B.C.

Honolulu marathon mark broken

HONOLULU (Reuter) — Dean Matthews, running his third marathon, won the seventh annual Honolulu Marathon on Sunday with a record time of two hours, 16 minutes and 12 seconds.

Matthews, a college student from South Carolina, led more than 7,000 runners over the 26-mile, 385-yard course on a hot, humid day, shaving almost a minute off the previous record.

American Frank Shorter, the 1972 Olympic gold medallist, was second in 2:17:50. He was followed by Ron Tabbs, 2:17:59; Mike Layman, 2:20.00; Daniel Cloeter and Don Kardong, both 2:22:30; all from the U.S.

Patti Lyons of Massachusetts was the first woman finisher for the second straight year, in 2:40:04.

Leif takes new route to first pro triumph

VAIL, Colo. (Reuter) — Leif Agren of Sweden scored his first victory in three years on the world professional ski circuit Sunday when all his opponents were disqualified or injured in the slalom event of a $50,000 competition.

In the opening rounds of the slalom event, Agren, 26, met American Greg Jones who was disqualified. Then Geoff Bruce of Buffalo, N.Y., dropped out with a knee injury.

Agren reached the semi-finals when Juan Oliveri of Argentina was disqualified, as was his next opponent, Jim Bergh of the United States.

For the first time in his prof career, Agren was in the final where he beat Othmar Kirchmair of Austria — again on a disqualification.

Agren won $6,750 while Kirchmair collected $3,750.

Andre Arnold, two-time world professional champion from Austria, beat Bergh for third place to collect $2,750.

On Saturday, Claude Perrot of France won the giant slalom. It was the first victory for Perrot, a slalom specialist, in his four-year pro career. He defeated Peter Dodge of the U.S in the final round.

American Stephan Heinzch defeated Juan Oliveiri of Argentina to take third.

LAFIT PINCAY
. . . top money-winner

Pincay rides over $8 million barrier

NEW YORK (AP) — Laffit Pincay broke the $8 million barrier Sunday by winning the fourth race at Aqueduct on Raymond Z.

The win in the $12,000 maiden claiming race was worth $7,200 and increased the 32-year-old Panamanian's purse total for the year to $8,007,080.

The former single-year money record for a jockey was $6,188,353 set last year by Darrel McHargue. The first $6 million jockey was Steve Cauthen, in 1977.

"This is how I wanted to get it ... on a winner," said Pincay. "I didn't want second money. I wanted all of it."

Pincay's history-making victory was Pincay's 410th of the year and came one race after he finished third on Master A.J. to earn $1,680.

Pincay has been the leading rider at every race meet he has competed in this season — Santa Anita, Hollywood Park, Del Mar, Belmont and now Aqueduct.

Based on the normal 10 percent that a jockey receives from his mount's winnings, he has collected more than $800,000 this year.

In addition to his record purse money in 1979, he became only the ninth jockey to win 4,000 career races when he scored aboard My Daughter Cuca in the ninth at Aqueduct Nov. 19 and he is second only to Bill Shoemaker in total purse money with about $48.5 million.

Previously, he won the Eclipse Award as the top jockey in 1971, 1973 and 1974, he was the nation's leading money winning jockey for five straight years, 1970-74, and he was elected to racing's Hall of Fame in 1974.

Rick Ley injured

HARTFORD (AP) — Hartford Whalers of the National Hockey League have reported that team captain Rick Ley suffered a slight bone fracture in his left foot during practice and would be out of action for eight to 10 days.

Province handed list of concerns

VANCOUVER (CP) — Reduction of the provincial government's share of the pari-mutuel handle, more funds for incentive programs and Sunday racing were among concerns of horsemen appearing before the government's horse racing study committee.

Although submissions were presented Friday and Saturday by people representing different segments of the industry, the committee was told greater co-operation is needed from government if racing is to survive in British Columbia.

"There is only one partner not pulling his weight in this outfit — and that's the government," said Ken O'Connell, president of The Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association.

Last year the mutuel takeout was reduced to 17 per cent from 18 per cent but the industry recommended that the government's share be reduced by an additional two per cent to put B.C. on a par with Alberta.

When the takeout was reduced last year, one half of the one per cent of the handle was allocated to a breeders' incentive fund. The industry said it wants that increased by one per cent.

Sunday racing was viewed by the industry as a way of expanding and reaching new fans.

Mark Krasnick, chairman of the committee, said he expects recommendations to be made by the end of January.

Birdie on last hole decides golf crown

Times News Services

Dave Eichelberger and Murle Breer birdied their way back from an over-par start to a 20-under, 268 finish Sunday and a one-stroke victory in the mixed teams golf tournament at Largo, Fla.

Breer sunk a 12-foot birdie putt on the final hole to avoid a sudden-death playoff in the 72-hole event. The team won $72,000.

One stroke back in the neck-and-neck chase were early leaders Jim Colbert and Silvia Bertolaccini with a 19-under 269, worth $26,600 apiece.

Alone in third place were Dave Stockton and Donna Caponi Young, two shots back to split a team prize of $27,200 in the $400,000 event.

Of her winning putt, Breer said: "I just wanted to get the putter on the ball that last hole. I just can't believe it."

Added Eichelberger with a grin: "A mere tap-in. I felt she was going to make it. In fact, I knew she would. I was saying to myself, 'Just one more putt, Murle, that's all we need.'"

Fifty teams competed under a no-cut rule which kept all the players in the tournament and guaranteed each a cash prize.

Saturday, in Johannesburg, South Africa, a double-bogey on the 18th by Ian Mosey of Britain handed veteran South African Gary Player his country's Open championship for the 12th time.

Mosey went to the final tee 10 shots under, with Player already in the clubhouse with a nine-under-par total of 279, after a final-round, six-under 66. But on the par-four 18th, Mosey drove into the rough and then took three putts for a six.

Borg does it again

Times News Services

Sweden's Bjorn Borg defeated Jimmy Connors of the United States 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4 Sunday to win the World Championship Tennis Challenge Cup before a full house of 5,500 at Maurice Richard Arena in Montreal.

With the victory, Borg completed a perfect week, winning five matches to earn $180,000, including $100,000 in the winner-take-all final.

Borg and Connors emerged from an eight-man, split-round-robin tournament and advanced to the final after difficult semifinal victories Saturday. Borg beat a scrappy Tim Gullikson of the U.S. 6-3, 6-2, and Connors downed Chile's Hans Gildemeister 4-6, 6-0, 6-3.

Borg and Connors both posted 3-0 records for $30,000 in preliminary play and earned $50,000 apiece for their semi-final triumphs.

After an intense first set which took almost an hour to complete, Borg took command in the second set of the final, winning 11 straight points after 15-all in the fourth game to take a 5-1 lead.

Connors, who has not beaten Borg in their last six matches, recovered in the third set, attacking ferociously and taking advantage of Borg's lapses but the Swede regained his composure and form in the deciding fourth set.

Cuevas keeps title

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jose (Pipino) Cuevas of Mexico City stopped Angel Espada of Puerto Rico in the 10th round to retain his World Boxing Association welterweight championship after a rugged battle Saturday night.

Cuevas, who weighed 146 pounds, knocked down Espada, 144½, at 1:18 of the 10th round in the scheduled 15-rounder before referee Jerry Smith halted the fight with Cuevas pounding Espada, 31.

The 21-year-old Cuevas opened a cut over Espada's right eye and had it bleeding badly in the seventh. Then he switched to a body attack in the eighth and ninth to slow the challenger.

It was his 11th successful defence.

Cuevas earned $100,000 plus expenses.

Eight titles for B.C. skaters

COQUITLAM (CP) — Contestants from British Columbia continued their domination of the Western Canada figure skating championships during the final day Saturday, but an improved Alberta contingent made it close.

Skaters from B.C. won six of the 10 events contested, plus the senior pairs and ice dancing, each of which had only a single entry.

Alberta, led by Kathryn Osterberg, 14, of Calgary who took the senior women's crown, won the other four titles and Saskatchewan skaters were shut out.

Osterberg, the youngest skater in the event, held on to win in a three-way battle with Sandra Leighton, 17, of Richmond, who placed second, and Heather Anderson of North Vancouver.

Anderson won the figures section, Leighton the compulsory short program and Osterberg the long free skate section.

The first four finishers in each event except senior progress to the Canadian championships at Kitchener, Ont. next month. Only the top three in senior competition move on.

Dennis Coi, 18, of Vancouver, who has been compared to former Canadian champion Toller Cranston in his approach to the sport, won the senior men's title with a comfortable margin over Henri April, 21, of the host club although he had to come from behind a deficit in the school figures.

Todd Zaharko of the host club hurdled from fifth in the school figures to win the novice men's title with a sizzling free-skating exhibition that won first-place votes from all judges.

James Ptycia of Calgary, who held a comfortable lead in the figures, could do no better than seventh in the free-skate section and wound up third behind Darryl Clark, 16, of Courtenay.

A bid by Lisa Niddery, 15, of Coquitlam, to overtake early leader Helena Cusworth of Calgary in the novice women's event fell short by the narrowest of margins. Niddery outpointed Cusworth 77.82 to 77.39 but had to settle for the silver medal on ordinals.

The junior men's event was a B.C. sweep as Neil Peterson, 15, of North Vancouver overcame a fourth placing in figures with solid performances in the compulsory short and free skate programs to edge Neil Giroday, 18, of Powell River.

Leonard Warkentin, 18, of Vancouver, was third and Brad MacLean, 16, of Port Moody, finished fourth.

Kerry Smith, 16, of Calgary, won the junior women's event over Andrea Hall, 16, of Surrey while Susy Heatherington of Victoria, who led after compulsory figures, dropped to third.

Tracy Wilson, 18, of Port Moody and Mark Stokes, 18, of Delta defeated Tracy Michael, 15, of Coquitlam, and Kerry Spong, 19, of North Vancouver, to take the junior ice dancing event.

Towhees make Islanders work

Nanaimo Islanders, ranked No. 2 in the province, came through as expected Saturday but George Vanier Towhees of Courtenay continued to gain greater respect in high school boys' basketball circles.

Nanaimo defeated the Courtenay team 68-57 in the championship final of the Belmont tournament Saturday. The Towhees, who handled Victoria High Totems and Cowichan Thunderbirds in impressive fashion earlier, made Islanders work.

Vanier's Brent Daniels was named the tournament's most-valuable performer.

Port Alberni Chieftans edged Cowichan 88-86 in the consolation final. During championship semi-finals earlier in the day.

Flyers retain Island crown

Lansdowne Flyers continue to reign over Vancouver Island junior high school girls' volleyball.

Flyers, winning 12 of 14 games, won the Island crown for the fifth successive year Saturday.

Oak Bay finished second in the eight-team, round-robin tournament with an 11-3 record while Central (10-4) was third.

Rudolph's real 'his-tor-eee'

NEW YORK (AP) — Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer was easily the worst song ever written when lyrics met notes more than 30 years ago. Or so the author says.

But, fortunately for him and for more than a generation of Christmas memories, he wrote it again the next year, assuring it a place among the most recorded songs in history.

Johnny Marks created the tune about the animal with the glowing proboscis 30 years ago, and has heard his little ditty echoed in more than 500 renditions since.

"It has been said that Rudolph is the most recorded song since Jingle Bells," the 70-year-old Marks said in a recent interview.

Marks made a demonstration tape and sent copies of the song to the day's leading singers, including Gene Autry, who considered the song but then dismissed it. It wasn't really the kind of tune one would expect from the "Singing Cowboy," Marks remembers thinking.

But Autry's wife was enchanted by the song, and he agreed to record it on the B or second side of a disc. The record was released Sept. 15, 1949, and Rudolph was a hit by Oct. 1.

Messiah's superb, again

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Probably because it is a work written in a euphoric state of faith by a man at the summit of his creative genius, George Frederic Handel's Messiah is music incapable of producing ennui.

No matter how many performances — providing they are of reasonable quality — one has heard, this is music that never fails to stir the emotions and lift the spirit.

No Christmas season, it seems, is really quite the same without hearing a live performance of the Messiah and this year's offering is, in many respects, a fine one.

The Victoria Symphony, with the Amity Singers as guests and Canada's eminent choral conductor, Elmer Iseler, directing, gave the first of two performances Sunday. Soloists are soprano Ingrid Suderman, mezzo-soprano Phyllis Mailing, tenor John Keane and baritone Bernard Turgeon.

There are probably almost as many views about tempos in conducting the oratorio as there are notes in the score — from the rapid tempos preferred by Sir Thomas Beecham to tiny variations that nevertheless effect noticeable differences in the performance.

Some of Iseler's tempos, particularly so in the first half, appeared enough on the slow side to impede the sense of progression, the onward flow. In the ecstatic chorus, "For unto us a Child is born" the strings seemed to labor in coping with the held-back tempo.

The second half was much different. Spirited tempos prevailed; in fact, to a degree of virtuosity in such choruses as "All we like sheep" and "Who is the King of Glory?

It is difficult, as the chorus is situated in the Royal, upstage well behind the orchestra, to achieve a completely satisfactory balance but Amity, its numbers increased with a few voices from the University Chamber Singers and prepared by Edward Norman, produce a lovely, refined and smoothly blended sound. They are minutely responsive to Iseler's authoritative but sensitive direction; attack and release are incisive, dynamics well handled and articulation excellent.

Instrumentally the small orchestra (scaled to match the original production) was precisely right — except for the aforementioned unavoidable imbalances. The pastoral symphony and much more showed a high level of competence generally, and there were outstanding moments throughout.

Quality of the soloists is of a kind to crown this presentation with some distinction. The warm, glowing soprano of Suderman is illumined with imagination; tenderly lyrical in "Come unto Him" and a soaring declamation of faith in "I know that my Redeemer liveth".

The opulent resonance of Turgeon enriches "But who may abide", is flexible and thrilling in the virtuosic "Why do the nations" and, with trumpeter Louis Ranger as a superb partner, full and rich in the great aria, "The trumpet shall sound".

A clear cool tenor voice, technically well supported, is revealed by Keane in the opening aria, "Every valley" and his phrasing in "Behold and see" is masterly.

When a singer whom one has so often greatly admired does less than one expects, it is fair to speculate that an indisposition may be involved. Mailing has given superb performances in the past but on this occasion the familiar vibrancy, the warm resonance is altogether lacking. The voice had a blurred quality at Sunday's performance. Hopefully she will be in her usual fine form tonight when the Messiah is repeated.

A Detroit cabdriver who had given a ride to a 61-year-old stroke victim seized her wheelchair because she could not pay all of her $3 fare. Isabell Woodson said driver David Walter took her to her doctor's office and became angry when she could only pay $2 of a $3 fare. "I said I don't have $3 but I have $2 and I'll give you the rest if you'll take me to the bank," said Mrs. Woodson, who lives in a senior-citizens' housing project. Walter wheeled her into the office, forced her out of the chair, then folded it up and carried it away. Walter has been reprimanded and given time off work, said a cab company spokesman — who added that Walter was told by a guard at the woman's building that she "does this all the time."

"I should have had more faith," said Iris Morley after a New York taxicab driver turned in her husband's missing $33,000 coin collection. Her husband Tom should have, too. Hours after Morley left New York for a flight home to Florida, cab driver Mike Konaplanik turned in the rare coins in the small brown cardboard box that Morley had left on the backseat of his taxi the day before. Morley, meanwhile, had given up and left for home.

You've heard of Rose Kennedy, pencil-thin and black-haired at 89, slightly quavery aristocratic voice, often described as "matriarch." You've heard of Lillian Carter, 81 and white-haired, southern accent, sometimes called "outspoken." Now meet Bernice Brown, 71 and proud of it, as professional a campaigner as any of them, making her 1979 debut on the campaign trail. "Since Rose is campaigning for Teddy and Lillian is campaigning for Jimmy I think Jerry Brown's mom ought to campaign for Jerry," she said firmly.

Mary Martin, 66, is not one to sit around and watch the years go by. "I'm shocked when I realize that I did South Pacific 30 years ago," she says. "Shocked because I still think and feel as if I were 19."

A fired Heublein Inc. executive who has won a $452,000 age discrimination damage payment now is demanding the firm give him a high level job and pay $200,000. Lawyers for Eugene Goodman, 57, of Baltimore, said the $200,000 requested for legal fees would equal the amount paid to Heublein lawyer Jay Siegel.

Dear Abby:

Last year you printed a letter from a young lady who was discouraged about the attitude of family and friends about Christmas. She said all they thought about was presents and big dinners, so she considered taking a room in a hotel for the day, but it was too costly.

It was a very fine column. Please print it again.

V.L.H.

Dear V.:

Here it is:

Dear Abby:

I'm having a hard time deciding what to do for Christmas. I live about 40 miles from my parents' home, but I don't want to go home for Christmas because it is a depressing time for me. My parents go to church regularly, but they don't act like good Christians. All Christmas means to them is a pretty tree, lots of presents and good food. But it means so much more to me.

I don't want to stay where I live because the people I live with have the same attitude about Christmas. It's all presents and food. Most of my friends are expecting a gift from me and I can't afford any.

I was thinking of leaving town for the day, but I can't afford a hotel room.

Can you give me some advice on what to do? I hate this time of year. It's so depressing!

Young and Unhappy

Dear Young:

Get in touch with a nursing home, a veterans' hospital or a children's institution, and offer to visit those who have no one to visit them. You don't need to bring presents. Just bring a cheerful attitude, a happy face and a willingness to listen and chat awhile.

Offer to write letters, read, make a phone call or run an errand.

When you do something for someone else, it's impossible to feel depressed. Try it; it really works. Then write to me and tell me what kind of Christmas you had. I care.

Dear Abby:

As the Christmas season nears, please allow me to share an idea for one of the best presents I've ever received.

I'm in the armed forces, stationed in Cyprus. For Christmas last year my mother promised me a parcel of goodies every month!

It doesn't take much time or money, and it's greatly appreciated all through the year. I'd recommend this as a really terrific Christmas gift to any soldier (or student) away from home.

N.S.

Dear N.S.:

Thanks for a practical suggestion.

Winning a lapel badge from the head-hunters

We were trolling near Shelter Point about eight o'clock on one of those endless-seeming July evenings when Win's rod-top gave a premonitory dip.

"Fish?" I asked.

Next second, the question was answered in graphic fashion. The rod danced in its holder, line peeled off the reel, and a silvery shape boiled through the surface 100 feet astern.

Win, wearing the familiar look of delight mingled with terror which her face assumes when a salmon is in play, worked her coho to the boat. I netted it and swung it on board, a slim six-pounder which we duly admired, then transferred to our baby-bath — the universal fish-box of Pacific Northwest small boaters.

It wasn't until later, when I'd flopped Win's coho on to the cleaning table at the Rod and Reel Marina, that I noticed something unusual about that fish. The fatty little adipose fin just forward of the tail, an appendage of no more use to a fish than an appendix is to the human frame, had been neatly trimmed away. By the manner in which the skin had mended smoothly over the incision, I judged the fin had been snipped off a number of months earlier.

"Hey," I said to Win, "you've got a marked fish!"

For a number of years now, the fisheries section of Environment Canada has made a practice of tagging both hatchery-reared and wild smolts before returning them to their native streams. The tag consists of a coded wire "button" rather less than the size of a pinhead, implanted in the fish's nose. Since even the keenest human eye can't detect the presence of this tag, fin-clipping is resorted to as a ready means of identifying marked salmon.

Through its tagging and recovery program, fisheries hopes to learn much about the movements of the young fish: notably, their travel routes and their rate of growth.

Coho salmon aren't the only fish tagged. The larger Chinooks and the sea-going rainbow trout we call steelhead also receive the treatment as part of the federal Salmonid Enhancement program. A marked head constitutes a ticket in a draw held by fisheries eight times a year for a top prize of $500, and six $50 prizes.

So we turned Win's fish-head in at the marina, which serves as a collection depot for the recovery program, and forgot about it until a large brown-paper envelope from fisheries arrived in the mail.

By that time, dark November was on the land, and those heavenly July evenings afloat on sunset-painted waters were only a distant memory.

Win opened her envelope. She hadn't won a prize, but the department thanked her handsomely for aiding its program by turning in the head, and also enclosed a list of release-points covering both United States and British Columbia streams. A coded slip was also enclosed, so that Win's coho could be traced to its home river.

From this, we learned that the lively coho taken at the top of the Strait of Georgia in July of 1979 was one of 90,520 younglings tagged at the Big Qualicum River rearing channels in May of 1977. Obviously the coho had found good feeding in its 50-mile journey north along the strait from its release-point. From a few ounces, it had grown in two years and a couple of months to a rangy six-pounds-plus.

The envelope held another enclosure. This was a neat bronze lapel button with a fish's head stamped on it, and "Salmonid Enhancement" scrolled around its rim. Win promptly secured the button to the collar of her fishing jacket.

"You don't have one!" she crowed.

I covet a button like that for my own jacket, and will try hard to catch a fin-clipped salmon when the time of long evenings and balmy airs returns.

Leg cramps mean blood flow short

By DR. L.L. COLEMAN

When I walk more than a few blocks I get sudden, terrible cramps in my right leg. If I rest for a minute or two, I can start to walk again. This cycle happens again and again. What can I do about it?

Mr. D.V.

Dear Mr. V:

The condition you describe is known as "intermittent claudication." Just as you describe it, there is a sudden, severe, cramp-like pain in the muscles of the leg which makes it impossible to continue to walk. After a minute or two, the spasm disappears.

Almost always, this is due to some deficit in the blood supply to the legs. Arteriosclerotic changes in the blood vessels may diminish the flow of blood. The cramp-like sensation is the cry of the legs for rest. The more advanced the arteriosclerosis, the more frequent is the muscle spasm and the longer is its duration.

You did not say in your letter if you are a cigarette smoker. If you are, it is absolutely essential that you stop smoking completely and immediately. There is a condition known as "thromboangiitis obliterans" which can produce your exact symptom and which is definitely related to tobacco.

Examination can readily determine if there is a deficiency of blood circulating in the leg. Numerous instruments have been devised to test the free flow of blood below the knee and around the feet and ankles. The pulse beat in the feet is an excellent indication of the free flow of arterial blood.

Great surgical advances have been made for the relief of claudication in very advanced cases.

Your immediate job is to work with your doctor and try to track down the cause of your problem.

Dear Doctor:

I've been told that syphilis cannot occur in people past the age of 40. Is this true?

Mr. S.J.

Dear Mr. J.:

The homemade scientist who told you that should become editor-in-chief of the Journal of Ignorance. There is no age, no sex, no race and no social or economic level that can be immune from syphilis. When direct contact is made with a person who is infected with syphilis, the germ can infect anyone.

Despite all educational campaigns, syphilis still remains one of the great plagues of mankind. Present-day sexual promiscuity is responsible for the fact that syphilis now exists in epidemic and pandemic proportions.

Speaking of Your Health: Fingernail polish can often be the unsuspected culprit in an allergy causing swelling of eyelids.

Bye Baby Bunting quilter's delight

quilting

The latest highly informative book (soft-cover) by prolific quilting author Jean Dubois, Bye Baby Bunting, features patterns by Jean's mother-in-law, Mrs. William Dubois of Cheyenne, Wyoming.

During 1937, Mrs. William Dubois, a jigsaw puzzle fanatic, was "enjoying" a period of ill health by making a quilt top a month. She sent them down the street to be quilted professionally by a series of quilters, as no one quilter could keep up with her.

Among the quilts made during the year, the Gingham Dog (similar to Roosevelt's dog, Fala), and the Calico Cat were favorites.

You may already be familiar with these patterns if you are a student of quilting history. They never seem to go out of style, though they were at their most popular during the Thirties.

They can be used separately, or together, and their bright colors can be mixed and matched to go with almost any decor. Because of the curved lines, these are patterns of choice for lovers of applique. You may enjoy making these gay little creatures come alive by using a zigzag sewing machine, or if you are one of those people who prefer quiet handwork, you will find these patterns equally appealing.

Jean mentions that her family quilts were completed with the use of a Feather Wreath in the alternate blocks. The gingham plaid differed in each block, with the blocks being set diagonally with alternating setting squares in plain colors.

The feather wreath is an ideal quilting stitch design to use for the plain blocks when they are used with appliqued ones. Because it is so appealing to the eye and may be quilted in a colored quilting thread to match the applique, it is a pattern you should have in your collection, ready to use in any number of ways.

A quilting stencil is a boon for tracing this design onto plain fabric. The way it works is this: using a broken off sewing machine needle, (its end is larger than a regular needle), run the plastic sheet with the printed design through the machine — this leaves holes in the plastic along the design lines. Now place the stencil on top of the block you wish to mark. Using chalk or light pencil (or the new erasable, flet Chacopa pen), mark along the lines, transferring the marks to the fabric. Since you can see through the quilting stencil, you are sure you are marking accurately.

If your fabric is light, you can probably see the design right through the cloth. Another method is to tape the design onto a window, place the cloth on top and trace. Made of Mylar, these plastic stencils will last a long time.

Another quilt in the By Baby Bunting collection is Anne Orr's Bunny Carriage Quilt. Along with the pattern, the book tells you something about the designer's background, how the design as created, and how best to execute it — terrific for both beginner and expert alike. While Anne Orr is best know for her "square" designs, you'll find her bunny quilt delightful, and just in time for completion before the Easter season.

Other items included in Jean's book are a Whale quilt, Ship quilt, Alphabet quilts, and a Happy Faces (Indian children) quilt.

Patterns available: Bye Baby Bunting, booklet by Jean Dubois, $6.20. Feather Wreath Quilting Stencil No. 5, plastic (Mylar) printed design, $2.20.

How to order: Send your name, address and postal code, along with a check or money order to: Hearthside Patterns, c/o Victoria Times, P.O. Box 9120, Station E, Edmonton, Alta. T5P 4K2.

Christmas is a time for giving

This month, shut-ins across the country will be getting their annual Christmas gifts and goodies from churches, service clubs and other community groups. Whether in homes of their own, nursing homes, hospitals or other facilities this generosity is designed to comfort and cheer and is a good idea.

M. L., Oakland, Ontario, has suggestions that may improve the giving. "I heartily endorse this pleasant practice," she writes, "and I suspect that whatever the gift may be the simple fact of being remembered by someone provides worthwhile therapy for these elderly folk.

"If the gift is not merely handed in at the door or dropped off at a reception desk but rather includes a visit and friendly chat — with the shut-in the centre of attention — the value of the giving is multiplied many times. Add to that a breath of fresh air in the form of news from the community outside and the value of the Yuletide remembrance is further enhanced.

"In my experience, many groups make up boxes of fancy goods — home-baked cookies, pieces of Christmas cake, candy and soft drinks. for many this makes an appealing gift; however it is no good for persons with diabetes or those on special diets or who just should not be encouraged to consume more sweet stuff. The same applies to boughten boxes of chocolates, of course.

"Other groups go to greenhouses or flower supply places and buy poinsettias or other Christmassy plants to deliver. These, too, should include a visit with the recipient when you may discover they have no room, by ward or semi-private bed, for a large plant — or have a couple already — and you can then vary your gift. I have known people to suffer through as many as four poinsettias at Christmas and then get never so much as a dandelion the rest of the year.

"The old standbys toiletries overcome the above-noted problems although it may be difficult to make selections unless you know the tastes of the recipients. This suggests an advance visit, which some organizations manage, to see what would be the most acceptable gift.

"My research indicates that bright, easily-handled throws for putting over the knees of the old folk are most welcome. Clothing which is easy-on for people who find it difficult to dress is another good choice; there now are companies specializing in making such clothes — attractive wear not drab, institution-type items.

"Then there are books, calendars, small pictures, gay scarves, costume jewellery, writing materials with a whack of stamps tucked in, and similar thoughtful items.

"The real purpose of this letter is to suggest that better efforts be made to discover what presents elderly people themselves would choose — gifts they would enjoy but which they are never or rarely given.

"If shut-ins would write to you then, before next Christmas, you could do a helpful column for those of us who like to bring gifts to our older citizens — people who more than anyone else deserve to be remembered."

Canada's future becoming grey

WINNIPEG (CP) — A University of Manitoba professor says Canada will turn into a nation of old folks if governments don't encourage couples to have children.

Dr. G. N. Ramu, a professor of sociology, said that without tax incentives and better child-care services, the birth rate in Canada will continue at a low level.

Unless there is a birth rate turnaround, he said Canada will become a "geriatric society", with 25 per cent of the population working to support the other 75 per cent.

Dr. Ramu said although Canada has one of the world's highest living standards, about 13 per cent of Canadians who are of child-bearing age are childless.

In an interview, the sociologist said demographers feel that it might take another 60 years or more before Canada pulls out of its dwindling birth rate.

He said attitudes towards child-rearing have changed because of a number of factors, ranging from oral contraceptives to the high cost of raising children.

Dr. Ramu, who spent three years studying couples who choose not to have children, found there is no such thing as an instinctive urge to bear and raise children.

He said when child-rearing couples were asked just why they had children, they were puzzled at first, then usually said they felt it was a conventional thing.

On the other hand, the couples who are childless — or, as they sometimes put it, child-free — appear to be much more affluent and to have fewer troubles in life.

One aspect of Dr. Ramu's research involved sending extensive questionnaires to 100 childless couples across Canada. He got 57 replies and followed up with three-hour interviews with 20 of the respondents.

"We found the child-free people are a pretty interesting group. They want freedom, upward mobility. They have a lifestyle which is close to Bohemian. They want the ability to pack up on Friday and spend the weekend in Las Vegas, if they feel like it."

Dr. Ramu said attitudes towards children are a result of a change in the "philosophy of family life".

"Individual couples are far more removed from society now than they've ever been. There's no more extended family. They don't feel they're accountable to anyone in the wider family circle any more."

Marriage itself has become fragile and no longer can be considered an institution but rather "a mere association, often quite temporary," he said.

common cents

by kate macqueen

Such a nice surprise to find gift wrap at last year's prices. Much of the first Christmas paper out on the counters of discount and variety stores is selling for 99 cents a roll, with 40 square feet. That's less than three cents a square foot. Figure the cost per square foot before you consider the sale price a true bargain.

Leftover powdered pesticides, fertilizers, etc. will be good for another season if the containers will seal out moisture. If bag or box is torn, a plastic bag with a sealable top will keep the powder dry. Also, store leftover charcoal briquettes in an air-tight container, because moisture depreciates charcoal's burning qualities.

A real 'dream house'

elizabeth forbes

The house stands on property that in the early history of Saanichton belonged to the Edwin John family, then following a trio of later owners, became part of Saanich Peninsula Extended Care Hospital acreage on Mt. Newton Crossroad.

After it was on hospital land the old farmhouse was often tenant-occupied.

That is, until a little over two years ago, when Ann Spicer, co-ordinator of volunteer services at the hospital, and Pat Paterson, a physio-therapist there, envisioned it as the place for a project they were eager to develop.

You see, they were certain that some who were being placed in the hospital could be left in their homes with the help of a good support program conducted in a day care centre for the elderly.

The two women went to the hospital board with their dream, coupled with a request that next time the farmhouse became vacant, they be given a chance to show what they could do.

Their idea was received with enthusiasm and a few months later, when the house became vacant, the board did turn it over, rent free and with some other needs covered.

Looking back now Ann Spicer recalls the place didn't have a thing in it.

''So we appealed to churches, clubs, organizations and to individuals, and almost over night it was fully furnished.''

A Canada works grant gave them the money to employ three staff members.

Transportation was handled through loan of a van.

"This meant we were able to pick up patient-guests (PGs) and bring them to our day care centre, right from the start,'' Pat Paterson says.

These dedicated women, with addition of Kay Clarke, a social worker at the hospital and Mrs. Spicer's husband, a retired family doctor, formed a volunteer corps responsible for organizing and overseeing everyday work.

Main goals were to maintain a high level of individual independence, physically and psychologically; to support and give some relief to PG families and to avoid early placement in long-term facilities, if possible.

Also to encourage an atmosphere, at the centre, in which P.G.s felt at ease, by giving them opportunity to take part in day-to-day chores, cooking, gardening, housekeeping, as they might do in their own homes.

All went according to plan until the beginning of this year when the federal government grant ran out.

There was no money to replace that grant and the centre had to be closed.

However, with full knowledge, by then, that it was a definite help for elderly people who, because of medical conditions, were at risk of being placed in extended care, Ann Spicer and Pat Paterson looked for new help.

It came through the department for long term care in the provincial minstry of health, with assurance of ongoing assistance for basic needs.

Not only that, the Saanich Peninsula hospital board of administration gave the old farmhouse a face lift with an exterior paint job, new floor coverings and various other necessities.

The Centre re-opened on May 15, with the same good mix program — social, recreational, thereapeutic and crafts.

Three full-time and two part-time staff members are now employed: Patsy Berger-North as supervisor, Olive Green, Peter Scott, Ann Johnson and Dot Newman.

They still have the van and each morning P.G.s scheduled for the Centre are telephoned before that van goes around to pick them up.

Today some 40 elderly men and women, referred through the long term care program, visit the Centre on a rotating basis, with an average daily attendance of 12.

Only services they pay for are van transportation and a good nourishing noon-day meal.

Ann Spicer and Pat Paterson still have the responsibility for organizing and over-seeing the work program, with assistance of eight volunteers, including Dr. Spicer who stll fills the role of medical consultant.

They give high marks to those volunteers and to the Centre's five staff members.

"All have one thing in common,'' Ann Spicer says. "They are dedicated, as we are, to keeping patient-guests in our day care centre, and out of long term facilities.''

Elderly patients to triple

OTTAWA (UPC) — The need for health care will double over the next 50 years and the number of elderly patients will triple, says a report by Statistics Canada.

The report forecast that by the end of the century health care demand will "outstrip present accomodation and will accelerate after the year 2000.''

Within 50 years, demand for hospital care will almost double from 43 million to 84 million "patient days,'' said the report just released.

In the same period, the number of patients over age 65 will more than triple to 55 million accounting for 65 percent of hospital bed needs.

The forecast was contained in a report entitled A Prognosis for Hospitals: The Effects of Population Change on the Need for Hospital Space, 1976-2031.

It said patients will either have to accept lower care or hospitals to double annual budgets.

"Planning will have to be taken in the next decade to meet the anticipated increase in the demand for hospital space that could force hospital spending up 109 per cent by 2031 or from $5.4 billion to over $11 billion,'' it said.

"This expenditure could be gradually reduced if patients were transferred to other less sophisticated facilities or cared for in the home,'' the report said.

The study predicted almost 30 per cent of patients could be adequately cared for in nursing homes at a saving of $27 billion in hospital operating costs over the next 50 years.

In 1976, it cost $25-a-day to care for a patient in nursing home compared to $125-a-day for hospital care.

"Fuller use of present hospital capacity and the substitution of lower-care and cheaper facilities like nursing homes could delay the necessity of building more hospital beds until the mid-1990s,'' StatsCan said.

Canada's population was expected to increase by 35 per cent between 1976 and 2031 while the number of those aged 65 or over will triple from two million to six million.

Child care system 'bursting at the seams'

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Council of Welfare says the country's child care system is bursting at the seams with about 80,000 youngsters, most of them driven there by poverty.

In a report released Sunday the 21-member government advisory council says most of the 80,000 children in foster homes, juvenile treatment centres and similar institutions have parents who are poor, sick, drunk, drugged, imprisoned or otherwise unable or unwilling to take care of them.

The parents of another 250,000 children are using such social services as day care, family counselling and visiting homemakers. There are about seven million youngsters under the age of 18 in the country.

The council says the system is complex, unco-ordinated, unevenly applied, under-financed in some areas, over-financed in others and costs the country at least $750 million annually. It puts much of the blame on "government-ensured poverty."

It calls for reform of child care — starting with more thorough assessments of troubled families — and advocates higher unemployment insurance benefits, welfare payments and child tax credits for the poor. It says child tax deductions should be abolished.

"Families at all income levels risk the breakup of marriages, the illness or death of a parent, the special problems of handicapped children, difficulties with rebellious teenagers, and other strains on their child-rearing capacities," the report says.

"The poor, however, must shoulder an additional burden — the constant anxiety and pressure that result from struggling to raise a family on an inadequate and often uncertain income."

Most of the problems — ranging from child abuse and desertion to crime, illness and emotional breakdown — that drive parents and their children to the child-care system can be traced to poverty, the council says.

It thus concludes that governments must lift single and deserted mothers, the unemployed and the working poor out of their trap with more-generous income support payments, saying "many kids who end up in the children's social services system should not be there in the first place."

It says the services are stretched so far and so thin that a crisis point has been reached. Not enough is being done to prevent family troubles and to keep families together. It would be cheaper to pay higher income maintenance than it is to continue the child-care system as it is.

For example, this year in Ontario a single-parent mother with one child received $4,860 welfare. If the child was in a foster home it would cost the Toronto Children's Aid Society $6,877. If the child was in a government group home it would cost $12,866, more than twice as much.

The council singles native children out as those most likely to get stuck in the child-care system the longest. Native children make up 39 per cent of those in care in British Columbia, 40 per cent in Alberta, 50 per cent in Saskatchewan and 60 per cent in Manitoba.

In Saskatchewan since 1973, half of the children entering the child-care system have been Indian and Metis. While 11.5-to-13 per cent of the white children have been adopted annually, only three-to-four per cent of the native children have been adopted.

Describing how poverty affects a family, the council says poor, overcrowded housing conditions and a poor diet can cause stress that creates physical and psychological illness and abuse that makes life a see-saw affair.

"Anything that widens the gap between income and need — the loss of a breadwinner's wages because of unemployment or illness, escalating rent, sudden rises in fuel and grocery costs, any unexpected and unavoidable expense — can plunge a poor family into a crisis."

Quebec oil cuts loom as walkout hits refinery

MONTREAL (CP) — Unionized workers walked off the job today at the Petrofina oil refinery in east-end Montreal. Production was not immediately affected, but the union warned the dispute could spread to other companies, possibly endangering winter supplies of heating oil in Quebec.

Bill Butcher, president of the United Oil Workers of Canada, said about 270 Petrofina employees were taking part in a "study session" planned to last for only one day.

But the company has threatened to retaliate with a lockout, Butcher said. If it does so, the union will strike not only at Petrofina but also at the Montreal refineries owned by Texaco and Shell.

Roger Lumeau, a spokesman for Petrofina, would not comment on the possibility of a lockout, saying the company was studying the situation and would state its position later.

The Shell refinery holds the key in any full-scale strike or lockout. With a capacity of 120,000 barrels a day, it is the largest in Quebec and provides about one-third of the province's total production of refined products, Butcher said.

He noted the so-called hydrocracker unit at the Shell plant is currently shut, and if the union goes off the job, "the company won't be able to start it again without the men."

At other refineries, he said, management personnel could likely keep production going.

The hydrocracking operation is essential to supplies of furnace, stove and diesel oil.

Jacques Viau, a spokesman for Shell, confirmed the hydrocracker has been shut for "normal maintenance." He called it "most unfortunate" that the union would threaten to keep it from going back into operation.

Noting the tight fuel supply situation in Eastern Canada, Viau said "any disruption would not do anything to help the situation."

Globe, Guild pact set

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail and the Southern Ontario Newspaper Guild reached tentative agreement during the weekend on a three-year contract that provides an average wage increase of 9.5 per cent a year when compounded over the term of the settlement.

The terms — to be ratified by about 450 editorial, maintenance-delivery and inside circulation employees — provide for an increase of six per cent, retroactive to July 1, 1979, and four per cent on Jan. 7. An eight-per-cent increase in the third year of the agreement would be effective July 1, 1981.

The first six-per-cent instalment will mean an increase of $23.82 a week for reporters with five years experience now making the maximum $397 a week. The four per cent on Jan. 7 will put the maximum increase at $16.83.

The increase on July 1, 1980 will be $35.01 on the reporter rate and the final increase one year later will be $37.81.

The agreement also provides for an improvement in differential pay for night work.

A membership meeting for ratification is to be held next weekend. No specific date has been set.

Desperado's race ends with mid-Atlantic rescue

HALIFAX (CP) — All nine crew members aboard the storm-stricken Desperado, an American sloop trying to break the speed record for crossing the Atlantic by sail, were rescued Saturday about 1,600 kilometres east of St. John's, Nfld., Search and Rescue officials said here.

The 17½-metre vessel had put out a mayday distress call earlier in the day after rough seas broke her mast and cracked her hull in two places.

Ships in the area were alerted and the British-registered sea-train Saratoga radioed it could reach the Desperado in a few hours.

The Saratoga was en route to Baltimore, Md., and the survivors will be put ashore there when it arrives.

Canada base for smugglers

SWANTON, Vt. (UPI) — U.S. and Canadian authorities said a Canadian-based ring is responsible for smuggling immigrants from Haiti into Vermont illegally across the Quebec border.

According to authorities, the Haitians enter Canada legally and then pay guides thousands of dollars to take them across the border.

"It's pathetic," said Gordon Dilmore, deputy chief patrol agent for the U.S. Border Patrol in northern Vermont.

"With Haitians, the price ranges from $600 to $2,500. I've heard of the price going up as high as $7,000," he said.

In Canada, Sgt. George Rugenius of the RCMP Immigration and Passport Division said authorities have been working for six months to break the Haitian smuggling ring.

In October, three Haitians and their two Canadian guides were arrested as they tried to slip into Vermont through the woods along Missisquoi Bay.

But, Rugenius said six persons believed to be the ringleaders are still at large.

"We believe there are other rings," he added. "We believe there is a link to organized crime."

In Montreal's Haitian community, residents said poor economic conditions and the threat of starvation have driven many islanders to seek refuge in North America, whatever the risk.

Overall, the number of illegal aliens caught by the border patrol sector — which stretches from Rouses Point, N.Y. into Maine — has declined dramatically since 1972.

Rene raps ill-timed ruling

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque is disturbed by the prospect the Supreme Court of Canada may come down with a ruling on the constitutionality of Quebec's language law on the same day he is to reveal the wording for the springtime referendum on sovereignty-association.

Levesque, speaking at a news conference that ended a weekend meeting of the Parti Quebecois national council, said he found it "curious" that Chief Justice Bora Laskin plans to issue his judgment on Bill 101 Dec. 21. That will be the final day of sitting in the Quebec national assembly before it adjourns for the mid-winter break.

"With all due respect," the premier said, "I think he is not right in his timing."

Levesque said in June he planned to announce the referendum wording just before the adjournment, and told reporters Sunday he had intended to hold back until the last possible minute to avoid an immediate debate on the question.

The premier said he would let the court know what the government's priorities are "just in case they're not aware of our deadlines."

The referendum question is to be debated when the national assembly session resumes, although no date has been set yet for the return to work.

Mr. Justice Laskin is to rule Dec. 21 on the constitutionality of a chapter in Bill 101 that makes French the only official language of Quebec courts and assembly. At the same time he is to decide on a second case involving Manitoba's Official Language Act, which made English that province's official tongue.

The weekend council, coming on the heels of four recent byelection victories by the opposition Liberal party, had a subdued tone.

The party went through "in some ways a pretty catastrophic period" this fall, Levesque acknowledged. In two ridings party workers split over the selection of the PQ candidate and were vocal in their criticism.

However, Levesque received a standing ovation Saturday when he told delegates the party must "get back to its sources" and convince dissidents to "stay at home" if the party is to win the spring referendum on Quebec's constitutional future.

He told dissidents: "If you can't help, at least don't do too much damage. Stay at home."

He then called on party faithful to put all their efforts into winning the referendum so that 1980 would be "an unforgettable year."

In the coming months the party must try to derail Claude Ryan's resurgent Liberals "who now have the wind in their sails," Levesque said.

There was little discussion during the meeting of a special back-to-work law used last month to scuttle a public sector strike.

Party vice-president Louise Harel asked why the government had not used an existing law to suspend temporarily the right to strike of hospital workers and another delegate protested that the law should not have been used against teachers in the province.

But the meeting was disrupted for some time Sunday by striking Hydro-Quebec employees who demonstrated outside the junior college where the council was meeting and were then allowed into the hall to present their demands to delegates.

The protest angered Levesque. "I don't think it is healthy democratically," he said, adding that the union wouldn't like it if PQ members went "rampaging at one of their union meetings."

Power shortage clobbers Inuvik

INUVIK, N.W.T (CP) — The 3,000 residents of this Northwest Territories city are being asked for the second time in two weeks to reduce power consumption, despite temperatures that are hovering between 30 and 40 degrees below zero.

Two weeks ago, power output was restricted after the Northern Canada Power Commission experienced problems with its generating equipment.

The equipment was repaired a week later, but commission manager Jim Greenwood said a standby generator, flown in from Winnipeg, broke down early Sunday.

While the maintenance work is being carried out, residents are being asked to reduce power consumption and to do such things as cook at specified times of the day.

Officials say they hope to have full power restored by Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Mayor Cynthia Hall has called for an investigation into the equipment failures.

Fox finds Grit water too chilly

MONTREAL (UPC) — Liberal MP Francis Fox said he has "tested the political waters" and would not enter his name in the race for the party leadership if Donald Macdonald and John Turner throw their hats into the ring.

The Montreal MP said Sunday his discussions with other MPs and party officials had uncovered personal support from some of the Quebec caucus members, from some groups within the Young Liberals and from a number of MPs from other provinces.

But "with Turner and Macdonald in the race, others would be regional candidates at best," Fox said.

"I have tested the political waters to see what my chances in the leadership campaign would be," he said. "What I discovered is that with Turner and Macdonald in the race, there isn't room for other serious contenders.

Iranian students head northward

EDMONTON (CP) — Worried Iranian students attending American universities have been flooding the University of Alberta with admission inquiries, according to Dr. George Baldwin, academic vice-president.

Baldwin told the monthly board of governors' meeting the university began getting six to 12 calls or letters daily, beginning about three weeks ago, from Iranian students living in the U.S., compared with a usual rate of three or four inquiries a month.

He said the impression of university staff taking phone calls from Iranian students is that "they are . . . concerned about the atmosphere."

"Things are starting to get uncomfortable for them."

DND scuttling sub sales?

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of a North Vancouver engineering firm says he is getting the runaround from defence department officials in Ottawa over sale of four submersibles to the Soviet Union.

Mack Thomson of International Hydrodynamics Ltd. (Hyco), said Sunday he has been waiting seven months for an export permit that would let him begin work on a $19.5-million contract to supply one manned submersible and three remote-control underwater craft to the Soviets.

Thomson, designer of the Pisces submersible, said Hyco sold two similar craft to the Soviets several years ago and both are currently being used in the Red Sea.

He said a meeting with Defence Minister Allan McKinnon revealed there are classified documents relating to the sale but he doesn't know what they contain.

Thomson said he believes someone in the defence department is concerned the devices have strategic military value even though the Soviets know about the system and helped Canadians produce the Pisces power system.

He thinks the fact the Pisces can go three times deeper (to 6,000 metres) than the first submersible sold to the Soviets is what concerns defence department officials.

" . . . I think they believe it might be used for monitoring U.S. and Canadian submarine communications systems."

He said the Soviets will not pay for the devices until the export licence is granted.

SINTERKLAAS SALUTATION went to Mayor Bill Tindall Saturday after bearded gent's arrival by boat in Inner Harbor. Sinterklaas, a Spanish bishop who traditionally visits the Netherlands every year in early December to celebrate his birthday, even had a gift for the mayor. More presents were passed out later at childrens' party held in Holland House on Vanalman.

Ferries stage for choir sing

The third annual Christmas choir program aboard B.C. Ferries on the Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen and Departure Bay-Horseshoe Bay runs starts next Monday.

Twenty-one school choirs will take part. The Bellenas secondary school choir from Departure Bay starts the season early by making its run this Wednesday.

On board for one round trip per day, each choir will present its program during the first 45 minutes from each port. The students will be given lunch and a tour of the ship during the remainder of the trip.

"We've found this project to be both interesting and educational for the student," Betty Nicholson, information officer and co-ordinator of the project stated. "They not only see areas in the vessel that would normally be out of bounds to them, they also are able to meet and discuss the operation of the ship with several corporation officers."

She said the students take about two months to prepare their programs, which have been well received by passengers in the past two years.

Beaver Lake elementarty students will make the run from Swartz Bay on Dec. 17, followed by students from Saanichton, Cordova Bay, Deep Cove and North Saanich elementary schools.

The choirs will leave on the 11 a.m. sailing and return on the 1 p.m. sailing.

Choirs from Chalmers, Sunshine Hills, Cougar Canyon, Gibsons and Weaver elementary schools will make the run from Tsawwassen.

Choirs from the Departure Bay area will be Mount View, Dufferin Crescent, Forest Park, Fairview and North Oyster elementary school students. Eagle Harbour, Westcot, Hollyburn and Ridgeway elementary school students will make the round trip from Horseshoe Bay.

Blood donor clinics set

A Red Cross blood donor clinic will be held Wednesday at the CFB Esquimalt gymnasium (Naden) from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

It was earlier reported it would be held from 2 to 8 p.m.

Wednesday and Thursday clinics will be at the Newcombe auditorium in the provincial museum from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

The Red Cross is holding clinics all week to remedy a current shortage of O type blood and to build up supplies for the holiday season.

Tuesday there will be a clinic at the James Bay community centre 140 Oswego from 2 to 8 p.m.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 ◇	3 ♡
4 ♠	Pass (!)	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — three of hearts.

It is impossible to fathom some of the strange things that happen in world championship play. Perhaps it is unfair to single out some of the dreadful bids and plays made at the very highest levels of bridge — and at the same time pay little or no heed to the flawless technique displayed by the best players on most occasions.

But a reporter's job is to report, and a writer's job is to write, so if at times we relate here what is bad rather than what is beautiful it is not because we're mean, but because it seems right to point out that even the highest-ranked players are human and err occasionally.

Here is a case where lightning struck twice in the same place. The hand occurred in the 1975 match between the United States and Italy. The Italian player's one club bid at the first table was artificial and indicated at least 16 points. North's one diamond response showed a relatively weak hand. East's three heart bid was preemptive and South's four spade bid meant just what it said.

Why West failed to bid five hearts is difficult to explain. West led a heart and South made four spades, scoring 420 points.

At the second table, with the U.S. North-South, the bidding went:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Dble	Pass	2 ♠
3 ♠ (!)	Pass	Pass	4 ♡
Pass (!)	Pass	Pass

Why South bid bid only three spades and then, amazingly, passed four hearts is also difficult to explain. Whatever the reason, he paid a heavy penalty for it. The Italian East made five hearts (450 points) after South led the ace and another spade. So Italy made a game with the North-South cards and a game with the East-West cards, thus gaining 870 points on the deal.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological Forecast for Tuesday, December 11, 1979
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Open dialogue with one who can aid in improving basic services. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Keep diet, nutrition, health resolutions. You could receive proposal or "confession" of love. You feel more alive!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Obtain hint from Aries message. Relationship intensifies; be ready for change, travel, variety. Express feelings in dynamic, graphic manner. Sweet bird of youth takes a liking to you. Significant domestic adjustment dominates scenario.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Attention centers on real estate, territorial claims. Take nothing for granted—define meanings, objectives. Pisces, Virgo individuals play key roles. A solid offer is forthcoming—don't sell self short. Puzzle pieces will fall into place.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): What appeared to be a "lost cause" suddenly looms as money-making proposition. Know it, accept challenge and responsibility. Capricorn natives figure prominently. Relative aids in obtaining "verifications." Learn from recent experience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get rid of losing proposition. Be free of another person's burden. Accent on recovering what had been lost or misappropriated. Lunar cycle is on upswing—means circumstances will favor your efforts. Individual from your past makes reappearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Make new start in new direction; stress independence, originality, willingness to be vulnerable where love is concerned. Lunar position accents personality, correct judgments and enhanced sense of timing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Obtain valid hint from Virgo [illegible] sage. Give full rein to intuitive intellect. You accurately sense that something of importance is to occur. Clandestine conference results in enlightenment. The letter "K" figures prominently in scenario.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Enlarge horizons, diversity, accept social invitation, know that popularity increases. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently. Look beyond the immediate; perceive picture as a whole. Wish is fulfilled in "romantic" manner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good lunar aspect coincides now with taking a stand, defining position, opening dialogue with those in authority. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio natives figure prominently. Special honor could be part of fulfilling scenario.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Publish, advertise, bridge distance and language barriers. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons could play key roles. You perceive potential in clear, creative manner. Scenario brings teaching, learning processes into focus.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): What seems a rejection is merely a delay. Know it, respond accordingly. Family member makes significant concession. Financial picture is brighter than originally anticipated. Taurus, Libra, Scorpio natives figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Go slow, permit those close to you to express views. Accent on legal, moral obligations—another Pisces is involved. You have grand opportunity to view a "time line," to understand past, present and your future potential. You'll comprehend!

IF DECEMBER 11 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are intuitive, more so than the average person. You are teacher, psychologist and capable of inspiring others to live up to their potential. You are sensitive, moody, psychic and loyal to family. You sacrifice for loved ones, although they do not always appreciate it. Cancer, Leo, Aquarius persons play important roles in your life. March and December could be your most memorable months of 1980. Your life is due to take a happier hue—and it's about time. Congratulations!

Watchdog Richards Report #147. Many thanks to Mary-Ellen W. for all her effort regarding my retirement party and to Phyl A. and all those who either assisted or attended. Also many thanks to all those who contributed to the very nice Retirement Gifts from the Forest Service employees, who I have worked with in the past 22 years. No thanks go to the Colonist reporter who incorrectly reported that Your Watchdog was escorted from a Coroner's inquest by a court orderly. It was a Deputy Sheriff who came over and woke up your tired Watchdog, but there was no mention that Your Watchdog had to leave the inquest. It appears to Your Watchdog that the propossed widening of Gorge Rd, between Harriet and B.C. Forest Products by Alderman William Mc Elroy is unnecessary and that a large sum of taxpaying homeowners dollars can be saved. All it would take is to assign one policeman to patrol the road each day at certain times and this would save city taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars and also would encourage safe driving on the Gorge Road. Please continue to phone 383-6259 Your Watchdog C. Joe Richards for information regarding Municipal matters.

IS THERE A TALL LOVING gentleman, 35 to 60 years who would enjoy the company of a tall early 40's woman who dislikes going to movies and theatre alone, and would like company on occasion. No strings attached to this ad, just gentle, fun loving companionship. Please reply with a current picture if possible to Victoria Press Box 257.

ONE ONLY Must Go
Our Last Bayliner Saratoga Express
Outfitted for cruising, this boat has a well planned galley, a dinette that makes into a double berth, enclosed head and loads of storage space. The cabin comes with curtains as standard equipment. This large cockpit is ideal for fishing with hardtop and stand-up camper canvas. This model is a fisherman's dream as steering and controls are at hand in the cockpit and there is a large fish box built into the transom. Blue hull and hardtop, white deck. This boat must go before we move. BUY NOW AND SAVE. Stock No. 151.

WANTED! T.L.C.

Yes, I'm solid and sound but I need someone to pretty me up. I'm on a 50x134 lot in Oak Bay, two bedrooms, living room with fireplace and an eating area in the kitchen. I have 100-amp wiring, copper plumbing and I was given a new roof three years ago. My owner is asking $59,900 and I can be shown by calling MARJ NAPPER or MARKIE MUNN at 598-3321 anytime.

KISS!

The Northwind goodbye! Professionally insulated bungalow offering 3 bedrooms, dining room, modernized kitchen with charming breakfast nook, large master bedroom, warm, woody living room with cozy fireplace. There's more! Laundry room off kitchen, sundeck, greenhouse. Attractive, fenced lot. There's some cosmetic work here and there but try your offer today as vendors anxious. Asking $51,000. MLS. BONUS! Close to town in ideal location. JACK PETRIE at 598-8736 (res.) or 598-3321 (bus.).

NORTH MILLBAY
Excellent 4-bdr home on ¾-acre of very fertile land. House is all electric, but has central FP that will heat whole house, and total living area is approx. 1400 sq.ft. There are trees for shade and seclusion, a good workshop, barn, greenhouse and garden shed and a well producing approx. 15 gall/min. This is an ideal family home close to schools and sports facilities, etc. Asking only $67,500.

Owners moving to the mainland, so have realistically priced their 3-bdr home with full bsmt that includes a garage. This well kept home is on a nicely landscaped and fertile ½-acre. It is an ideal family home with room for the children to play either indoors or out, and room for mom and dad to have a hobby room too. Asking $58,500.

SOUTH MILLBAY SEAVIEW
Don't miss this immaculate 2-bdr home on a quiet road overlooking Saanich Inlet and Peninsula. Double glazing, extra insulation and a Fisher stove in the bsmt rec room make for very low hydro bills (so far less than $400 per year), large light LR, kitchen, bdr and bath upstairs, recreation room, bdr, large workshop (with roughed-in plumbing) and storage room downstairs. A single car garage and a very well landscaped and maintained garden completes this very attractive home. Realistically priced at $77,000.

309 IN MEMORIAM

BLANN — Dear George. All the yesterdays — the todays — and the tomorrows — we remember.
Peg and Ken.

BLANN - In loving memory of George passed away December 9th, 1978.
If tears could build a stairway
And heartaches make a lane
I'd walk a path to heaven
And bring you home again.
Still sadly missed by Vera, Bill and Mal

BLANN - In loving memory of our dear brother and uncle, George, who left us Dec. 9, 1978.
Sadly missed by Lynn, Andy, Lynn and Kelly

IN LOVING MEMORY OF A dear Husband and Father Fred, who passed away Dec. 5, 1976.
Anne and family.

JEYNES - In loving memory of a dear husband and father, John Charles, who passed away December 10, 1966.
Lovinly remembered by his wife, Jessie, daughter, Gladys and family. Brothers Ted and Harry, sister May and Nancy, brother-in-law Jack, and sister-in-law Mollie and Doris.

PATTERSON - In loving memory of Samuel Patterson who passed away December 8, 1970.
We do not forget you, nor do we intend,
We think of you often, and will to the end;
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.
The Patterson Family.

VASEY - In loving memory of Hilton, died Dec. 9, 1976.
Vasey and Herkes families.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

Heavy are our hearts today, Memory brings you back once more,
To the time when you were with us,
To the happy days of yore.

Thinking about a suitable gift for a friend interested in the growing and use of herbs?

If the idea is still in the thinking stage on your part and your friend has not yet started the growing, it is evident that a few small plants will be the ideal gift. This could be followed on another suitable occasion by a book on the culture and use of the herbs, for, apart from their aroma when crushed, their flavors are assets to meals.

Some herbs are known to be digestives. Some, like garlic, have been used for centuries for both the digestive value and the flavor value. Indeed, the two values may be closely linked, for food that is pleasantly flavored is usually well-digested perhaps because it is savored slowly and chewed thoroughly to make the good taste last as long as possible. Prolonged chewing encourages digestive juices to flow. Have you thought of that?

Today, with increasing medical pressure on using less salt even in regular diets, the addition of minute quantities of the common culinary herbs may be the answer to reducing table salt intake. The less you use, the less you will miss it. There are traces of salts in most of our fresh foods, including vegetables.

Herbs meed a relatively small space in the home garden to produce enough for family use daily and enough for drying as powdered herb flavorings during winter. Some, such as mint, sage, thyme, winter savory, parsley, chives and chervil may be available fresh all year round in many local gardens.

Sunshine is needed for the most aromatic of the herbs, for their oils are brought into the leaves more abundantly with its aid.

A humusy but well-drained soil encourages normal growth without frequent watering, and fertilizer is neither desirable nor needed with the majority of herbs.

Taking these points into consideration leads us to know that a good collection of common herbs useful for everyday improvement of meals can be grown on a sunny balcony summer and winter; or on an open deck with perhaps a little winter screening from the hardest weather which comes from the northeast.

Since the perennial types are still likely to be available in containers from growers specializing in herbs, a good beginning can be made now as Christmas gifts to friends.

Windowsill gardeners are not excluded from the pleasure of herb growing even in winter unless a north window is the only exposure available.

Even with this limitation, the use of a small portable indoor plastic greenhouse with fluorescent lighting makes it possible to grow these and other plants with success for a very few cents a day after the purchase of the equipment. The portable growing units widen the scope of folks who are interested in plant growing but have no access to either a suitable place or perhaps the ability to reach another place.

Only the smaller types of herbs are successful on the limited windowsill, but many, such as sage, thyme, chives will produce leaves all winter. In summer, with stronger reflected light and more hours of daylight, an extra half dozen annual herbs may be raised from seeds sown in spring.

There is one most desirable herb which is more easily grown indoors by the amateur here than in the average garden — it is the Sweet Basil which adds its delightful pungency to fresh salads in summer and to green peas and green beans of all kinds whether fresh or frozen. Sweet Basil is native to tropical Asia, Africa and the islands of the South Pacific, so we can see that it likes a warm soil and a warm air temperature, both more likely indoors here than out except usually in August.

Herb plants for gifts; maybe the idea will give a few of your friends many happy meals and happy days of interest during the new decade ahead.

NATO to decide on N-weapons

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — NATO ministers meet this week to take one of the most momentous decisions in the 30-year history of the alliance — whether to deploy a new generation of nuclear weapons in Europe.

At the same time they will offer the Communist bloc a disarmament package for Europe described by NATO officials as the most wide-ranging in at least a decade.

Despite misgivings in the Netherlands, Denmark and Norway and increased reluctance in Belgium, NATO's defence and foreign ministers are expected to go ahead with the plan on Wednesday.

They will decide by consensus to acquire and deploy nearly 600 U.S. long-range tactical weapons to counter the Soviet SS-20 missiles and long-range Tupolev-26 Backfire bombers, the officials said.

When they start being deployed from 1983 onwards, NATO will have ground-based missiles capable of hitting targets in the Soviet Union beyond Moscow.

The planned 572 new weapons — 108 ballistic Pershing-2 rockets and 464 Cruise missiles — are deemed necessary by NATO to close a gap in the Western alliance's strategy of flexible response.

NATO officials said these long-range tactical, or Eurostrategic, missiles will redress the perceived imbalance in this intermediate stage between purely battlefield weapons, which are no more than nuclear artillery and the huge intercontinental strategic missiles.

At the same time the alliance will make concrete proposals for the immediate opening of negotiations on European-based nuclear weapons. They were not included in the U.S.-Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty still awaiting ratification by the U.S. Senate.

NATO's aim is to reach broad parity in this field. NATO officials say that the planned 572 new weapons might never have to be deployed if Moscow agrees to dismantle most of its three-headed, mobile, SS-20 missiles.

More realistically, NATO officials hope that the negotiations, expected to take place within the framework of SALT III, will result in an agreed ceiling on the number of both sides' long-range tactical nuclear weapons.

NATO is also expected to announce on Wednesday the removal of 1,000 of the 7,000 nuclear warheads stockpiled in Western Europe.

The package will be NATO's answer to Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev's initiative in East Berlin on October 6.

The Kremlin leader then announced the withdrawal of up to 20,000 combat troops and 1,000 tanks from East Germany. He also offered to cut the number of deployed SS-20s if NATO gives up its nuclear modernization plan.

Foreign ministers from the 15-country Western alliance will also discuss this week a move to revive the protracted Vienna talks on Mutual and Balanced Forces Reduction in Central Europe, NATO officials said.

Mother Teresa . . . in Oslo to receive Nobel prize

Respect for individual hallmark of her work

OSLO (AP) — The Norwegian Nobel Committee today delivered the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize to Mother Teresa of Calcutta, praising the Roman Catholic nun who has devoted her life to India's poor for her respect for the individuals she helps.

In a speech at the award ceremony in Oslo, the chairman of the committee, Prof. John Sanness, said Mother Teresa deserved the prize "because she promotes peace in the most fundamental manner — by her confirmation of human dignity."

The year's 10 other Nobel laureates were to receive their prizes today at a ceremony in Stockholm.

Recounting the 33 years Mother Teresa has spent tending the poor and the sick in the sprawling slums of Calcutta, Sanness recalled she once said:

"In these years of work among the people, I have come more and more to realize that it is being unwanted that is the worst disease that any human being can experience."

"She believes," Sanness said, "that the worst disease today is not leprosy or tuberculosis, but rather the feeling of being unwanted, uncared for and deserted by everybody."

"The hallmark of her work has been respect for the individual and the individual's worth and dignity."

Sanness said the Yugoslav nun, the sixth women to win the Nobel Peace Prize, shares the standard of another Nobel laureate: the "veneration for life" of the late Albert Schweitzer.

He gave this explanation of the choice of the 69-year-old founder of the Missionaries of Charity, a Roman Catholic order that has spread its works among the poor from the streets of New York's South Bronx to the alleys of Vietnam:

"The year 1979 has not been a year of peace: disputes and conflicts between nations, peoples and ideologies have been conducted with all the accompanying extremes of inhumanity and cruelty.

Iranian youths seek to help Palestinians

TEHRAN (AP) — The son of one of Iran's leading holy men said Sunday that he will lead more than 1,000 unarmed Iranian volunteers to Lebanon this week to join the Palestinian struggle.

Lebanon has told the Iranians they are unwelcome.

Sheik Mohammad Montazeri, son of Tehran's senior religious leader, Ayatollah Hosseinali Montazeri, said 6,000 "brothers and sisters" have responded to his appeal for 10,000 volunteers, but there had not not been time to process everyone.

He said three airplanes will fly the unarmed volunteers, some as young as 13, to Lebanon beginning today.

Montazeri said he is unconcerned that the government in Beirut has rejected his plans to send in the force to fight Israelis in southern Lebanon. "We don't need visas," he said, adding that if the group was refused permission to land in Beirut, they would go to Syria.

For years, Palestinian guerrillas have launched attacks against Israel from across the Lebanese border.

Currently, the Palestinians in the border area are confronting a Lebanese Christian force backed by Israel.

Fundamentalist Moslems in Iran accuse Israel and the United States of conspiring to undermine Iran's Islamic revolution. They also blame zionists and the United States for the recent attack of Islam's holiest shrine — the Grand Mosque in Mecca, Saudi Arabia. The Saudi government, however, has identified the attackers as Moslem extremists, mostly Saudi.

Montazeri said his troops had no weapons, but "weapons are not important."

"The important things are human beings," he said. "There are lots of weapons in Lebanon. We'll get what we need there."

Montazeri said the volunteers had "received good training so far" and would need seven to 10 days of training in Lebanon to become familiar with the geography and terrain.

He said the volunteers would work primarily with Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization, especially Arafat's Fatah guerrilla group.

He said Iran's governing Revolutionary Council agreed to pay for the mission and had ordered the army to provide clothes and boots, but did not say whether the plane they travel in would be military or commerical.

Quake hits Iran

TEHRAN (AP) — An earthquake measuring 5.6 on the Richter scale rocked the eastern Iranian cities of Ferdows and Tabas on Sunday, but there were no reports of injuries or damage, the official Pars news agency reported.

It was the third quake to hit Khorasan province this month and the latest in a number in eastern Iran this year.

Hundreds perished in destructive tremors last month and in January near the northeast Iranian city of Mashad, 650 kilometres (400 miles) east of Tehran.

Officials said 250 persons were killed in a quake near Mashad on Nov. 14 and 17 were killed Nov. 27. A quake in January in the same area killed 300 people.

Television priest, Sheen, dies at 84

NEW YORK (AP) — Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen, whose television ministry gave him a secular popularity awarded few religious leaders, died Sunday night at the age of 84.

The Roman Catholic prelate, who survived open heart surgery two years ago, succumbed to the heart ailment, said Archbishop Edward O'Meara, a close friend. "He had a peaceful end," said O'Meara.

During his years in the public eye, Sheen won television's Emmy award and was responsible for the conversion of such well-known persons as Henry Ford II and Clare Boothe Luce.

Onassis divorce?

ATHENS (AP) — Shipping heiress Christina Onassis, 28, will apply for a divorce before Christmas from her Russian husband, Sergei Kauzov, sources close to the Onassis family said at the weekend.

Miss Onassis, daughter of shipping magnate Aristole Onassis, married 40-year-old Kauzov in a civil ceremony in Moscow 16 months ago. It was her third marriage and Kauzov's second.

U.S. study warns of hunger crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — A global hunger crisis is likely during the next 20 years that may pose greater problems than current energy woes, a presidential commission said today.

Even after three straight years of good harvests, hunger around the world is still growing, the commission said, and called the Cambodian famine a reminder of the larger problem.

The commission urged that the United States double its non-military foreign aid and take other steps to "help others feed themselves" through better farming methods.

The recommendations are in a preliminary report by the Presidential Commission on World Hunger that was being presented to President Carter today.

The commission, headed by Carter's special Middle East peace envoy, Sol Linowitz, said: "Even after three years of successive good harvests, the world food situation is still precarious."

Unless the United States and other countries act to increase food supplies, the report said, "a crisis of even more serious dimensions than the present energy crisis appears likely within the next 20 years."

Dissenters still risk torture

LONDON (CP) — Political dissenters throughout the world face an increasing risk of abduction, torture and execution despite some encouraging signs in the human rights field, Amnesty International said Sunday in its annual year-end report.

The London-based group, which was awarded the 1977 Nobel Peace Prize for its international work on behalf of political prisoners, praised what it called an increasing concern for rights of the individual in Europe, some African countries and Indonesia, where the government has released tens of thousands of persons imprisoned for political offences.

But the report, which covered 96 countries over the 12-month period ended in May, said detention of political opponents remains commonplace throughout the world.

The annual review also reiterated Amnesty's findings on the human rights situation in Iran.

While stating again that political prisoners were tortured under the deposed shah, it denounced the imprisonment without charge of thousands of alleged shah supporters and the execution of hundreds after secret and summary trials under the new Islamic government.

Amnesty's report detailing proven and alleged violations in various countries included:

— The United States. Amnesty said it is investigating allegations that illegal aliens from Mexico and Mexican-Americans are "victims of systematic ill-treatment" and other claims that the prosecutions of some American Indians and blacks have political overtones.

Amnesty, which opposes the death penalty, also said: "The large number of people under sentence of death in the United States, nearly 500 at the time of writing, continues to be a matter of great concern."

— The Soviet Union. It said political dissidents are still being sent to psychiatric institutions despite international condemnation and that Soviet officials "continued to imprison religious and nationalist dissenters, would-be emigrants and non-conformist writers for exercising their civil and political rights."

— Egypt and Israel. Amnesty reported waves of arrests in Egypt of those opposed to the peace treaty with Israel. The Israeli government was accused of abusing Palestinians, especially in the occupied territories it seized in the 1967 Middle East war.

Writing in the introduction to the report, Martin Ennals, Amnesty's secretary-general, said: "In many parts of the world political opponents are increasingly being threatened with the death penalty and, in numerous cases, executed."

Although large numbers of political dissenters were freed from prisons in 1979, "elsewhere, thousands of prisoners are still held without trial years after their arrest," he said.

In Asia, long-term imprisonment without trial was common and political dissenters were executed in China, Nepal, Afghanistan, Taiwan, Cambodia, Pakistan and the Philippines.

Amnesty denounced as "dangerous" a rise in political arrests in China, especially of activists calling for more democracy. In Vietnam, at least 50,000 citizens are confined in so-called re-education camps for political reasons.

Amnesty accused Afghanistan's Soviet-backed government of a "gross violation" of human rights by oppressing the population and adding tens of thousands of political prisoners to the many detained by previous governments.

On Latin America, the report was harsh.

It railed against political disappearances, to which Amnesty said the international community paid little attention, and said the worst offenders were Chile and Argentina, where it accused military leaders of using terrorism to keep their countries in a "state of siege."

In the Central American country of Guatemala, the bodies of 770 persons believed murdered were found in one cemetery alone, it said.

In Africa, Amnesty praised the "growing concern and recognition of human rights violations" but also documented serious abuses in both black- and white-ruled countries.

It singled out Equatorial Guinea and Uganda, where dictators were deposed this year, for their "total disrespect for basic standards of human rights."

Amin exiled in Libya

KAMPALA (Reuter) — Former Ugandan dictator Idi Amin is living out his exile on the Libyan coast, in a lonely beach home isolated from the outside world, Interior Minister Paulo Muwanga said Sunday.

Muwanga said Amin's guns have been confiscated and he is under constant watch.

"I wouldn't say he was living a comfortable life," Muwanga told a news conference after returning from a trip to Libya.

Amin fled to Libya last April after an invasion force of Ugandan exiles and Tanzanian troops ended his eight bloody years as Uganda's leader.

Tory budget to bring pain at pumps?

By DOUG LONG

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers seem certain to wake up Wednesday to whopping increases in the price of gasoline as Finance Minister John Crosbie puts the finishing touches to a budget designed to curb energy use.

An increase of between 20 and 25 cents a gallon in the excise tax on all transportation fuels, proposed by the government as part of its new energy policy, would raise the price of gasoline sold at the pump to about $1.30 a gallon.

Tuesday's budget — the first by the new Conservative government — is also expected to contain a number of tax measures aimed at encouraging greater use of natural gas and reduced dependence on oil.

Meanwhile, investors in oil and gas stocks are anxious to learn how the government intends to tax new petroleum industry revenues resulting from expected oil price increases of at least $4 a barrel in 1980.

The government seems convinced higher energy prices are an effective means of reducing consumption. Liberal party energy critic Marc Lalonde calls this a baseball bat approach to conservation.

Ottawa hopes to raise around $3 billion through the excise tax and another $2 billion through higher oil prices. Crosbie will use some of the money to cushion the impact of higher prices in low income regions and on consumers already strapped by soaring energy costs.

The energy conscious budget comes on the heels of warnings from the National Energy Board that supplies of home heating oil are very tight across the country this winter. Prime Minister Clark says limited shortages are possible in some areas.

The government is likely to unveil a beefed up home insulation program with more funds available for a broader cross section of home owners to help reduce heating bills.

Tax incentives for conversion to natural gas from oil are anticipated along with a pledge to keep gas prices below oil prices. The government is committed to extending natural gas supplies into Eastern Canada.

The government plans to deposit most of the additional revenues in a new national energy bank, to be used to fund projects aimed at helping reach its target of energy self sufficiency by 1990.

Extension of natural gas supplies, investment in development of alternate energy sources and funding for additional heavy oil and oil sands plants are part of the plans.

The stumbling block to announcement of details of the energy package has been a disptue with Alberta over the method of taxing higher revenues from oil and gas.

The federal government wants a new revenue sharing arrangement to give Ottawa 50 per cent of annual oil price increases above $2 a barrel as it pursues its goal of moving domestic oil prices closer to world levels.

Ottawa now takes 10 per cent of each $1 a barrel increase, while the producing province and the industry each get 45 per cent.

While Alberta concedes the federal treasury needs a bigger slice of oil and gas industry profits to finance national projects there is disagreement over where to impose the tax.

The province says the federal government should only tax profits not being reinvested in exploration and development.

Federal officials maintain this would not provide enough additional revenue and the two sides have been working at a solution. Details may come in Crosbie's budget.

OVERPARKED LOCO jumped the rails in the Canadian Pacific yard behind Capital Iron this morning and by noon today it had been there for more than five hours without a metered parking ticket on the seat or dash. Gordon's Towing, however, apparently decided the job was just too big for them to handle. Just another case of a big guy getting away with something. No one was hurt in the mishap.

Iran on brink of civil war

Times News Services

As more violent clashes threatened to plunge Iran into civil war, the revolutionary regime of Ayatollah Khomeini backed down Sunday from its threats to set a quick trial date for the U.S. embassy hostages.

In Tabriz, provincial capital of the Azerbaijan region of northeastern Iran, surging mobs of pro- and anti-Khomeini forces battled in the streets, capturing and recapturing government buildings in the worst violence of the four-day-old rebellion by ethnic Turks.

Meanwhile, UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim dispatched a special intermediary to Tehran to pursue UN efforts to resolve the hostage crisis.

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who on Friday pledged to make a statement within 48 hours on a trial date for the 50 Americans held at the embassy, said Sunday: "At present we are not going to set any time limits on arriving at any new decisions about the hostages."

Iran has threatened to try some of the hostages as spies unless the United States extradites the deposed shah, something the Carter administration refuses to do so.

In rebellious Azerbaijan, Khomeini supporters in the provincial capital of Tabriz wrested the radio and television station from anti-Khomeini ethnic Turks who took it over last week. But later Sunday, tens of thousands of dissident Turks stormed the station, a bloody gun battle broke out and the rebels regained control of the building.

Rebel sources said three persons — all ethnic Turks — were killed and at least 60 wounded in the fighting. Other sources put the death toll at five and said local army units had joined in the fight on the side of the rebels.

The Turkish-speaking minority, loyal to Iran's second-ranking ayatollah, Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, had taken over the Tabriz governor's mansion, airport and radio-TV station to protest the new Islamic constitution that makes Khomeini supreme Iranian ruler for life and denies them the self-rule they were expecting.

Sunday's fighting was the worst of the four-day uprising in Tabriz. Besides the radio station, the pro-Khomeini forces also retook, then lost control of the governor's mansion. By nightfall the Shariat-Madari followers seemed to have the upper hand.

Wrecked boat yields 3 dead

A search for seven people began at dawn today after three bodies were found in the wreckage of a 32-foot fishing boat that went missing eight days ago.

One of the dead was identified as the owner of the boat, Roy Mostad, 44. The other victims were a juvenile girl and a juvenile boy.

There were seven children and three adults aboard the Salinta when it vanished.

Officials identified them as Mostad and his three children, Tommy, 13, Robert, 8, and Tina 9; Judy Stevens, 30, and her children Lyle, 7, Nadine 6, and Roselle 4 and her sister, Wendy Stevens, 22, and her four-year-old daughter Angie. All are from Prince Rupert.

The damaged boat was sighted Sunday washed ashore on the Alaska coast north of Prince Rupert, he said.

The wreck was spotted 66 kilometres north of Prince Rupert near Tree Point in Alaska by a Canadian Forces helicopter based at CFB Comox, said Capt. Ron Hallstrom of the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre.

The occupants of the craft, who set out from Prince Rupert Dec. 2 to visit relatives in Kincolith about 100 kilometres to the north, were not missed until Friday when a neighbor noticed the children were not at school.

Apparently no one had notified the relatives they were coming, a Canadian Forces spokesman said.

Killer slide crushes shed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two deaths have been linked to a severe wind and rain storm that lashed southwestern British Columbia during the weekend, disrupting power and damaging buildings.

At least two mudslides were caused by the driving rains which undermined hillsides.

One slide claimed a man's life and left another man in serious condition in hospital. The other slide blocked a major highway.

The massive mudslide at the Carolin Mine in the Coquihalla Valley, 30 kilometres northeast of Hope, swept a mechanics' shed with four men inside it off its foundation.

One man died as the shed was crushed by mud and another suffered serious injuries after he was trapped in a truck which was swept 50 metres over an embankment. Two other men suffered minor injuries and worked for an hour to rescue the victim in the truck.

RCMP said there could be more slides in the area because of the heavy rains.

About 4,000 cubic metres of rock and mud cut the Hope-Princeton section of the southern trans-provincial highway 30 kilometres east of Allison Pass.

Highway crews were hopeful they could restore the link this afternoon. The slide covered about 15 metres of road to a depth of two metres. Some of the rocks were as big as the bulldozers trying to dislodge them.

There were no reports of traffic being caught in the slide. Motorists were rerouted over the Trans-Canada Highway.

In the Vancouver suburb of Surrey, RCMP said weather conditions contributed to the death of a woman who was struck by a car. They said the accident occurred in an area where lack of street lighting, high winds and heavy rain resulted in poor visibility.

Elsewhere in the Vancouver area, winds gusting to 65 km/h kept B.C. Hydro and police departments busy.

Intergovernmental Relations Minister Garde Gardom today refused to speculate on the future of Dan Campbell, the senior Social Credit bureaucrat he inherited from the premier in last month's cabinet shuffle.

Gardom was asked whether Campbell will still become the government's chief representative in the new B.C. House in Ottawa in the New Year as scheduled.

"As I say, I'm not making any comment," he replied.

An hour later, the minister met Campbell privately.

Campbell was not available to answer questions.

On two occasions last week Campbell blew his top at the press for "hasseling and harassing" him on the dirty tricks affair.

He ordered reporters from his office and threatened them with legal action.

Gardom said it would be wrong for him to say anything on any of these matters while a police investigation is under way into the dirty tricks affair.

Does that mean Campbell is under investigation? Gardom was asked.

"I'm not suggesting he is, I'm not suggesting he isn't," Gardom replied.

Pressed on whether Campbell is going to Ottawa, the minister said:

"Garde Gardom is not going to be here forever. You are not going to be here forever and I assume Mr. Campbell is in the same position."

Will Campbell be around for another year?

"I'm not going to start speculating," Gardom said.

Premier Bill Bennett declined comment on the Campbell situation.

The NDP meanwhile, is calling for a police investigation into the possibility that Campbell may have contravened the B.C. Elections Act.

Former attorney-general Alex Macdonald said the RCMP should be investigating Campbell in light of a claim by former Socred researcher Ellen Mackay that Campbell handed out $1000 bills for election expenses without asking for receipts.

The Socred caucus was meeting today in a session expected to centre on dirty tricks and the mass firing last week of the entire caucus research staff.

Prince George South MLA Bruce Strachan said as he entered the meeting he is upset at the way things have been handled and he intends to speak out about it.

$1 million fire guts Cloverdale stores

SURREY (CP) — A spectacular fire fanned by high winds Sunday night caused more than $1 million damage when it destroyed two furniture stores in this community.

A fire department spokesman said the fire which gutted Cloverdale Home Furnishings Ltd. and the adjacent Maple Shop, burned out of control in the townsite of Cloverdale for three hours with winds gusting to 40 kilometres an hour. Volunteer firemen from about six halls were called in to battle the fire.

The fire also spread to a nearby cafe and a dry cleaning firm, but no injuries were reported.

Robber blasts hole in roof

By AB KENT

A cool-headed attendant tried to talk a masked gunman out of robbing his [illegible]vice station until the robber blasted a hole in the ceiling of Fennell's Pay-n-Save service station with a shotgun Saturday night.

"Then I went to plan B and asked him if he still wanted the money," said Peter Moulton, 28, of 486 Culduthel.

Moulton said the man threatened to kill him and two young motorcyclists, took about $600 cash and drove away from the Central Saanich station in a small car about 9:40 p.m.

"If anything, he was more scared than I was," Moulton said.

The motorcyclists were with Moulton in the office at 6459 Pat Bay Highway when the six-foot bandit, [illegible] a red toque, red coveralls, and a child's red knitted sweater tied over his face came in carrying a Remington 12 guage shotgun.

"Gimme your money and the money from the safe," the gunman demanded.

"I conversed with him for three or four minutes, hoping he'd back down," Moukl-ton said today.

But the gunman was determined that Moulton hand over his wallet and open the safe.

"Then I wanted to see if I could talk him into firing a shot into the ceiling to prove the gun was loaded. I thought I could either jump him, or if it was loaded, the sound would attract neighbors," Moulton said.

The gun roared and Moulton said he abandoned the idea.

"He ordered us into the ladies washroom and said not to come out. He meant business and said he would kill us if we didn't co-operate."

When he heard the sound of a car pulling away, Moulton said he jumped out of the washroom, dived over a counter and telephoned the station owner who called police.

Rhodesia bombs rebel sites

SALISBURY (AP) — Zimbabwe Rhodesian jet fighter planes pounded guerrilla staging areas in neighboring Zambia and Mozambique on Sunday as negotiators in London continued to wrangle over a ceasefire in the breakaway British colony.

The military command reported that the planes bombed and strafed black nationalist guerrilla havens just across the Zambezi River border in Zambia at dawn. A later statement said the planes attacked more guerrilla bases inside Zambia on a second raid and struck a guerrilla target inside Mozambique.

The Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance uses the neighboring black-ruled states as base areas in its seven-year-old war against the Salisbury government.

There was no immediate word from either Zambia or Mozambique on casualties in the raids.

The military command gave few details, saying only that the attacked bases in Zambia housed "large numbers of terrorists" and that the target in Mozambique was "a major terrorist base."

It said all aircraft returned to base safely after the attacks. Unconfirmed reports said Zimbabwe Rhodesian ground troops also took part in the Mozambique raid.

Sunday's air strikes were the sixth, seventh and eighth cross-border raids into Zambia and Mozambique since the London peace conference began 13 weeks ago.

In London, Patriotic Front spokesman Willie Musarurwa denounced Sunday's attacks as "outrageous" and said they proved that the outgoing Salisbury government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa is not serious about peace.

Observers say the raids may cast another shadow over hopes for early conclusion of a Zimbabwe Rhodesian peace agreement.

Both sides in the British-sponsored talks have accepted a constitutional plan and last week the Front guerrilla leaders agreed to principles of a ceasefire. But last-minute technical hitches developed and the Front again declared it would not accept cease-fire terms that amounted to "surrender."

Hydro probe delay bid

B.C. environmental groups will ask the National Energy Board to postpone a hearing on B.C. Hydro's application to export electricity until more information is available on the potential effects of such a move.

The hearing is scheduled to begin Tuesday in Vancouver.

A motion to that effect will be made at the hearing by the Sierra Club and the Canadian Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC).

Hydro is seeking an umbrella licence from the federal regulatory agency to export 10 billion kilowatt hours of electricity annually to the U.S. Three billion would be guaranteed while the remaining seven billion could be interrupted if required to serve Canadian needs.

The proposed annual export of electricity is equal to 39 per cent of Hydro's domestic sales in the 1978-79 fiscal year.

The Sierra-SPEC motion says the hearing should be put off until the following questions can be answered:

—Whether the export price should include the capital, environmental and social costs to generate the power;

—Whether the price for export thermal power will include costs stemming from the impact the operation of thermal generating units has on the environment.

25-storey jump . . . she lives

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 25-year-old woman survived an apparent jump from a 25-storey hotel but does not want to talk about it, hospital officials said Sunday.

In discussing the Friday incident, police said Kathy Beck took off some of her clothes, apparently jumped from the roof of the Golden Gateway Holiday Inn — 250 feet high — and landed on the roof of a parked car.

Hospital officials declined to discuss her condition.

"We cannot make any statements about her condition," said a spokeswoman at San Francisco General Hospital. "She has been very uncooperative and doesn't want us to say anything to anyone."

Witnesses said that when the woman landed on car, she moaned, "Leave me alone, just leave me alone."

Hospital officials said she suffered head and internal injuries but will live.

"She dropped head first like she was diving into a swimming pool," said a witness, Cherly Martin.

Minnie Mountain appeal in Feb.

A Cadboro Bay Residents Association appeal for a hearing before the Supreme Court of Canada on the Minnie Mountain housing development decision will be held in Ottawa in February.

Association laywer Lawrence Fast has appealed a recent B.C. Court of Appeal judgement overturning an earlier B.C. Supreme Court decision quashing a Saanich land use bylaw allowing the 70-acre housing development.

If the application is successful, it will be several months before the case is heard by the Supreme Court.

A year ago the association won a supreme court appeal against the bylaw when Mr. Justice William Trainor ruled a conflict of interest on the part of Ald. David Paterson.

Mayor Mel Couvelier has announced the mixed residential housing development will go ahead as soon as possible.

Offer for FP called 'low'

TORONTO (CP) — The offer by Conrad Black and associates for controlling interest of FP Publications Ltd. is about $102 million or $45 a share, says former Liberal cabinet minister James Richardson.

Although the offer isn't as good as it should be, it will probably be accepted by some stockholders because FP earnings aren't as good as they should be, said Richardson, a trustee of the Bell Foundation, which owns a small portion of the stock.

FP Publications owns eight newspapers, including the Victoria Times, The Daily Colonist and the Vancouver Sun in B.C., and has substantial printing interests.

Richardson and other foundation trustees will be in Toronto on Thursday to discuss the details of the offer made by Black, chairman of Argus Corp. Ltd., and his associates. They include John Bassett, chairman of Baton Broadcasting Inc., and George Gardiner, president of Gardiner Watson Ltd. brokers of Toronto.

The various equity shareholders, including four family holding companies and four members of the family of FP co-founder Max Bell, have been invited to Toronto to study the proposals.

The Bell heirs own about 10.4 per cent of the FP equity shares. The main shareholders are Invictus Ltd., which represents the Sifton estate and owns 32.4 per cent of the equity; Starlaw Investments Ltd., representing the McConnell family of Montreal with 25 per cent; Newsco Investments Ltd., the family holding company of R. Howard Webster of Montreal with 20.6 per cent; and the Max Bell Foundation with 10.3 per cent.

But the decision on any sale will be made by the businessmen who administer the foundations or execute the estates, not by family members.

These administrators include David Ferguson and Derek Price of Starlaw Investments; R. S. Malone, a trustee of both the Sifton and Bell estates; Donald McGavin of Toronto, a Sifton trustee; Gardiner, a trustee of the Bell Foundation; and three other Bell trustees, including Richardson and former governor-general Roland Michener.

Ownership of the equity shares differs substantially from that of the voting shares represented on the board of directors, which controls management of the company.

Starlaw holds 25 per cent of the voting shares, while Sifton, the Bell Foundation and Webster each hold 22.5 per cent. Malone holds 7.5 per cent.

A vigorous frontal system tracked across southern B.C. overnight. The system was accompanied by rain and snow. Following the front are strong gusty northerly winds which will push cold Arctic air into the Interior today. The cold, drier air will give some sunny breaks across the province today. The next Pacific disturbance is on its way and will track across northern B.C. Tuesday. This system will bring rain and snow to the north coast this afternoon and snow to the northern interior overnight.

In case you're wondering

The logistics of running a big hotel like the Empress must be staggering. Somebody once told me that operating a major hotel is just like running a small town. How true is this?

It's pretty close. There's enough going on at the Empress to keep 75 people busy cleaning and moving the equipment around.

The hotel employs 400 people during the peak tourist season.

The Empress is a big operation but few of the guests who sleep, dine and drink there have any idea what goes on hehind the scenes.

Take the cutlery alone. On peak days, a total of 25,215 pieces may go through the dishwasher.

This means in a week, 176,505 pieces are washed and moved about.

Other items, such as sugar bowls and trays, total about 1,732.

The dishwasher is also kept busy each day cleaning 16,407 pieces of glassware and 21,872 pieces of chinaware.

The linen closets scattered about the hotel are filled and emptied daily.

In one day, the hotel may go through 4,163 tablecloths and napkins, 2,008 blankets, 9,600 sheets, 4,500 pillow slips and 19,800 towels and wash cloths.

Dirty linen is sent to a laundry.

Losses of cutlery and linen are usually the result of wear and tear and theft isn't a major factor.

But dishwashers are hard on glasses and chinaware and it doesn't take much to pop a glass subjected to intense heat, Forks, knives and spoons in time become battered and wear out.

In the old days, all of the hotel's washing was done by hand and the cutlery lasted longer.

But the modern mechanical dishwashers have a big advantage over the old handwashing method — they're much more sanitary.

New biography's author:

Carr collection is 'badly overpriced'

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The author of a new biography of Emily Carr says a collection of 27 paintings by the Victoria artist now for sale in Vancouver should be acquired by the government.

But at $1,250,000, says Maria Tippett, it's badly overpriced.

Tippett said the entire group is not worth the average price of $46,000.

She said several of the canvases are superb paintings and worth that much, but the oils on paper, which Carr did as quick sketches on the spot to assist in painting larger canvases in her studio, are worth probably around $25,000.

Emily Carr: a Biography is selling well, even with the competition from Doris Shadbolt's $40 coffee table book on Carr's paintings. The first edition the Tippett book, 7,500 copies by Oxford press, has been sold out and the book is going into a second printing, the author said.

Carr herself would probaby be appalled at the prices her paintings now bring at auctions, she added.

"She would hate the fact that her paintings are selling for millions. That wasn't the point. She wanted her paintings to be accessible to people."

(Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe says an offer was made Thursday but refused to give details.

(He said the offer is contingent on the participation of an anonymous Victoria woman who is offering $700,000 to the province for the purchase, provided she gets to keep one of the paintings.)

Few paintings

Tippett said the Fannin Hall collection, which Vancouver businessman George Clark has put on the market, is valuable for the several paintings from Emily Carr's two years in France before the First World War.

There are few of her paintings from this period in the two major public collections, at the National Gallery in Ottawa and the Provincial Archives of B.C.

The archives has a good representation of Carr's early work on Indian themes while the National Gallery has more from her later years after she had abandoned native motifs and painted trees and forest settings.

"It would fill the gap," said Tippett.

Her book is the first full-scale biography of Carr, and it contains much new material.

Tippett spent years researching the book, travelling to San Francisco, England and France, the Queen Charlotte Islands and places in northern B.C. where Emily Carr had been with her paints and sketchpad.

"There's so much that's new," she says.

Biography in scribblers

An unknown autobiography, written by Emily in three scribblers, was found in the national archives in Ottawa and Tippett found the original casebooks of the sanatorium in England where she was treated.

She says it is a controversial book, particularly for the emphasis she gives to an incident early in Emily's adolescence which turned her against her father, Richard Carr.

Until then, at age 12 or 13, she had been his favorite child of the four Carr sisters and young Dick, a brother.

He was apparently trying to instruct Emily in the facts of life, but according to Tippett, in the telling something happened which forever after made the artist remember him as "a cross, gouty, sexy old man who hurt and disgusted" her.

He spoiled "all the loveliness of life with that bestial brutalness of explanation, filling me with horror instead of gently explaining the glorious beauty of reproduction, the holiness and joy," Emily wrote.

It was an incident she related to no one until a few years before her death in 1945, but Tippett says it is important in understanding her character and development as an artist.

Portrait of Emily Carr by Nan Lawson

She says the memory of it figured strongly in Emily Carr's devastating nervous breakdowns — previously described as physical illnesses — in England and France before the First World War.

New facets of her character also come out in the book.

"Emily was really very much a Victorian upper middle class lady," says Tippett, but very independent-minded.

Tippett portrays her, too, as something of a snob who had definite opinions of people she considered of a lower social class. Although unconventional in many respects, the author found that, sadly, Emily held the conventional racist views of the day on oriental immigrants.

Myths brushed away

Tippett's book also brushes away other myths that surround the Carr legend.

She was not quite as poor as she portrayed herself. Tippett discovered in 1908 she had bought eight lots in the Hastings townsite in east Vancouver, and later sold them just before the First World War for a healthy profit.

The idea of Emily Carr and the Indians also undergoes re-analysis. She has been portrayed as an indomitable traveller who was fearless in seeking out new Indian subjects for canvases, although Tippett points out that except once, she always went with a white companion.

But she emerges as a stronger figure than ever in Tippett's re-examination. She calls her an "icon for British Columbians" — with Tom Thomson, one of the greatest Canadian artists of this century.

"She knew she was great. She never had a doubt. She had this inner strength," says Tippett. But she also knew if she admitted it, she would stop growing as an artist. Carr progressed and kept getting better as she grew older.

She was 56 when she was introduced to the Group of Seven, notes Tippett. It was a pivotal moment and exhibitions in eastern Canada brought her national fame.

She found new energy to paint, and she worked on Indian totems for several more years, until Lawren Harris of the Group of Seven told her she was repeating herself.

Then Carr turned to the trees and forest, the paintings for which she is best known. "She did her best painting in her 60s," says Tippett.

She taught British Columbians how to really see the forest that surrounds them.

Carr thrust us into the middle of of this jungular growth. She sorted it all out. She showed us the rhythm of the undergrowth. She showed us the rhythm of the great elephant-legged cedars.

"They certainly stand out as icons."

Marina manager fields fire curves

The manager of Canoe Cove Marina at Curteis Point in North Saanich — thrown a few curves by the municipal fire inspector last week — did some fielding today.

John Simson, who has managed the 400-berth marina for the past four years, agreed with a few points raised in fire inspector Ed Banas' report to council, but challenged others.

In his blistering three-page report dated Dec. 4, Banas says his recommendations should be given "immediate attention."

According to Banas, the recommendations in his report were suggested in a fire marshal's report in August, 1973, in a fire chief's report in May, 1974 and in the fire prevention officer's reports of June, 1977 and August, 1978.

Canoe Cove Marina Ltd. is currently campaigning to drum up popular support for its marina and residential expansion plans.

The marina wants to add 160 berths and build six homes an acre on 36 of its 43.2 acres.

The report, which Banas says resulted from a routine inspection, says overhead wiring along floats is dangerous and poses a threat to life safety.

Replies manager Simson: "A lot of the wiring looks bad, but it isn't. It meets the code."

The report also says main floats do not meet the minimum requirements of North Saanich Bylaw 194 for fire extinguishers and says some extinguishers have gone 16 months since servicing, are not the correct type and are less than adequate for a boat fire.

Simson says: "I know that all the extinguishers were put out within the last year, so they would be up to date."

Some of the report's observations centre on the fact that access to the marina floats is hampered whenever a truck parks to discharge fuel.

While Simson agrees traffic has to go around the truck when it's there, access isn't totally restricted for the 15 or 20 minutes it takes to complete its delivery.

The report also calls for no smoking signs at the tank truck discharge station.

No argument, says Simson adding he doesn't disagree that the trees and bushes around and over the tank should be cut back about three metres from the concrete dyke that surrounds the fuel tanks.

As for the entire boat storage and repair areas being a high fire hazard area, Simson is baffled.

The very nature of boats and boat repairs dictates that there will be oil drums and large timbers lying around, he said.

Simson said that a suggestion for more fire buckets loaded with sand is fine, but people keep stealing the buckets.

"We would like to develop a plan that is compatible to the marina and with the municipality," Simson said.

North Saanich Mayor Eric Sherwood said Saturday the marina has offered to clean up its act if council allowed it to proceed with its development.

"I say clean it up anyway," Sherwood said.

Burn victim in stable condition

A 30-year-old man believed soaked in gasoline Saturday was in serious but stable condition at Victoria General Hospital today with burns to 50 per cent of his body.

Colwood RCMP said his clothes caught fire when he ran from a house at 251 Helmcken at 7:30 p.m.

Police withheld the man's name.

$8,000 damage in fire

A fire in a dry cleaning shop that destroyed $8,000 worth of clothing Saturday may have been caused by spontaneous combustion of cleaning mops.

The blaze in Individual Dry Cleaners, 1602 Fort, was spotted by a passing motorist who sounded the alarm.

An investigation showed the fire broke out in a container used for mops and rags and spread to a door, wall and ceiling.

In another weekend incident, Victoria fire captain Stan Gow, attending a car fire at the Inner Harbor, was taken to hospital with torn ligaments after stepping [illegible] onto a curb.

No chimney problems in Victoria: fire chief

Victoria hasn't experienced any problems with the steel chimneys banned by the provincial fire commissoner on Friday, Fire Chief Eric Simmons said today.

Simmons said the fire commissioner's order leaves local fire departments hanging, not knowing what to do about chimneys already in place.

Victoria-area fire chiefs met this morning to discuss the problem.

Oak Bay Ald. Peter Bunn, a contractor for many years and chairman of Oak Bay's fire prevention committee, said he and Fire Chief Fred Leak have been telling residents for some time not to install the factory-built chimneys.

The chimneys are all right "if used exactly according to Hoyle. They're fine if they're properly used, installed and conscientiously maintained. But this doesn't happen," said Bunn.

He and the chief have managed to convince people not to use them by "gentle persuasion.

"The manufacture of these articles leaves a lot to be desired," he added.

Bunn said there are 55 or 60 dwellings in Oak Bay with factory-made chimneys. He said he's concerned about their use elsewhere.

He said consumers who don't understand the technology have them installed and then use long-burning pressed sawdust logs or coal, which generate heat higher than what the chimneys are designed for.

Wes Klassen, manager of the Victoria Fireplace Shop, said the fire commissioner was overreacting to the situation. The chimneys are safe if properly installed and maintained, he claimed.

"They're tested. It's not just something that somebody has dreamed up. It's basically a matter of making sure they're cleaned regularly."

Homeowners should open up the dampers on the stove once a day and let it burn hot. "It would help to prevent a buildup or creosote." There are also types of chimney brushes which can prevent creosote buildup by scratching away most of the gummy black deposits.

Another dealer, who did not want to be identified, said part of the problem is in faulty installation by homeowners trying to save a few bucks by cutting corners.

"Half of these guys don't get permits."

The building code requires stainless steel chimneys outside a house and galvanized inside, but some people are using galvanized throughout.

"People go cheap," he said.

"I think the main problem with this is that people don't know how to use it. It's ignorance on the public's part."

The pipe itself is safe, but some do-it-yourselfers ignore warnings to handle it carefully.

"We tell people don't drop the pipe or dent it. It's like a watch — you've got to take care of it."

Do's and don'ts

The fire commissioner's office in Vanouver has issued a list of precautions for people who have freestanding steel chimneys, steel chimneys inside masonry and fireplace inserts already in place:

—Inspect and clean them frequently. "This may be weekly in some cases." Check for corrosion along the length of the pipe.

—Examine pipe for damage — do not use warped sections.

—Woodstoves used with fireplace inserts tend to overheat the mantel and surrounding woodwork. Check carefully for heat buildup.

—Avoid daily use. Keep fires small.

No coat of arms prize

The winner of a coat of arms design competition sponsored by Saanich won't get a prize but will have the satisfaction of a place in municipal history.

Only a tiny municipal seal adorns its stationary, so Saanich council thought a coat of arms would add prestige.

Council decided on the competition after rejecting one of two designs submitted earlier this year by a municipal staff member, one containing the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, the other a daffodil.

Rules are fairly simple: the design must have a shield containing the original Saanich shield, there must be a helmet on top of the shield, a frilly decorative piece on top of the helmet and a motto in English or Latin.

The coat of arms must also be representative of the municipality in some way.

The simpler the design the better, because elaborate drawings cost more to reproduce.

The new coat of arms will replace the seal on stationary, be seen on municipal police cars and hang above the mayor's chair.

The competition ends Jan. 18.

Victoria and Esquimalt both have coats of arms.

Highways walkout to LRB

A wildcat walkout by 70 Langford and Colwood highways ministry [illegible] continued today as the dispute went before the Labor Relations Board.

The board began a hearing in Vancouver this morning into an application from the government for a back-to-work order.

The sign shop and yard employees walked off the job at noon Thursday in protest against the cancellation of an employee's appointment with his doctor.

Meetings were held Friday between representatives of the Government Employee Relations Bureau, the B.C. Government Employees Union, the highways ministry and the LRB but no solution was reached.

At one stage the employees said they wouldn't go back until supervisor Arnie Davies was removed from his job.

However, a union spokesman said they later agreed to go back to work providing management wouldn't discipline anyone for the illegal walkout but that management wouldn't provide that commitment.

The employees walked off the job Thursday because they said Davies had, the day before, cancelled a 1:30 p.m. doctor's appointment for employee John Whittaker.

Whittaker was to have been examined as part of a Workers' Compensation Board claim.

A ministry spokesman said Davies hadn't cancelled the appointment but had only phoned the doctor to see if the time could be switched until after Whittaker's shift was finished at 3 p.m.

The doctor's receptionist somehow must have intepreted that request as a cancellation.

Tory budget to bring pain at pumps?

By DOUG LONG

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers seem certain to wake up Wednesday to whopping increases in the price of gasoline as Finance Minister John Crosbie puts the finishing touches to a budget designed to curb energy use.

An increase of between 20 and 25 cents a gallon in the excise tax on all transportation fuels, proposed by the government as part of its new energy policy, would raise the price of gasoline sold at the pump to about $1.30 a gallon.

Tuesday's budget — the first by the new Conservative government — is also expected to contain a number of tax measures aimed at encouraging greater use of natural gas and reduced dependence on oil.

Meanwhile, investors in oil and gas stocks are anxious to learn how the government intends to tax new petroleum industry revenues resulting from expected oil price increases of at least $4 a barrel in 1980.

The government seems convinced higher energy prices are an effective means of reducing consumption. Liberal party energy critic Marc Lalonde calls this a baseball bat approach to conservation.

Ottawa hopes to raise around $3 billion through the excise tax and another $2 billion through higher oil prices. Crosbie will use some of the money to cushion the impact of higher prices in low income regions and on consumers already strapped by soaring energy costs.

The energy conscious budget comes on the heels of warnings from the National Energy Board that supplies of home heating oil are very tight across the country this winter. Prime Minister Clark says limited shortages are possible in some areas.

The government is likely to unveil a beefed up home insulation program with more funds available for a broader cross section of home owners to help reduce heating bills.

Tax incentives for conversion to natural gas from oil are anticipated along with a pledge to keep gas prices below oil prices. The government is committed to extending natural gas supplies into Eastern Canada.

The government plans to deposit most of the additional revenues in a new national energy bank, to be used to fund projects aimed at helping reach its target of energy self sufficiency by 1990.

Extension of natural gas supplies, investment in development of alternate energy sources and funding for additional heavy oil and oil sands plants are part of the plans.

The stumbling block to announcement of details of the energy package has been a dispute with Alberta over the method of taxing higher revenues from oil and gas.

The federal government wants a new revenue sharing arrangement to give Ottawa 50 per cent of annual oil price increases above $2 a barrel as it pursues its goal of moving domestic oil prices closer to world levels.

Ottawa now takes 10 per cent of each $1 a barrel increase, while the producing province and the industry each get 45 per cent.

While Alberta concedes the federal treasury needs a bigger slice of oil and gas industry profits to finance national projects there is disagreement over where to impose the tax.

The province says the federal government should only tax profits not being reinvested in exploration and development.

Federal officials maintain this would not provide enough additional revenue and the two sides have been working at a solution. Details may come in Crosbie's budget.

Iran on brink of civil war

Times News Services

As more violent clashes threatened to plunge Iran into civil war, the revolutionary regime of Ayatollah Khomeini backed down Sunday from its threats to set a quick trial date for the U.S. embassy hostages.

In Tabriz, provincial capital of the Azerbaijan region of northeastern Iran, surging mobs of pro- and anti-Khomeini forces battled in the streets, capturing and recapturing government buildings in the worst violence of the four-day-old rebellion by ethnic Turks.

Meanwhile, UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim dispatched a special intermediary to Tehran to pursue UN efforts to resolve the hostage crisis.

Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, who on Friday pledged to make a statement within 48 hours on a trial date for the 50 Americans held at the embassy, said Sunday: "At present we are not going to set any time limits on arriving at any new decisions about the hostages."

Iran has threatened to try some of the hostages as spies unless the United States extradites the deposed shah, something the Carter administration refuses to do so.

In rebellious Azerbaijan, Khomeini supporters in the provincial capital of Tabriz wrested the radio and television station from anti-Khomeini ethnic Turks who took it over last week. But later Sunday, tens of thousands of dissident Turks stormed the station, a bloody gun battle broke out and the rebels regained control of the building.

Rebel sources said three persons — all ethnic Turks — were killed and at least 60 wounded in the fighting. Other sources put the death toll at five and said local army units had joined in the fight on the side of the rebels.

The Turkish-speaking minority, loyal to Iran's second-ranking ayatollah, Mohammed Kazem Shariat-Madari, had taken over the Tabriz governor's mansion, airport and radio-TV station to protest the new Islamic constitution that makes Khomeini supreme Iranian ruler for life and denies them the self-rule they were expecting.

Sunday's fighting was the worst of the four-day uprising in Tabriz. Besides the radio station, the pro-Khomeini forces also retook, then lost control of the governor's mansion. By nightfall the Shariat-Madari followers seemed to have the upper hand.

Wrecked boat yields 4 dead

A search for seven people began at dawn today after four bodies were found in the wreckage of a 32-foot fishing boat that went missing eight days ago.

One of the dead was identified as the owner of the boat, Roy Mostad, 44. The other victims were a juvenile girl, juvenile boy and another child.

There were seven children and three adults aboard the Salinta when it vanished.

Officials identified them as Mostad and his three children, Tommy, 13, Robert, 8, and Tina 9; Judy Stevens, 30, and her children Lyle, 7, Nadine 6, and Roselle 4 and her sister, Wendy Stevens, 22, and her four-year-old daughter Angie. All are from Prince Rupert.

The damaged boat was sighted Sunday washed ashore on the Alaska coast north of Prince Rupert, he said.

The wreck was spotted 66 kilometres north of Prince Rupert near Tree Point in Alaska by a Canadian Forces helicopter based at CFB Comox, said Capt. Ron Hallstrom of the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre.

The occupants of the craft, who set out from Prince Rupert Dec. 2 to visit relatives in Kincolith about 100 kilometres to the north, were not missed until Friday when a neighbor noticed the children were not at school.

Apparently no one had notified the relatives they were coming, a Canadian Forces spokesman said.

ICBC confirms increase

The average premium rate for Greater Victoria drivers will increase $10 to $177 next year though most drivers in the province will pay up to 10 per cent more for their Insurance Corporation of B.C. coverage.

North Vancouver Island motorists will also get a $10 drop, from $191 to $181.

The overall 10 per cent increase — predicted Friday by the Times — was confirmed today by ICBC president Robbie Sherrell.

Sherrell told a news conference that about 915,000 drivers will pay more for insurance, 729,000 will pay less and rates for 55,000 drivers will remain unchanged.

He also said 100,000 additional drivers will see an average $11 drop in insurance rates through the Crown corporation because they qualify for safe driver discounts.

Sherrell said Vancouver-area drivers will see the average premium rate reduced to $253 from $270 and the average premium in the Fraser Valley will drop $7 to $185.

The new rates take effect Jan. 1 and will be accompanied by a variety of new coverage options.

Corporation spokesman said earlier this year that the government's program four to stop basing rates on age, sex, marital status and geography would result in an overall increase in premiums.

Mum's word on Campbell

By JAKE BANKY

Intergovernmental Relations Minister Garde Gardom today refused to speculate on the future of Dan Campbell, the senior Social Credit bureaucrat he inherited from the premier in last month's cabinet shuffle.

Gardom was asked whether Campbell will still become the government's chief representative in the new B.C. House in Ottawa in the New Year as scheduled.

"As I say, I'm not making any comment," he replied.

An hour later, the minister met Campbell privately.

Campbell was not available to answer questions.

On two occasions last week Campbell blew his top at the press for "hassling and harassing" him on the dirty tricks affair.

He ordered reporters from his office and threatened them with legal action.

Gardom said it would be wrong for him to say anything on any of these matters while a police investigation is under way into the dirty tricks affair.

Does that mean Campbell is under investigation? Gardom was asked.

"I'm not suggesting he is, I'm not suggesting he isn't," Gardom replied.

Pressed on whether Campbell is going to Ottawa, the minister said: "Garde Gardom is not going to be here forever. You are not going to be here forever and I assume Mr. Campbell is in the same position."

Will Campbell be around for another year?

"I'm not going to start speculating," Gardom said.

Premier Bill Bennett declined comment on the Campbell situation.

The NDP meanwhile, is calling for a police investigation into the possibility that Campbell may have contravened the B.C. Elections Act.

Former attorney-general Alex Macdonald said the RCMP should be investigating Campbell in light of a claim by former Socred researcher Ellen Mackay that Campbell handed out $1000 bills for election expenses without asking for receipts.

The Socred caucus was meeting today in a session expected to centre on dirty tricks and the mass firing last week of the entire caucus research staff.

Prince George South MLA Bruce Strachan said as he entered the meeting he is upset at the way things have been handled and he intends to speak out about it.

New police chief named

Victoria's new police chief is Insp. William J. Snowdown of Vancouver.

Mayor Bill Tindall today announced the police board had chosen the head of Vancouver's community services division from a list of 33 candidates.

Snowdon, a veteran of more than 20 years on the 800-man Vancouver force, replaces Chief Jack Gregory, a former RCMP officer who headed Victoria's force for 18 years.

The appointment is effective Jan. 1.

Snowdon's experience with team policing methods was believed to be the decisive factor in his appointment.

Earlier this year, he was given command of the community services division of the Vancouver police force.

For several years, Vancouver has deployed teams of police to cover sectors of the city to try to combat the rising crime rate, especially among youths and juveniles.

Instead of being assigned various areas of the city, police concentrate on one neighborhood and get to know the people and the trouble spots.

There have been numerous demands that Victoria's 150-man police department adopt similar tactics.

Robber blasts hole in roof

By AB KENT

A cool-headed attendant tried to talk a masked gunman out of robbing his service station until the robber blasted a hole in the ceiling of Fennell's Pay-n-Save service station with a shotgun Saturday night.

"Then I went to plan B and asked him if he still wanted the money," said Peter Moulton, 28, of 486 Culduthel.

Moulton said the man threatened to kill him and two young motorcyclists, took about $600 cash and drove away from the Central Saanich station in a small car about 9:40 p.m.

"If anything, he was more scared than I was," Moulton said.

The motorcyclists were with Moulton in the office at 6459 Pat Bay Highway when the six-foot bandit, wearing a red toque, red coveralls and a child's red knitted sweater tied over his face, came in carrying a Remington 12-gauge shotgun.

"Gimme your money and the money from the safe," the gunman demanded.

"I conversed with him for three or four minutes, hoping he'd back down," Mouklton said today.

But the gunman was determined that Moulton hand over his wallet and open the safe.

"Then I wanted to see if I could talk him into firing a shot into the ceiling to prove the gun was loaded. I thought I could either jump him, or if it was loaded, the sound would attract neighbors," Moulton said.

The gun roared and Moulton said he abandoned [illegible] idea.

"He ordered us into the ladies washroom and said not to come out. He meant business and said he would kill us if we didn't co-operate."

When he heard the sound of a car pulling away, Moulton said he jumped out of the washroom, dived over a counter and telephoned the station owner who called police.

Rhodesia bombs rebel sites

SALISBURY (AP) — Zimbabwe Rhodesian jet fighter planes pounded guerrilla staging areas in neighboring Zambia and Mozambique on Sunday as negotiators in London continued to wrangle over a ceasefire in the breakaway British colony.

The military command reported that the planes bombed and strafed black nationalist guerrilla havens just across the Zambezi River border in Zambia at dawn. A later statement said the planes attacked more guerrilla bases inside Zambia on a second raid and struck a guerrilla target inside Mozambique.

The Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance uses the neighboring black-ruled states as base areas in its seven-year-old war against the Salisbury government.

There was no immediate word from either Zambia or Mozambique on casualties in the raids.

The military command gave few details, saying only that the attacked bases in Zambia housed "large numbers of terrorists" and that the target in Mozambique was "a major terrorist base."

It said all aircraft returned to base safely after the attacks. Unconfirmed reports said Zimbabwe Rhodesian ground troops also took part in the Mozambique raid.

Sunday's air strikes were the sixth, seventh and eighth cross-border raids into Zambia and Mozambique since the London peace conference began 13 weeks ago.

In London, Patriotic Front spokesman Willie Musarurwa denounced Sunday's attacks as "outrageous" and said they proved that the outgoing Salisbury government of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa is not serious about peace.

Observers say the raids may cast another shadow over hopes for early conclusion of a Zimbabwe Rhodesian peace agreement.

Both sides in the British-sponsored talks have accepted a constitutional plan and last week the Front guerrilla leaders agreed to principles of a ceasefire. But last-minute technical hitches developed and the Front again declared it would not accept cease-fire terms that amounted to "surrender."

Hydro probe delay bid

B.C. environmental groups will ask the National Energy Board to postpone a hearing on B.C. Hydro's application to export electricity until more information is available on the potential effects of such a move.

The hearing is scheduled to begin Tuesday in Vancouver.

A motion to that effect will be made at the hearing by the Sierra Club and the Canadian Scientific Pollution and Environmental Control Society (SPEC).

Hydro is seeking an umbrella licence from the federal regulatory agency to export 10 billion kilowatt hours of electricity annually to the U.S. Three billion would be guaranteed while the remaining seven billion could be interrupted if required to serve Canadian needs.

The proposed annual export of electricity is equal to 39 per cent of Hydro's domestic sales in the 1978-79 fiscal year.

The Sierra-SPEC motion says the hearing should be put off until the following questions can be answered:

—Whether the export price should include the capital, environmental and social costs to generate the power;

—Whether the price for export thermal power will include costs stemming from the impact the operation of thermal generating units has on the environment.

TOWN OF SIDNEY

OFFICIAL COMMUNITY PLAN

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Due to further changes to the draft Official Community Plan, it is necessary to hold another public hearing prior to the adoption of the plan and such hearing will be held on Monday, December 17th, 1979, at 7:30 p.m. in the Council Chambers, Town Hall, 2440 Sidney Avenue, Sidney, of which everyone concerned is required to take notice.

A copy of the revised plan may be inspected at the town hall during regular office hours.

25-storey jump . . . she lives

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A 25-year-old woman survived an apparent jump from a 25-storey hotel but does not want to talk about it, hospital officials said Sunday.

In discussing the Friday incident, police said Kathy Beck took off some of her clothes, apparently jumped from the roof of the Golden Gateway Holiday Inn — 250 feet high — and landed on the roof of a parked car.

Hospital officials declined to discuss her condition.

"We cannot make any statements about her condition," said a spokeswoman at San Francisco General Hospital. "She has been very uncooperative and doesn't want us to say anything to anyone."

Witnesses said that when the woman landed on car, she moaned, "Leave me alone, just leave me alone."

Hospital officials said she suffered head and internal injuries but will live.

Minnie Mountain appeal in Feb.

A Cadboro Bay Residents Association appeal for a hearing before the Supreme Court of Canada on the Minnie Mountain housing development decision will be held in Ottawa in February.

Association laywer Lawrence Fast has appealed a recent B.C. Court of Appeal judgement overturning an earlier B.C. Supreme Court decision quashing a Saanich land use bylaw allowing the 70-acre housing development.

If the application is successful, it will be several months before the case is heard by the Supreme Court.

A year ago the association won a supreme court appeal against the bylaw when Mr. Justice William Trainor ruled a conflict of interest on the part of Ald. David Paterson.

Mayor Mel Couvelier has announced the mixed residential housing development will go ahead as soon as possible.

Killer slide crushes shed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two deaths have been linked to a severe wind and rain storm that lashed southwestern British Columbia during the weekend, disrupting power and damaging buildings.

At least two mudslides were caused by the driving rains which undermined hillsides.

One slide claimed a man's life and left another man in serious condition in hospital. The other slide blocked a major highway.

The massive mudslide at the Carolin Mine in the Coquihalla Valley, 30 kilometres northeast of Hope, swept a mechanics' shed with four men inside it off its foundation.

One man died as the shed was crushed by mud and another suffered serious injuries after he was trapped in a truck which was swept 50 metres over an embankment. Two other men suffered minor injuries and worked for an hour to rescue the victim in the truck.

In the Vancouver suburb of Surrey, RCMP said weather conditions contributed to the death of a woman who was struck by a car. They said the accident occurred in an area where lack of street lighting, high winds and heavy rain resulted in poor visibility.

$1 million fire guts stores

SURREY (CP) — A spectacular fire fanned by high winds Sunday night caused more than $1 million damage when it destroyed two furniture stores in this community.

A fire department spokesman said the fire which gutted Cloverdale Home Furnishings Ltd. and the adjacent Maple Shop, burned out of control in the townsite of Cloverdale for three hours with winds gusting to 40 kilometres an hour. Volunteer firemen from about six halls were called in to battle the fire.

The fire also spread to a nearby cafe and a dry cleaning firm.

Offer for FP called 'low'

TORONTO (CP) — The offer by Conrad Black and associates for controlling interest of FP Publications Ltd. is about $102 million or $45 a share, says former Liberal cabinet minister James Richardson.

Although the offer isn't as good as it should be, it will probably be accepted by some stockholders because FP earnings aren't as good as they should be, said Richardson, a trustee of the Bell Foundation, which owns a small portion of the stock.

FP Publications owns eight newspapers, including the Victoria Times, The Daily Colonist and the Vancouver Sun in B.C., and has substantial printing interests.

Richardson and other foundation trustees will be in Toronto on Thursday to discuss the details of the offer made by Black, chairman of Argus Corp. Ltd., and his associates. They include John Bassett, chairman of Baton Broadcasting Inc., and George Gardiner, president of Gardiner Watson Ltd. brokers of Toronto.

The various equity shareholders, including four family holding companies and four members of the family of FP co-founder Max Bell, have been invited to Toronto to study the proposals.

The Bell heirs own about 10.4 per cent of the FP equity shares. The main shareholders are Invictus Ltd., which represents the Sifton estate and owns 32.4 per cent of the equity; Starlaw Investments Ltd., representing the McConnell family of Montreal with 25 per cent; Newsco Investments Ltd., the family holding company of R. Howard Webster of Montreal with 20.6 per cent; and the Max Bell Foundation with 10.3 per cent.

But the decision on any sale will be made by the businessmen who administer the foundations or execute the estates, not by family members.

These administrators include David Ferguson and Derek Price of Starlaw Investments; R. S. Malone, a trustee of both the Sifton and Bell estates; Donald McGavin of Toronto, a Sifton trustee; Gardiner, a trustee of the Bell Foundation; and three other Bell trustees, including Richardson and former governor-general Roland Michener.

Ownership of the equity shares differs substantially from that of the voting shares represented on the board of directors, which controls management of the company.

Starlaw holds 25 per cent of the voting shares, while Sifton, the Bell Foundation and Webster each hold 22.5 per cent. Malone holds 7.5 per cent.

the weather

A vigorous frontal system tracked across southern B.C. overnight. The system was accompanied by rain and snow. Following the front are strong gusty northerly winds which will push cold Arctic air into the Interior today. The cold, drier air will give some sunny breaks across the province today. The next Pacific disturbance is on its way and will track across northern B.C. Tuesday. This system will bring rain and snow to the north coast this afternoon and snow to the northern interior overnight.

today's markets

Toronto

The Toronto stock market fell moderately in mid-session trading today. Activity was also moderate.

The Toronto Stock Exchange said shares of Amalgamated Bonanza Petroleum Ltd. were removed from the trading list at the opening. The merger of Amalgamated Bonanza and Gulf Canada Western Ltd., a subsidiary of Gulf Canada Ltd., became effective Friday.

Trading in shares of Western Mines Ltd. resumed at 1 p.m. after a halt at the opening. By 2 p.m., the stock was unchanged at $9½.

Western Mines said it bought a number of Canadian oil and gas properties from the Abacus group of companies for $20.1 million.

Trading in shares of McIntyre Mines Ltd. resumed at the opening following a halt Friday. The company reaffirmed that the effective date of its rights offering will be Tuesday unless the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission sets a later date. The stock lost 1½ to $64½ by 1 p.m.

Among other industrials, Texaco Canada fell 2 to $82, Falconbridge Nickel A 1¼ to $80¾, OPI Ltd. A ⅞ to $31½, Dome Petroleum ¾ to $49 and Norcen Energy ⅜ to $31⅝.

Gulf Canada rose 3½ to $98¾, Trizec 1½ to $22, Atco A 1¼ to $18⅞, Newfoundland Light and Power A 1 to $20 and Canadian Marconi 1 to $18⅞.

Sherritt Gordon was down ¾ to $12⅜, Copperfields Mining ⅝ to $9¾ and Vestgron Mines ½ to $13¾. Dome Mines was up ⅞ to $51 and Lacana Mining ½ to $7⅛.

Numac Oil and Gas declined 1 to $43, Francana Oil and Gas ¾ to $12¾ and Paloma Petroleum ½ to $6⅞. Ranger Oil Canada advanced ¾ to $24¼ and Canadian Merrill ⅝ to $24.

Vancouver

Prices were mixed in active trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 10:55 a.m. PST was 1,575,187 shares.

Of the stocks traded, 106 advanced, 123 declined and 134 remained unchanged.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, gaining .02 at $7.15 on 59,990 shares and Daon Development Corp. remained steady at $14¾ on 3,000. Canadian Javelin Ltd. dropped .03 at .82 on 1,203 and Hal Roach Studios was unchanged at $2.45 on 1,000. Balco Industries was up ⅛ at $5⅜ and Renn Industries was down .05 at $1.45.

On the resource and development board, Seaforth Mines gained .08 at $1.30 on 47,600 shares and Con-Am Resources was up .10 at $3.70 on 46,100. Quintaine Resources Inc. gained .20 at $3.10 on 36,900 and Slocan Development remained steady at .23 on 30,000. Plains Petroleum was up .08 at $1.38 and Rhodes Resources Warrants A was unchanged at .09.

West Trend Resources Warrants led trading on the curb exchange, up .16 to .81 on 33,400 shares and West Trend Resources was up .13 at $1.85 on 17,500. Rebel Developments was up .03 at .25 on 15,000 and San Antonio Exploration dropped .02 at .75 on 14,500.

New York

Stock prices recovered from early declines in moderate trading today, following a similar path for the U.S. dollar in currency trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks fell about three points in morning trading after the dollar plunged sharply against the Japanese currency in Tokyo.

But as the U.S. dollar stabilized in later European markets, so did trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Some analysts suggested that pressure on the U.S. dollar could reverse the recent easing of interest rates if the Federal Reserve Board found it necessary to maintain tight credit to defend the currency.

American Cyanimid jumped 1⅜ to $30⅞ as the most actively traded NYSE issue by midafternoon. Gold stocks also were strong in less active trading.

Among precious metals, ASA rose 1 to $33¼; Dome Mines gained ⅞ to $44½; Hecla Mining rose ⅜ to $22 and Homestake was up ½ to $39¾.

London

The London stock market rose moderately near the close of light trading today.

The Financial Times index was up 1.0 to 416.6.

Industrials advanced while oils declined.

Canadian shares eased.

Singer to change retailing method

EDMONTON (CP) — The Singer Co. of Canada has closed the doors on some of its retail outlets to try a new method of distribution, Richard Conlin, vice-president of marketing, announced.

Conlin said the new emphasis will be on franchise dealerships.

Negotiations are under way to locate some Singer retail operations in Eaton's stores.

"It was basically the high cost of distribution with our retail outlets. Expenses were increasing rapidly — particularly rent and operating costs."

Singer has 200 independent dealerships across Canada, 21 in Alberta.

Increase in prices 14.5 %

OTTAWA (CP) — Manufacturing prices rose 14.5 per cent in October from a year earlier with a monthly rise of 1.5 per cent from September, Statistics Canada figures show.

The agency's industry selling-price index for manufacturing has a base year of 1971 set at 100. The index for October stood at 226.3, an increase for the 14th consecutive month.

Smelting and refining prices led with a whopping rise of 46 per cent since October, 1978. Primary metal prices increased 28.2 per cent, leather industries, 20.4 per cent and textiles and chemicals tied with a 15.6-per-cent increase for the year ended Oct. 30.

Tobacco product industries had the lowest price increase of the major groups measured at 8.3 per cent from October, 1978.

The only decline in prices was in the month-to-month period from September to October for wood industries where prices fell by 2.1 per cent.

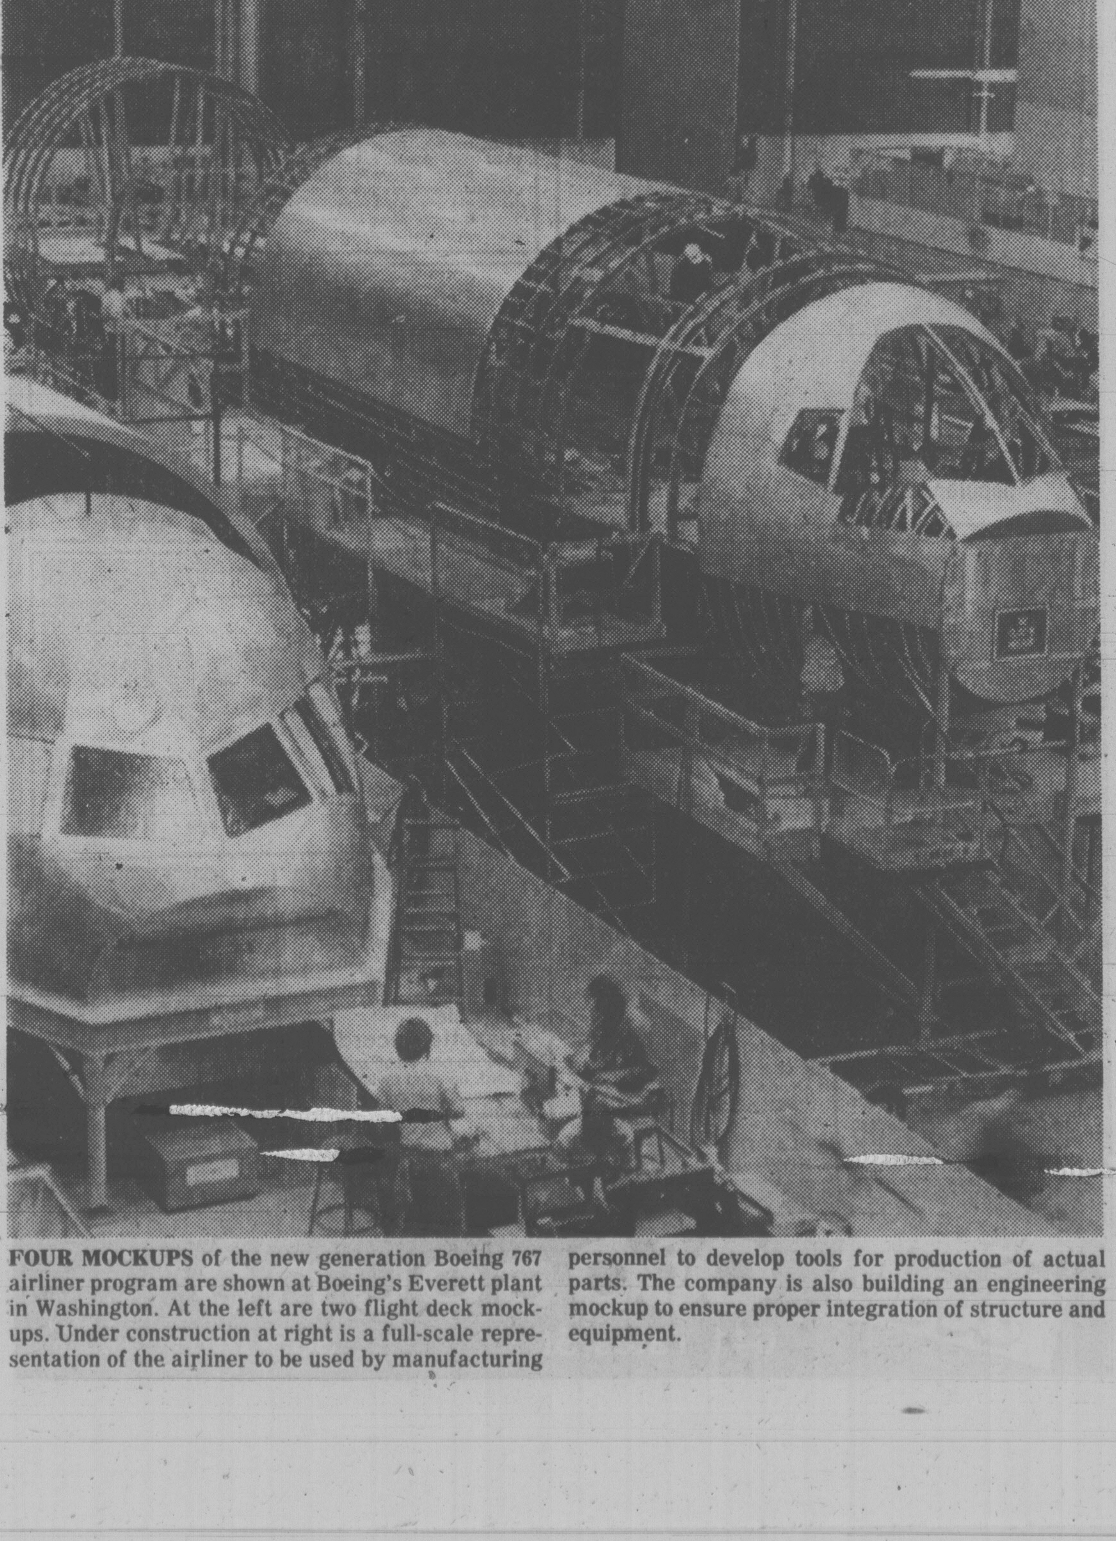
Que. firm railcar deal set

MONTREAL (CP) — Marine Industries Ltd. of Sorel, Que. expects to build and deliver 3,762 railcars worth $170 million to United States companies before the end of next year, company vice-president Donald Guevremont has announced.

Guevremont said he has been in continuous negotiation with a variety of U.S. companies since last August and that more contracts could be in the offing.

"Marine Industries has never had such a series of contracts for one year," he said. "It will be a record year."

The contracts will provide employment for about 1,200 workers at the company's plant in Sorel, about 70 kilometres northeast of here, an area that was plagued with strikes and layoffs throughout 1979.



FOUR MOCKUPS of the new generation Boeing 767 airliner program are shown at Boeing's Everett plant in Washington. At the left are two flight deck mockups. Under construction at right is a full-scale representation of the airliner to be used by manufacturing personnel to develop tools for production of actual parts. The company is also building an engineering mockup to ensure proper integration of structure and equipment.
